

Beaufort Celebrates 251st Birthday

Sea Pal Sails Taylor's Creek

Laden with pretty sailors, Sea Pal cruises Beaufort waterfront during yesterday's shrimp boat parade.

Some of the Cast . . .

Some members of the cast of the historical drama, Unknown Seas, which is being presented tonight at 8:15 in the Beaufort school auditorium are Anne Clemmons, Joanne Allen, Mrs. Jarvis Herring, Ann Davis, Roberta West, and in the center front, Helen Slater.

Pretty Pirate

This pirate's costume, modeled by pretty Ann Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Davis, Beaufort is symbolic of an episode in Beaufort's history. Spanish pirates invaded the town in 1747. The invasion will be re-enacted at 3 p.m. Saturday on the Beaufort waterfront as a part of Beaufort's gala 251st anniversary celebration.

Delivers Anniversary Address

Rear Adm. Peter V. Colmar, USCG, gave an address from the parade reviewing stand Thursday morning. Admiral Colmar's talk preceded the street parade at 11. He is commander of the Fifth Coast Guard district with headquarters at Norfolk.

Crowd of 3,500 Sees Parade

A crowd estimated at 3,500 saw the fabulous street parade in Beaufort yesterday morning. Everyone who saw it commented, "The prettiest parade I've ever seen" . . . "wonderful parade" . . . "wouldn't have missed it for the world."

Chief of police Guy Springle and many others said they had never seen so many people in Beaufort. The parade started at 11 and ended at noon just as gray skies began to send down a fine shower of rain.

The traffic jam was so terrific, it hadn't cleared until shortly after 1 p.m.

Assisting the Beaufort police force were 29 military policemen and all the officers of the county sheriff's department. Chief Springle said yesterday, "We certainly appreciate their help."

Pictures of the street parade will appear in Tuesday's paper.

Giving the anniversary address between the shrimp boat parade and the street boat parade was Rear Adm. Peter Colmar, USCG, who commented on the growth of this area and the accompanying growth of Coast Guard units and aids-to-navigation here.

Alertness Curbs Fire at Beach

What might have been a serious fire was averted Tuesday night at Atlantic Beach when David Lee, operator of the Pavilion, smelled smoke nearby.

He notified chief of police Bill Moore and the two of them saw smoke coming out around the eaves of Luigi's Do-Nut shop. They pushed in the door, went in and found the compressor smoking.

Wood around it was charred. Chief Moore said they found it just before it was ready to break into flames. They cut the motor off and called the beach fire department. Fire equipment wasn't needed, but firemen stood by until the compressor had cooled.

Mr. Lee discovered the fire about 11:30 p.m. Luigi's is operated by Bruno Marino Sr., Wilmington.

Comics Enjoy Beauty

Two of the clowns in yesterday's street parade, Mickey on the left, and Leonard Allred, talk with Miss Washington, Ann Walker.

Cedar Point Club Invites County Officials to Fish Supper Monday

The Cedar Point Community club has planned an outdoor supper Monday night to discuss the matter of Carteret children attending Onslow schools and the possibility of Carteret contributing to the cost of their education in Onslow.

M. D. Ingram, president of the Cedar Point club, made the following announcement, and comments, this week:

There will be a meeting Monday evening, July 11, at Cedar Point Beach for the purpose of hearing representatives of the Carteret and Onslow county boards of county commissioners and boards of education discuss the attendance and support of Carteret county children at the Swansboro schools.

This meeting will begin at 6 o'clock with a fish stew cooked by Mable Garrett and served to the first forty arrivals at a nominal cost. Any profit will be used to support the Cedar Point fire department.

Recently the Onslow county commissioners announced that they felt that Carteret county should make a contribution to support the education of children attending Swansboro schools from Carteret county. The idea is being circulated that Carteret children will be denied admittance from the tax dollar for their education.

As Carteret county residents who have seen a generation of children from our county educated in Swansboro schools, we are concerned that responsible officials are now using anxious mothers and fathers as pawns to play a power game for money. Some things are just plain right or wrong and this is wrong.

As elected representatives, the county commissioners, working with the local and state boards of

See CEDAR POINT, Page 2

Mayor Appraises Holiday Weekend

A. B. Cooper, mayor of Atlantic Beach, said he was "mighty pleased" with the Fourth of July weekend crowds at the beach.

He estimated that there were twice as many people on Bogus Banks as ever before. The mayor added that he had never seen so many cars. They weren't just at the town of Atlantic Beach but enjoying the sun, sand, surf, and fishing from Fort Macon to Emerald Isle.

Mr. Cooper said he believed the big crowds were the result of the Greater Morehead City chamber of commerce's promotion activities. He also complimented beach police for the efficient way they handled traffic.

Tide Table

Tides at the Beaufort Bar
HIGH		LOW
Friday, July 8
7:35 a.m.		1:41 a.m.
7:57 p.m.		1:48 p.m.
Saturday, July 9
8:31 a.m.		2:33 a.m.
8:51 p.m.		2:41 p.m.
Sunday, July 10
9:27 a.m.		3:23 a.m.
9:47 p.m.		3:33 p.m.
Monday, July 11
10:26 a.m.		4:11 a.m.
10:43 p.m.		4:25 p.m.
Tuesday, July 12
11:22 a.m.		5:00 a.m.
11:39 p.m.		5:18 p.m.

