

SPA Renews Chilula Contract with USCG

Renewed for another year is the contract between the United States Coast Guard and the State Ports Authority for the berthing of the Coast Guard cutter Chilula at the Morehead City state port.

D. Leon Williams, executive director of the State Ports Authority, told mayor George W. Dill, Morehead City, this week that the Chilula will continue at its present berth and meanwhile the SPA will ready another berthing site for it.

In April it was announced that the SPA was considering the cancellation of the lease with the Coast Guard, which would necessitate removal of the Chilula. The Chilula, if it is stationed in Morehead City, must tie up at the state port, the only place where there is water of sufficient depth.

Morehead City residents and officials, anxious to keep the Chilula at the Morehead City, proposed that the SPA prepare another berthing site at the western end of the east-west pier. At present the Chilula ties up at the south end (berth 3) of the north-south pier.

This berthing site, the SPA said, was needed for grain ships. Renewal of the contract means that arrangements prevailing during the past year will continue, with the Chilula moving to other berths when it is necessary for a grain ship to be loaded.

Mayor Dill said that he was extremely well pleased with the news that the Chilula will be accommodated at the state port.

Although the SPA claims that the rental it gets from the Coast Guard for the berth is insignificant in comparison to the amount of revenue it would receive from cargo ships, Morehead City considers the buying power of Coast Guardsmen and their families important to the economy of the area.

Big Figs Produced

The children of G. O. Joyner, 510 Arendell St., Morehead City, display mammoth figs from the Joyner bush. Jane, 7, holds in her right hand a fig weighing six ounces and in her left, one weighing 5 ounces. With her is her 4-year-old brother, G. O. Jr.

Duke Marine Lab Begins 1960 Summer Season

● Campus has New Lab, Research Equipment

● Public Will Attend Open House July 9

Close to a hundred students, research scientists and faculty members are at Duke University Marine laboratory, Beaufort, for the current summer term which ends July 15.

The marine station is operating this summer with a new laboratory, expanded dining hall and seminar facilities and new research equipment.

The marine lab will show its new facilities to the public at an open house Saturday afternoon, July 9. Dr. C. G. Bookhout, chairman of the executive committee of the lab and head of the staff, released this week names of faculty members and students.

Members of the faculty are Dr. D. J. Fluke, Dr. I. E. Gray, Dr. H. J. Humm, Dr. Wanda S. Hunter, Dr. Terry W. Johnson, Dr. H. S. Roberts Jr. and Dr. F. J. Vernberg.

Students enrolled for the first term in marine ecology are the following: Henry Becker, Lona Claire Wharton, Artie L. Metcalf, John C. Boykin, Donnie L. Dudley, Herbert F. Prytherch Jr., James R. Musgrave Jr., David F. Engelhart, Eleanor Bowen, David T. Sharp, Norman Richard.

Sister T. More, Sister M. Baptista, Violet Garfine, Oscar G. Fuentes, Richard D. Porcher Jr., Peggy Ann Mobley and Sally Skowsky.

Enrolled in the course on marine algae are the following: Khwaja Muhammad S. Aziz, Kim Chun Su, Robert H. Scherer, William C. Pinschmidt Jr., Richard Keville, Sally Ann Sapp, Robert A. Rasmussen and Reid D. Wiseman.

Dr. Fluke, assisted by Dr. Roberts is teaching the radiation biology course for high school teachers, which began Monday and continues through Aug. 12.

The course is sponsored by the zoology department and marine lab and supported by the National Science Foundation and the Atomic Energy commission. Only 20 teachers are selected for the course. The major portion of their expenses is paid by the National Science Foundation.

Teachers and the cities from which they come are the following: James D. Boykin, Arlington, Calif.; Laura Pitts Chapman, Baton Rouge, La.

Arthur P. Cooley, East Patchogue, N. Y.; John A. Cummings, Whitewater, Wis.; Edward S. Doehanes, Amherst, Ohio.

Roland R. Goins, Wheeling, Ill.; Daniel C. Gray, North Carolina, Ohio; George Hennings, Hillsdale, N. J.; Arthur D. Meyer, Lakewood, Ohio.

Marcellus C. Miller, Rocky Mount, N. C.; Winnie D. Moore, Charlotte, N. C.; B. Gail Parsons, Bloomington, Ind.

Rachel B. Perry, DeLand, Fla.; King Richeson, Lexington, Ky.; James D. Seitz, Osage, Iowa; William C. Still, Charlotte, N. C.

Edith Wallace, Westwood, N. J.; Darrel Watson, Royal Oak, Mich.; Suzanne R. Wicks, Lebanon, Ill.; and A. A. Wyma, Holland, Mich.

