

Why Must I Die? to Start Sunday at City Theatre

By O. J. MORROW
Theatre Manager

One of the most controversial subjects in the newspapers today, capital punishment, is dealt with in the picture Why Must I Die? It provides two of Hollywood's top glamour girls with decidedly off-beat roles: Terry Moore, who has topped numerous star polls, and Debra Paget, who is considered one of the more versatile actresses in Hollywood.

Terry, who sings three of Les Baxter's songs in the film, plays a night club singer with a sordid past, while Debra Paget, who has specialized in playing straight romantic leads, for the first time plays a cold-blooded female "heavy."

This powerful motion picture pulls no punches in attacking a miscarriage of justice, circumstantial evidence, and the harrowing strain under which women, who live under the shadow of the electric chair, exist.

Along with Terry Moore and Debra Paget in this hard-hitting prison melodrama is filmdom's top pin-up girl, Juli Reiding, and one of Hollywood's top character leads, Bert Freed. The picture also introduces the sensational young star, Lionel Ames, who has already been called a young Humphrey Bogart.

Why Must I Die? starts Sunday at the City theatre. Playing mid-week at the City is a double feature about the youth of today, how some parents fail to see the way their children are growing up. Wild Ride and The Girl in Lovers Lane both feature with all star casts.

Ending up the week at the City theatre is another double feature, Five Bold Women, a good western, with story, color, and setting filmed in color, and Snow Queen, one of the first Russian pictures to be played in the United States under the new trade system. This one is a cartoon feature.

Sons and Lovers, Jerry Wald's enthralling CinemaScope adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's largely autobiographical novel, starring Trevor Howard, Dean Stockwell, Wendy Hiller opens Sunday at the Morehead theatre.

The emergence of the Lawrence novel as one of the most eagerly-awaited films of 1960 is entirely due to Producer Jerry Wald. He has always been an admirer of the noted British novelist and purchased screen rights to the book some years ago. Wald's artistic convictions are strongly borne out in this production.

"Each film should be great in its theme," he maintains, "created to make an audience proud of what human beings can do under stress. The story of Sons and Lovers fulfills this requirement as satisfyingly as any story I have known."

True to his theories, Wald (Peyton Place, The Sound and Fury, The Best of Everything, to name a few) wisely decided that the picture should be made in England with a British cast. Dean Stockwell is the one exception, because Wald felt him perfect for the role of the hero, Paul Morel, so he tapped the till of the English talent bank and came up with Trevor Howard, as the drunken father; Wendy Hiller (Academy Award Winner for Separate Tables) as the grasping and dotting mother; Mary Ure as Clara the city lover; and Heather Sears as Miriam, Paul's spiritual love.

Filmed on location in "Lawrence Country"—England, the picture is an amazingly accurate depiction of the novel. The Brinsley coal mine seen in the film is where Lawrence's father worked; the Methodist church is where Lawrence worshipped and taught school. Drury Hill in Nottingham, also seen in the film, is where the real Clara lived. Many of the extras in the film are miners, some of whom worked with the elder Lawrence.

Starting Wednesday at the Morehead theatre is Debbie Reynolds and Curt Jurgens in This Happy Feeling, one of the funniest comedies you'll see this year.

Starting Friday at the Morehead theatre is Marilyn Monroe's latest film, Let's Make Love, which will be reviewed next week.

George Deardour, Morehead City, has received notice from the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles that his driver's license has been revoked, as the result of a drunk driving conviction.
