Hardwood Logs Made Fencing

By F. C. SALISBURY

It would be interesting to know the lumber value, at present-day prices, of the logs of hardwood that went into the making of that long stretch of rail fence, bordering a woodland along highway 24 near the settlement of Bogue.

This stretch of old-time "snake" or "worm" fencing is about the last long stretch to be found in Carteret county. It is part of a fence which at one time enclosed a large acreage bordering the highway and extending to the sound.

In some sections of the state these hand-wrought relics of pioneer days have come to be widely known as antiques and are now collector's items. Occasionally you'll find short stretches of this quaint fencing on the grounds of summer homes, to the entrances to inns, motels and other tourist accommodations, where it is used to add a rustic note to the surroundings.

This was the only type of fence built by the early settlers. They had plenty of trees and plenty of time to cut down and split the trunks into fence rails. The fences usually were made six to eight rails high, with the top rail four or five feet from the ground.

Often they were built higher, to keep deer as well as domestic animals out of the vegetable garden and away from green growing crops. The original rail-splitters would be amazed at the prices their old fences are bringing in some part of the state.

Homebody
Columbus, Ohio (AP)—In 1932, Charles Jones carved his name and the date in the shell of a turtle he found on his father-in-law's farm near here. Recently Richard Yank who now owns the property, found the turtle while plowing. It was about 100 yards from where Jones said he released it 28 years ago.

Student Co-Operative Forms at Newport High

By JENNY LYNN GARNER

Hello!
The past two weeks at NHS have been ones of chaotic campaigning. Candidates for election to office in the newly-formed student co-operative association have really waged an all out campaign — complete with banners, buttons, posters, and stump-speeches.

Just walking down the hall gave one the feeling of being brainwashed! It certainly was good, though, to see such spirited interest taken in the election.

Students elected to office are: president, Patsy Garner, 11th grade; 1st vice-president, Marsha Garner, 11th grade; 2nd vice-president, Rennie Eagan, 9th grade; secretary, Diane Garner, 9th grade; treasurer, Jimmy Aycock, 9th grade; parliamentarian, Lewis Forrest, 12th grade.

The student body is confident that it has chosen wisely and expects great things of the SCA and its officers.

for Youngblood, Joe Garner, James Clark, Lewis Forrest, Sterling Mann and Everett Clark.

The play is under the able direction of Mrs. Dorothy McNeil and everyone is looking forward to its presentation.

At Newport high, the cheerleaders are chosen by the student body. This year's election was an extremely close one because all the girls going out for the cheerleading squad were well qualified.

Those selected are Lillian Boyd, Anne Garner, Jane Henderson, Rochelle Gray, Brenda Cox, Jackie Malone, and Ann Garner.

The cheerleaders themselves select their chief. This year they have chosen sophomore Phyllis Youngblood. Except for Marsha Garner and Phyllis, the remaining girls are newly elected and are practicing diligently in order to be ready for Newport's first basketball game in early November.

The senior class is very happy to report that its barbecue supper was a big financial success, and would like to thank everyone who helped make it possible.

I would like to close Hawk Talk today with the quotation the seniors have selected for their class motto—He conquers who conquers himself.

Newport Scouts Elect Officers

Troop 269, Newport Girl Scouts, had their first meeting Monday. We started the meeting by singing Girl Scouts Together and saying the promise. Then we elected officers:

Treasurer, Karen Potter; scribe, Patty Wilhelmson; Oak patrol leader, Trudy Garner; assistant, Gwenn Spencer; Pinecone patrol leader, Minda Thrower; assistant, Wilada Bailey.

The girls separated into patrols and discussed what they would like to do. Their suggestions were to help clean up the church and to baby-sit. We might go to the old peoples' home near New Bern.

The leaders this year are Mrs. Vera Bailey and Mrs. Alice Spencer. The girls in troop 269 are Wilada Bailey, Minda Thrower, Patty Wilhelmson, Brenda Lawrence, Phyllis Reims, Trudy Garner, Cherry Kay Garner, Karen Potter, Mary Anne McDeed, Johnette Linebarger, Betty Hill, Sandy Savage and Gwenn Spencer.

The meeting was dismissed by the troop leaders.