Visiting lecturers will speak each Wednesday night at seminars for Duke Marine lab students. Members of the radiation biology course will hear special lectures Thursday nights.

The second summer term of Duke Marine lab will open July 16 and continue until Aug. 20.

The public auction of lots in Mitchell Village, west of Morehead City, scheduled for Wednesday, was called off. Mitchell Village is being developed by Rochelle Realty Co., Roanoke Rapids.

State's Voters to Select New Governor Tomorrow

Annexation Hearing Yet To Be Reality

Still hanging in mid-air is the question of a hearing on the Beaufort annexation issue.

Scheduled to be aired before Judge Malcolm Paul last week in superior court, the hearing never came off.

Gene Smith, attorney representing persons in areas outside Beaufort who don't want to join the town, said that his clients have agreed to a hearing before Judge W. J. Bundy, resident judge of this district, on a Saturday mutually convenient for the town of Beaufort and the petitioners (G. W. Huntley Jr. and others).

Judge Bundy, in a prior hearing, upheld the petitioners who claimed that the town of Beaufort was not complying with the law in its move to annex outlying areas by ordinance.

In the hope of having the pending hearing before Judge Paul, it was thought that the town was seeking a judge who might differ with Judge Bundy and rule in favor of the town.

Mr. Smith said this week that the hearing, scheduled for last week in superior court, has been "continued."

When the two parties in the matter will get together for the hearing before Judge Bundy is anybody's guess. The annexation problem has been brewing six months.

Two Cars Meet On Highway 70

Two Morehead City men, Lloyd Oscar Crowe and Samuel Lee Hughes, were drivers of cars involved in an accident investigated by Morehead City police Wednesday.

According to police, Crowe was going east on highway 70 near the section base. He started to make a left turn from the right lane and failed to see Hughes' car passing him in the left lane. The left front of Crowe's 1950 Ford struck the side of Hughes' 1959 Rambler.

Damage to Crowe's car was estimated by police at $100 while that to Hughes' car was set at $250.

No charges were filed against either driver by investigating officer Lt. Joe Smith of the Morehead City police department.

Ocracoke Announces Its Program for July Fourth

By ALICE RONDTHALER

Pony penning at 9 a.m. on Monday, July 4, at Ocracoke will be one of the highlights of the day's events. Fifteen of the famous Outer Banks ponies belonging to Boy Scouts of America, Greenville Council, under trusteeship of the Ocracoke Boy Scouts, Troop 290, will be sold at public auction at the annual July 4th penning.

Privately owned ponies will also be put up for sale. Round-up of the ponies will begin early Monday morning, though not as early as in years past, since for the past year the herd has been fenced on National Park land about seven miles north of the village, and the corral is a part of this area.

Visitors to the island for the July 4th holiday will have an opportunity to witness the penning and the sale.

Following a tradition of many years, there will be a flag raising ceremony at the schoolhouse at 11:30 a.m., with a brief program. Immediately after will come the big July 4th dinner in the school library, sponsored annually by the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church. Proceeds of the dinner are used for the work of the society.

Two old-time square dances, one on Saturday night, July 2, the other on Monday night, July 4, will be features of the weekend celebration. In past years there have also been other special events. These, if they materialize, will be announced later.

The Ocracoke ponies to be sold are descendants of a long line of sturdy little horses which roamed the island in years past and at one time roamed the entire Outer Banks of North Carolina. Gradually, to make place for encroaching habitation, the ponies were sold off until about two years ago Ocracoke Island and Shackleford Banks were the only sections where they still ran wild.

A year ago the Ocracoke herd was cut from 60 to about 45, 35 being the ones owned by the Boy Scout Troop. The plan of the troop committee is to reduce the herd this summer to 20, since it has become necessary to provide better maintenance of the range.

Eligible voters of the state are expected to move in droves to the polls tomorrow. Whether they will, remains to be seen.

C. Z. Chappell, chairman of the Carteret county board of elections, says a second primary never brings out voters in as heavy number as a first primary.

In June, families are on the move—vacationing. It's a staunch voter who plans his vacation around a second primary. Voters who change their residence for the summer seldom make the trip back home to vote.

Especially in vacation areas, permanent residents feel that swimming, boating, fishing or picnicking take precedence over casting a ballot. The first primary occurs in May, usually before schools are out. Thus families are still anchored and the adults find it easier to get themselves to the polls.

Votes cast in this county in the May primary totaled 4,963, as compared with 3,565 in the 1954 gubernatorial election. A congressional race involving Skinner Chalk, a Morehead City candidate, heightened interest.