Alleged Rapist Ordered Held Without Bond

William Jerry Willis, Morehead City, charged with raping a 13-year-old colored girl the night of June 25, was bound over to superior court Tuesday. Judge Lambert Morris, recorder's court judge, ordered him held without bond.

The judge's decision followed testimony by the girl, who looked to be at least 15, and by deputy sheriff Bruce Edwards. Willis, a tall reddish blonde man, listened without batting an eye, to the girl's testimony. His attorney, Harvey Hamilton Jr., who later said he had not definitely decided whether he would take Willis' case, did not put Willis on the stand.

The girl told how Willis came to her home in Morehead City and asked for a baby-sitter. Later, he came back and picked her up. Instead of taking her to a house to baby-sit, she said he drove around.

When she asked him where the house was, he said it was not baby-sitting job she was going to do.

The girl testified that she said, "If I'm not going to baby-sit, I want to go back home." She said he stopped the car one time on the Country Club road, or nearby, and tried to attack her, telling her that the other baby-sitter he had never told what happened when he was out with her.

When she pushed him away, he started the car and later stopped the second time. He asked her, "Aren't you going to be fair with me?" and offered her money. The girl said she told him that her mother always told her to get money the honest way by working for it.

When she resisted his advances, he said, "If you're going to get rough, I can get rough, too."

Then he started the car again and went up a side road off the Country Club road. She said she jumped out and he threatened to "blow her brains out with a .45" he had in the car. She testified that he said if he killed her, he would just tell the police it was an accident.

He ordered her to get back in the car. She told him she wanted to go home. She said Willis had been drinking and vomited several times. When she reached in the car to get her pocketbook, which she said was lying on the front seat, Willis came after her and chased her around the car.

She said he grabbed her by her back and they tussled on the ground back of the car. Then he slapped her and told her to get back in the car. She said she did. He asked her how much money she wanted. She testified that she told him she didn't want any.

He gave her $2. "I still have it," she said. He moved the car again, stopped, and started pulling her out of the car. She hung on to the steering wheel. When she started to yell he threatened to "beat her brains out with a pepsi bottle."

She told the court that he slapped her and threatened to kill her and tore the buttons off her skirt. She continued to yell and scream and again he picked up the bottle and told her he would "knock her cold as a cucumber."

When she refused to cooperate, she said he started to choke her, then raped her on the front seat of the car.

Afterwards, when they drove off, he asked if she was going to tell anyone, adding that if she did, the

Duke Open House Visitors Will See Research Exhibits

Folks of Beaufort and the surrounding area are invited to open house at the Duke Marine laboratory Saturday afternoon.

During the open house hours from 3 to 5 p.m. students and research scientists will demonstrate the work they are doing. Beginning at 5 there will be a ceremony to dedicate the new air-conditioned research laboratory and expanded seminar-dining hall facilities.

At 5:45 a picnic supper will be served. Charge will be a dollar per person.

Those attending the open house will see the following demonstrations:

In building 1: grafting experiments in sea water on development of crab eggs; development of crabs in relation to temperature and salinity; experimental diets for crab larvae; time lapse photography of dividing sea urchin eggs.

In building 2: effect of varying concentrations of different elements in sea water on development of crabs; osmoregulation in marine birds, and barnacle larvae and their distribution.

In building 3: plants of the sea—class in marine algae; animals of the sea—class in marine biology.

In building 5: Insect assemblages of salt marsh plants, animals associated with soft crabs, invasion, growth and reproduction of oyster crabs, studies of pigment cells and running activities in the fiddler crab, osmoregulation in marine birds, and barnacle larvae and their distribution.

In building 6: some techniques in cellular physiology; comparative studies on temperate and tropical fiddler crabs, studies in parasitology: life histories and physiology of some trematodes; trematode parasites of Pacific sea-serpent and flying fish; fungi in barnacle eggs; and wood-inhabiting fungi from the sea.

Programs showing the layout of the marine lab campus will be presented to each visitor. The programs also carry a history of the lab, comments on research development and publications, and courses offered in recent years.

Saturday Dance Tickets on Sale

Although no more clambake tickets are available for Saturday night's clambake and floorshow in Beaufort, tickets for the dance are available for a dollar per person.

Mrs. Carrie Lee Hancock, who is in charge of ticket sales, says a few clambake tickets will be available Friday and Saturday for out-of-town guests and tourists.

They may be purchased at the Museum of the Sea, from Mrs. Hancock or Mrs. Margaret Arrington.

Dance tickets may be purchased at the dance as well as from the following stores: Red and White, Bell's Drug and Potter's Dress shop. Music will be furnished by Roland Smith and the Carolina Rhythm Boys.

Persons may also reserve tickets by calling Mrs. Hancock, PA 8-4278 or Mrs. Arrington, PA8-3704.

The clambake tickets for $2.50 each cover the clambake, floor show and dance. The event will be at Beaufort school. The clambake is from 6 to 8 p.m. and the dance starts at 8:30.

Mrs. Iris Styron's Car Hits Ditch Saturday

Mrs. Iris E. Styron, Atlantic, lost control of the 1956 Hudson Rambler she was driving at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and the car went into a ditch. Mrs. Styron was headed east on highway 70.

She suffered bruises, as did Mickey Styron, 13, who was riding with her. Patrolman W. E. Pickard, who investigated, estimated damage at $350.

Restaurant Featured

Capt. Tony Seamon and the Sanitary Fish Market and Restaurant are featured in the June issue of the trade magazine, Restaurant South. The theme of the article is that Captain Tony hasn't raised prices since 1949.