Junior Woman's Club Installs Officers, Chairmen Selected

Mrs. John Young was hostess to the Junior Woman's Club Monday night at her home. Officers for the year were installed and committee chairmen were named. They follow:

Mrs. Bryan Loftin, president; Mrs. Dolly Morris, vice-president; Mrs. Frank Langdale, treasurer; Mrs. Julius Dunn, recording secretary; Mrs. William B. Longest III, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Loftin's committee chairmen are Mrs. Wiley Taylor Jr., rating sheet, yearbook and publicity; Mrs. John Cline, hospitality and benevolence; Mrs. Manly Mason, programs; Mrs. Billy Ipock, ways and means; Mrs. Ann Lewis, membership.

The 21 members present discussed the point system the club will follow this year. At the end of the year the member who has completed the most points will receive a silver bowl.

The group talked about getting a canteen for teenagers started. They hope to have it at the Scout building to provide supervised recreation for high school students. The opening date will be announced.

The club has entered the community achievement contest and has purchased a $25 membership in the symphony society. They also voted to donate $25 to Caswell Training School. It was announced that members had been asked to take part in the mothers' march for polio to raise funds for the March of Dimes. They voted unanimously to do so and the town was divided into sections for canvassing.

It was decided that the next meeting will be held at the Scout building with Mrs. Bryan Loftin and Mrs. Wiley Taylor Jr. acting as hostesses.

Mrs. Frank Langdale, retiring president, was presented a gift of jewelry from the club members in appreciation of her work during the year.

Mrs. Young served soft drinks, coffee, sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres.