Only four names will be on tomorrow's ballot: for governor, Beverly Lake and Terry Sanford; for congressman, David Henderson and James Simpkins.

The polls will open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 6:30 p.m.

Everyone who is a Democrat and is registered for a general election is eligible to vote.

Counters of ballots in the county's 27 precincts are asked to phone in the vote tally to the sheriff's office, PA8-3772, as soon as possible after the polls close.

Rosemary Green Leaves Jail Under $250 Bond

Released from the county jail Monday under $250 bond was Rosemary Green, Beaufort, charged with slashing Dorothy Simmons, Beaufort, with a single-edge razor blade Saturday night.

Rosemary was arrested early Sunday morning by assistant chief of police Carlton Garner, Beaufort.

The officer said that Dorothy Simmons and her husband, Sam, were parked at Queen and Broad streets. Zedekiah Green, Rosemary's husband, walked up to the car and talked to them, then Sam got out of the car and went to the Chicken Shack to get a drink for his wife.

Officer Garner said that while Zedekiah continued talking to Dorothy, Rosemary came along and told Dorothy to get out of the car, she wanted to talk to her. Dorothy got out and went to her and as she did so, Rosemary reached out and cut a 24-inch gash in her left arm with a razor blade, the policeman says.

Sam took his wife to the hospital where the wound was closed with 45 stitches. Officer Garner spoke to Dorothy at the hospital and then returned to Beaufort to look for Rosemary.

He said he found her and her husband with a group of other people at Pine and Queen streets at 12:30 a.m. Sunday. Officer Garner said he had been drinking. He told her that she was under arrest. When she wanted to know why, the policeman, who is known among his constituents as Chief Lightning, told her that she was drunk for one thing. Then he put her in the back of the patrol car and took her to jail.

He asked her why she cut Dorothy. Officer Garner said she claims that Dorothy and her husband, Zedekiah, were kissing each other while Dorothy's husband had gone to the Chicken Shack.

Rosemary is docketed for trial in county recorder's court.

Traffic was delayed at intervals Tuesday and Wednesday at the Beaufort bridge while repairs were being made to the lock. Rufus Guthrie, bridge tender, reported Wednesday afternoon that everything was back to normal.

Highway Patrol Hopes to Reduce Accident Rate

State highway patrolmen of Carteret are ending this weekend the third of a series of four-day checks in a program to prevent accidents.

The program started statewide on June 9 and continued through June 12. It was resumed June 16 and continued through this past Sunday. During that period Carteret patrolmen warned three pedestrians, made 13 arrests and checked 145 cars in the section on highway 70 from Mansfield Park to the eastern limits of Newport and in the five-mile section from highways 24 and 70 west on highway 24.

This same area will be under constant patrol surveillance through this Sunday. The patrolmen are working in four-hour shifts.

This program, known as Selective Enforcement Patrol, has been undertaken to make the public aware of highway laws and the fact that they are being enforced.

Early in 1960, the state's fatality record was 20 per cent lower than the 1959 statistics. But as of May 18, 1960, the 1960 record was only 12 per cent lower. The number of injuries from motor vehicle accidents is 15 per cent greater this year than in 1959, reports C. R. Williams, director of the patrol enforcement division.

The concentrated program to save life, prevent injuries and accidents centers on those highways throughout the state where accidents frequently occur.

Highway patrolmen in this county are R. H. Brown, W. E. Pickard, W. J. Smith and J. W. Sykes.

Court Banishes Man from Beach

In Atlantic Beach mayor's court Monday night Lee E. Jurgenson, Cherry Point, was fined $5, the costs of court, and was ordered to stay out of the town of Atlantic Beach for a year.

He was charged with public drunkenness, using loud and profane language, and resisting arrest.

Woodrow H. Crenshaw, Princeton, forfeited bond for failure to appear. He was charged with public drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

Leonard H. Horner and David L. Van Horne, Cherry Point, were charged with public drunkenness and paid court costs.

Howard C. Williams of Rocky Mount forfeited bond for public drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

Steve R. Rouse, Snow Hill, forfeited bond. He was charged with careless and reckless driving.

One-Week Civil Court Nears End

Carteret's one-week term of civil court neared its close yesterday. Divorces granted were the following:

Ruby T. Sanders vs. George D. Sanders with the plaintiff paying costs of court; Gerald E. Fields vs. Margaret S. Fields, the mother to have custody of the child, Katharine Elaine Fields, and $77 per month to be paid by the father until further court order. The plaintiff, Gerald Fields, was ordered to pay court costs.

In the divorce action, Larose M. Mann vs. Norma Colleen Smith Mann, a juror was withdrawn and the court ordered a mistrial.

