Operation Petticoat Showing Now at City

By O. J. MORROW
Theatre Manager
Take the magnificent comedy artistry of Cary Grant and Tony Curtis, blend with the talented beauty of a pair of dolls like Joan O'Brien and Dina Merrill, add a dash or two of hilarious performances by Arthur O'Connell and Gene Evans, then stir the whole thing up in a Navy submarine painted a blushing pink, and you have the perfect ingredients for Operation Petticoat, a weirdly wild and delightfully delicious laugh-fest that is now playing at the City theatre.

Operation Petticoat is a classic of revelry and ribaldry as it reveals the howling adventures of a harassed submarine skipper trying to get his disabled boat back into operation.

Just the fact that at one time the sub puts to sea painted pink, carrying five women passengers, and is the unsuspecting target of both her allies and her enemies, is enough of a convincer that here is one of the greatest entertainment packages ever to come out of Hollywood, a master comedy played by master comedians.

Cary Grant has never before exhibited his great artistry with such aplomb as he does in this role, proving beyond all doubt that he is filmdom's finest talent in the field of comedy.

Personal note from one who has already seen the picture: "It's ten times better than 'Pillow Talk'."

One of Cecil B. DeMille's most tremendous film accomplishments, Samson and Delilah, an undertaking that saw fourteen years elapse between the time the original script was written and the final editing completed, arrives Sunday at the Morehead theatre. The spectacle, in Technicolor, stars Victor Mature and Hedy Lamarr in the title roles, plus George Sanders, Angela Lansbury and Henry Wilcoxon, heading a cast of many thousands.

Hailed as one of the master showman's most ambitious and most magnificent productions, Samson and Delilah won a permanent place in filmdom's hall of fame and will always be regarded as one of the most entertaining and exciting dramatizations of Old Testament lore.

DeMille has staged many spectacular scenes in his motion pictures, but nothing he has ever done surpasses the destruction of the Philistine Temple by the blinded Samson. Other scenes fans will remember and want to see again and again are Samson's furious, single handed assault on a thousand Philistine soldiers, his bare handed struggle with a lion, the murderous wedding feast brawl, to mention only a few.

Basically, Samson and Delilah tells a powerful story of a man's fight to free his enslaved people, his betrayal by the woman he loved and his ultimate retribution. It offers the special kind of entertainment for which only DeMille had the formula, entertainment with universal appeal on a scale unequalled in the history of motion picture production.

What is a "Gazabo"? Do you have one around the house? If you don't, you don't know what you're missing. You don't know what a "Gazabo" is? "Gazabo" is the name of the picture playing Wednesday through Saturday at the Morehead theatre, starring Glenn Ford, Debbie Reynolds, and Carl Reiner.

You'll find out more about the "Gazabo" when you see the picture. It's a good comedy for the entire family and it's all in fun.

New High in '60 Expected In Land Buy Opportunity

Investment opportunities in real estate are expected to hit a new high this year, Garland Scruggs, president of the Morehead-Beaufort Board of Realtors predicted here today.

Mr. Scruggs painted this bright picture of the sound investments available and the increasingly diversified ways of putting money in real property on the basis of local experience plus expert opinion expressed at the recent convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in Toronto, Canada. The Morehead-Beaufort board is affiliated with NAREB.

"It looks like there's a good chance real estate investments may at last get equal tax treatment with certain types of security investments," Mr. Scruggs said. "This could bring about tremendous growth in real estate syndicates and permit the small investor conveniently to put his money into real estate which historically has been the best long-term investment in the country," the realtor leader declared.

He explained that the Treasury Department recently withdrew its objections to legislation which would put real estate investment trusts on the same tax basis as regulated investment companies. "This means the bill has a good chance to pass Congress next year," Mr. Scruggs predicted.

The trend toward real estate syndicates was substantiated at the NAREB convention, the realtor board president said. Mr. Scruggs quoted Robert H. Weir, San Jose, Calif., a prominent tax attorney and writer on tax subjects who addressed a convention session, as saying "real estate can stand up to any other investment medium for Mr. Average Investor and it excels in flexibility."

"Only a comparatively few people have enough money to buy an apartment, office building, or commercial property on their own, but if the present growth of widely held real estate syndicates continues, the average man will be able to buy a share of a shopping center in the near future as conveniently as he buys a share of stock today," Mr. Scruggs said.

The Morehead-Beaufort board president explained that the flexibility of real estate means it can fit easily into a person's broad investment program. He pointed out that real estate can be held for possible growth, sold, leased, or used to back up a loan. Mr. Scruggs said the tax advantages of real estate investment arising from depreciation provisions will become increasingly important to the small investor faced with a heavy tax burden.

Judge with New Teeth Brings Order in Court

Pendleton, N. Y. (AP)—Peace Justice Franklin Schultz, acting supervisor for Pendleton, kept order at a recent hearing by telling the 100 persons present: "Don't get me excited. I'm breaking in new dentures and I have to speak carefully. If I get excited, I won't be able to speak at all."

Coast Guard Will Build Station at Hatteras Inlet

Hatteras—Construction work on a new lifeboat station at Hatteras Inlet, on the north side near the town of Hatteras will begin this month, Coast Guard officials in Norfolk said this week.

The new station will replace the one formerly located on the northern tip of Ocracoke Island which was washed away some years ago. The new Hatteras Inlet lifeboat station will be located at the site of the Gooseville Gun club, where the Coast Guard has maintained a temporary station since 1954, in the building formerly housing the shooting club.

Though the building design is still on the drawing boards, plans however, point toward a two-story masonry structure with detached lookout tower and combined garage-equipment building. The buildings will be faced in brick veneer. It will be the first brick lifeboat station erected in either Dare or Hyde counties.

The initial contract, for construction of a boat basin bulkhead, dredging piers, boat hoist and fuel storage facilities on Austin Creek at the gun club site have been awarded. J. T. Hardison & Son, Inc., of Washington, N. C. won this contract.

Coast Guard officials at Norfolk

headquarters indicated that contracts on the buildings will be offered in the near future, with long-range planning for commissioning of the new installation early in 1961.

Meanwhile Coast Guard personnel will continue its search and rescue activities out of the temporary station. Archie Wahab of Ocracoke is at present officer in charge. Previously in charge was Nevin Wescott of Manteo who is now stationed at Oregon Inlet, but who will retire from service on Jan. 31.

The Hatteras Inlet Lifeboat Station will be the second new station to be constructed in the Fifth Coast Guard District in recent years. The station at Little Machipongo on the Eastern Shore of Virginia was completed last April.
