'Ma' Taylor Plans to Vote Today, Celebrate Tomorrow

By ELLEN B. MASON

Today Americans will elect a new President. He will be the 19th president to hold office in Ma Taylor's lifetime. Ma, Mrs. N. W. Taylor of Beaufort, will celebrate her 100th birthday tomorrow.

Ma was born Mary Catherine Buckman at 114 Ann St., Beaufort, just after Abraham Lincoln was elected. Her favorite Presidents are Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson.

Although Ma could have voted in 1920, when women were granted that right, it was some time later when she took advantage of the privilege. She emphatically declares that she's going to vote Democratic this election.

"Just say that Ma, her husband, and all her folks have always been Democrats and always will," she said Friday. "Why, I wouldn't know how to be anything else. I want the best man to win, and I know he'll be a Democrat!"

Ma was organist at Ann Street Methodist church when she married Nelson Whitford Taylor Feb. 24, 1881. She and Pa Taylor had been married 67 years when he died in 1948. Shortly after her marriage she transferred her membership to St. Paul's Episcopal church, where she was very active.

The Taylors raised six of their own children, three of whom have died, and three orphans, two of whom are dead. Ma blessed with 12 grandchildren, 28 great grandchildren and six great great grandchildren. The family is a closeknit group and frequent visits are made between its members.

Ma's living children are George Taylor and Mrs. Nannie Hinnant of Beaufort and Cecil B. Taylor of Waban, Mass. The others were Bayard and Nelson Taylor and

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Bryan. Mrs. Mary Thomas of Baltimore, Md., is Ma's "other one."

Ma recalls the War Between the States, Spanish-American war, two World Wars and the Korean conflict.

Ma says she didn't intend to live to be 100. "The years just kept slipping by and first thing I knew, it was my birthday again and I was 99. Now I'll soon be 100." Folks are invited to call on Ma from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. and from 7:30 to 10 p.m. tomorrow to help her celebrate.

A century has faded away but Mary Buckman Taylor doesn't seem aware of it. She looks to the future and the good times it may hold in store for her. And, as Ma says, "A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men."

This is Ma Taylor as she celebrated her 67th wedding anniversary in 1948.