In the action, Anita W. Smith vs. Ronald E. Smith, the mother was given custody of the two children, Steve and Harry. The father was ordered to pay $15 a week for their support.

In the suit, N. E. Day vs. International Paper Co., E. P. Godwin and J. W. Blanchard, the court ordered that certain questions be answered before the case be brought to trial. The suit involves a dispute over land boundaries.

Judge Malcolm Paul is presiding.

Two in Fight Now in Hospital

A Cherry Point Marine and a civilian from Newport are in Morehead City hospital with injuries received early Sunday morning in a fight among seven men on highway 70 at the section base in Morehead City.

The injured are Pfc. Terrell J. Pogue Jr. and Harold R. Pollock, route 1 Newport.

Both are charged with fighting. Others facing the same charge are Pfc. Charles E. Johnson and Pfc. Harry G. Meyer, Cherry Point; Myrval O'Neal Pelletier, William W. Pollock, both of route 1 Newport, and Thomas D. Allen, box 564, Newport.

All are docketed for hearing in Morehead City recorder's court Monday, July 11.

According to Capt. C. E. Bunch of the Morehead City police force, the fight took place between 12:30 and 1 Saturday morning. The Marines claim that they were hitchhiking to Cherry Point when the Newport youths, in two cars, stopped and jumped them.

Officers believe, however, that the fracas was a continuation of a matter that started at Atlantic Beach earlier in the night.

Pogue suffered head injuries and Pollock jaw injuries. Captain Bunch said that the injuries probably were inflicted by a heavy stick.

Police found the Marines near a drive-in on highway 70, after they had been notified of the fight. The Newport boys were found at the hospital getting first aid.

Investigating officers, in addition to captain Bunch, were patrolman J. C. Steele, deputy sheriff Marshall Ayscue and military policemen.

Governor Proposes County Industry Appreciation Days

At the suggestion of Gov. Luther Hodges, Moses Howard, chairman of Carteret county's board of commissioners, proposed Tuesday that the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners endorse and recommend to each county observance of an Industry Appreciation Day.

Governor Hodges, addressing county officials at Morehead City at their 53rd annual convention, said, "A number of communities and counties have, within the last few years, held Industry Appreciation Days to indicate their appreciation for the role their local industries have played in their economic progress. I believe the time has come for the entire state—all 100 counties—to join in such a recognition."

Mr. Howard's proposal was approved and sent to the board of directors for formal action.

Governor Hodges spoke on the role the individual county can play in attracting industry. He urged county cooperation with towns.

Relative to finances, the governor said, "Industries will shy away from the county that cannot prove its financial stability. On the other hand, a county that establishes and maintains a sound fiscal record, and has a record of equitable taxation, will rate high in the estimation of the potential investor."

The governor asked that counties not overlook the value of old established industries within their borders. "Since 1954," he remarked, "we have added roughly 100,000 new jobs to the industrial payroll. Approximately 40 per cent of them have resulted from the expansion of old industries."

In conclusion, the governor said, "It has been a most gratifying experience to work with you during the past five and a half years—an experience that has, in many instances, encouraged me and given me confidence in my own efforts to contribute to the building of a more prosperous North Carolina."

New officers of the county commissioners association are Ben W. Haigh, Wake county, president; R. B. Jordan Jr., Montgomery county, first vice-president; and Berry A. Williams, New Hanover county, second vice-president.

Convention-Goers Tour Morehead City Port Tuesday Afternoon

Two hundred persons attending the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners and Accountants toured the Morehead City port Tuesday afternoon.

Because of heavy rain, the tour was made by bus. At the new warehouse, complete except for installation of a sprinkling system, music was provided by the Marine band from Camp Lejeune. A display showed the growth of the port and its value to the state, and a display of military equipment was set up outside the warehouse.

Refreshments were served by the W. L. Robinson Tobacco Co. and R. N. Rouse Construction Co.

The guests were welcomed by Walter Friederichs, operations manager at the port. Members of the state ports staff acted as hosts.

Military guests included Brig. Gen. Roy L. Kline, Lt. Col. Grider and Captain Langley, all of Cherry Point; Brig. Gen. S. S. Wade and Colonel Dunlap, both of Camp Lejeune.

Persons making the tour saw a new equipment garage going up. In it will be housed the port's rolling stock.

A new fumigation plant is under construction and to increase pumping capacity, pumps in the glycol plant are being switched from gasoline to electric.

Tank cars bring glycol to the port from the DuPont plant at Kingston.

The glycol is pumped from them to storage tank and then from storage tank to ship for transportation to Texas where refinement takes place.

Bids were opened last week on See PORT TOUR, Page 5
