

Within Hundred Years Two County UDC Units Expire

By F. C. SALISBURY

Passing of the last Confederate veteran of the Civil War in Carteret county, and lack of interest on the part of present day generations is given as the reason for disbanding the two chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, that of the Emeline J. Pigott Chapter in Morehead City and the Fort Macon Chapter in Beaufort.

The first chapter organized was the Emeline J. Pigott Chapter in Morehead City in 1906 with a charter membership of thirty-three. A charter was issued the organization Dec. 18, 1906.

The first officers to serve were Mrs. C. S. Wallace, president; Mrs. Hattie Edwards, first vice-president; Mrs. George Kornegay, second vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Headen, treasurer; Miss Lala Hauser, recording secretary; Miss Eva Hardesty, corresponding secretary.

Membership in the Emeline J. Pigott Chapter at the height of its activities was well over one hundred and was considered one of the largest and most active chapters in the state. For several years an auxiliary of the Children of the Confederacy, organized in 1911, was carried on in an effort to create in the minds of the younger generation a love and respect for service of their forebears.

The auxiliary was named the Mary Francis Hancock, honoring a county woman who was active in the cause of the Confederacy, who likewise was honored by the adult organization.

During the fifty years of the life of the Emeline J. Pigott Chapter, various members served as presidents, but none received greater recognition for service through the years than the late Mrs. J. F. Giddens, who served the chapter as president for 28 years.

At the district meeting of the state society in Morehead City April 9, 1953, the program of the meeting was dedicated in loving memory to Mrs. Giddens.

Officers serving the chapter at the time it was disbanded in 1956 were Mrs. E. A. Council, president; Mrs. Sam Adler, vice-president; Mrs. Ida Eaton, secretary; Mrs. Sadie Wood, treasurer. Membership numbered eighteen.

The Fort Macon Chapter organized in Beaufort was granted a charter under date of July 23, 1920 with fifteen charter members. First officers were Mrs. C. A. Clawson, president; Mrs. C. S. Carrow, vice-president; Mrs. C. G. Potter Sr., recording secretary; Mrs. E. W. Hill, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. L. Potter, treasurer; Mrs. P. B. Loftin; registrar, Miss Lottie Sanders, recorder of crosses, Miss Annie Rumley, historian.

During the active period of this chapter the roll carried a membership of seventy-three. Of the two county chapters, the Fort Macon Chapter carried out the larger patriotic project; that of raising the sum of $3,000 for the purchase of a fine monument dedicated to the Confederate soldiers of the county. It is erected on the grounds of the courthouse in Beaufort. Dedication of the monument took place on Memorial Day, May 10, 1926.

Time has dimmed the memory of descendants of those men in grey. From news items of years past can be gathered accounts of special observances by the two county chapters, covering the lives and events of Civil War days.

Memorial Day, May 10, the date of Stonewall Jackson's death in 1863; a day when the honored dead of the Confederacy are remembered with orations, music, prayer and flowers, has not been properly observed in the county since the disbanding of the two county chapters. Nor the birthdays of Lee, Jackson and Maury.

Who can forget a Memorial Day event with its band, marching school children, veterans stepping off to the martial music until old age overtook them and they resorted to carriage or auto? From the summerhouse in the cemetery a speaker would refresh the minds of his listeners of the events of those war days that brought about the day of observance.

sated in the bill of the following month. This system of reading meters has eliminated the hiring of more meter readers and more trucks, a saving passed on to the consumer in lower rates.

● Furnaces, with blowers, operate in the winter time and could cause an increase in use of as much as 60 KWH

● People tend to stay home more at night in the winter time, and thus use more electricity

● Months of cold place added demand on the electric water heater. Water from city mains may be 25 to 40 degrees colder than in summer and therefore requires more heat to bring it up to the desired temperature. This is true, he pointed out, whether water is heated with coal, oil, wood or any other fuel.

It was also mentioned that in winter time people take hot baths or showers, while in the summer they prefer tepid baths, if not cold—thus the demand for hot water lessens.

Mr. Breeden explained, however, that the CP&L rate scale includes a discount for an electric hot water heater.

The speaker pointed out that people keep adding electrical appliances and are not aware of it—appliances such as electric shavers, electric blenders, electric knife sharpeners, deep freeze cabinets.

One customer estimated that he had "about five or six electrical appliances" in his home. He actually counted them and found he had 31, Mr. Breeden said.

A. A. Johnston, district manager, Wilmington, explained electric meters and how to read them.

"One of the best ways to check on how much electricity you use is to read your meter daily," Mr. Johnston said. "It's easy to do and you can see for yourself what's going on in your house."

He explained the construction of meters and certification by the Bureau of Standards as to accuracy. "No watch is as accurate as your meter," he commented.

"If anything gets wrong with it, it will stop rather than record use of power at a faster rate," Mr. Johnston said.

If people want to figure their own bills, he advised them to take the meter reading and multiply each kilowatt hour by 2 cents. The result will be a very close estimate to your actual bill.

Mr. Breeden explained that one kilowatt hour is the amount of electricity required to burn a 100-watt bulb for 10 hours.

Mrs. Coretta Cherry, home economist with the power company, served coffee and doughnuts. Mr. Breeden and Mr. Johnston were introduced by George Stovall, CP&L manager in this area.

The meeting was the result of a suggestion in a NEWS-TIMES editorial that persons might stop complaining about "high" electric bills if they knew more about electricity, how to read meters and how rates are figured.

Throughout the county, little attention is paid to Memorial Day and its significance. There are no wreaths of green or flowers placed upon a veterans grave; no stars and bars flutter in the spring breeze to designate the spot where lies a soldier of that strife of 1861-63.

From the hands of the living went a floral token to the comrade who had answered the final roll call.

How to Read Your Meter

What does this meter read? Look at the dial on the right. The hand is between the 2 and 3, so the reading is 2. The reading on the second dial from the right is 6, on the third dial from the right is 8. The reading on the fourth dial from the right is 0, and the fifth, 0. Thus the meter reading is 00862.

It says that 862 kilowatt hours have been used. If each kilowatt hour costs 2 cents, the approximate bill would be $17.24. If the meter read 00431, the bill would be about $8.62.

Some meters have only four dials, but that makes no difference, it is still read the same way. When the hand is between two numbers, the lower number is read.

People who doubt that they are "using that much electricity," can best check for themselves by reading the meter periodically, power company officials say.
