

175 Democrats Go to Dinner, Hear Lieutenant Governor

Dignitaries at Thursday's Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner were Ronald Earl Mason, president of the county's Young Democrats club; Sen. Thomas White, Lt. Gov. Cloyd Philpott, Dr. Wallace Hyde, executive secretary of the state Democratic party; D. G. Bell, Carteret assemblyman, and Sen. Luther Hamilton.

Petitions Bearing 2,992 Names Placed Before Judge

Petitions bearing 2,992 signatures, supporting county commissioners in their selection of a Bogue sound waterfront site for the county hospital, were placed before Judge Albert Cowper, who heard arguments in the county hospital suit recently at Beaufort.

Moses Howard, chairman of the county board, commenting on the petitions, said, "I appreciate the people supporting us in our decision."

Affidavits, bearing testimony of witnesses in the hospital suit, were scheduled to be placed before Judge Cowper Friday.

One of the petitions, which bore 2,200 names, read as follows: "We, the undersigned residents of Carteret county do hereby heartily endorse the decision of the board to locate the new hospital on the Webb site. We request our county board to use all legal means necessary to insure the construction as soon as possible of the hospital on the site selected."

The other petition contained a summary of "hospital location history with excerpts from the Carteret County News-Times."

Two quotations from October issues of the paper dealt with the announcement by commissioners that they intended to build the hospital at least three miles west of Morehead City, if the voters so directed in the referendum of Nov. 8.

Another quotation in the Oct. 28 issue is from a letter from mayor W. H. Potter of Beaufort. It is quoted in the petition as follows: "The major issue in our county, transcending the National and State political choices, is the Hospital Referendum. There is no issue more important. The 100-bed facility must be built."

"Regardless of location and regardless of personal benefits to doctors, nurses and other employees, the people of our county are the ones who will gain. It is long past time for us to put aside the attitude of 'If I can't, you shan't' that has crippled our area for so many years. . . . This commission (the Medical Care Commission) will decide on space required and on whether or not the site to be decided on meets their requirements."

The petition states that the vote in favor of the hospital was 5,757 for and 2,881 against.

A quotation from the March 7 NEWS-TIMES states that the price of land for the site selected was $914 an acre; $281 an acre for a Webb site at Wildwood, and $1,000 an acre for the Gibbs site, Beaufort.

Following further pertinent quotations from subsequent issues of March and April, 792 signatures were affixed to the petition.

Rainfall Lessens; Winds Blow Hard

Although rainfall in the county slackened off somewhat over the weekend, weather observer Stamey Davis recorded half an inch of rain in the four-day period, Thursday through Sunday.

On Thursday, Mr. Davis recorded .30 inches and on Saturday he measured .15 inches. Sunday's trace amounted to .05 inches. Weekend winds were high. Wind directions and temperature ranges, Thursday through Sunday, were as follows:

	High	Low	Wind
Thursday	58	40	SW
Friday	68	42	NW
Saturday	67	52	W
Sunday	71	58	SW

Lions Meet
The Beaufort Lions club met Thursday night and discussed sponsoring a horse show in the fall. The club sponsored a show last summer for the first time but members felt that a fall date this year would be better.

Duke Lab Gets $18,915 Grant For Institute

Durham — The National Science Foundation has awarded Duke University an $18,915 grant toward support of a summer institute in the marine sciences.

Dr. Harold J. Humm of the botany department faculty is director for the institute, which will be conducted at Duke Marine Laboratory, Pivers Island, Beaufort, July 19-Aug. 23.

Twenty college teachers have been selected, without geographical restriction, from more than 150 applicants, to participate in the institute which is designed to give greater insight into the marine sciences, particularly marine biology. The participants will not be charged tuition or laboratory fees.

There will be general discussions of basic knowledge in the various subdivisions of marine biology. The course will consist of lectures, laboratory, and field work. There will be considerable flexibility to allow each teacher to pursue that aspect of marine biology which he feels will add most to the particular course he teaches during the regular school year, Dr. Humm explains.

Dr. F. C. W. Olson, currently with the Radio Corp. of America at Princeton, N. J., will teach the physical oceanography part of the course. He formerly was oceanographer at Florida State university and later, at the Navy Mine Defense Laboratory, Panama City, Fla.

Dr. A. C. Broad of Ohio State university will teach the marine fauna course. He formerly was assistant director of the Duke Marine Laboratory.

Dr. Humm will teach courses on marine flora and ecology and Dr. F. J. Vernberg, assistant director for research at Duke lab, will teach the course on the physiological ecology of marine organisms.

Couple Rescues Two Teen-Agers

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Simpson, Morehead City, en route north on the inland waterway, rescued two Beaufort, S. C., youths Wednesday. The Simpsons, in their yacht, Silver Spray, spotted the youths, whose outboard motorboat had overturned in choppy waters.

The boys, James Allmond and Bob Glover, were both in their teens. The Simpsons saw them clinging to their overturned boat. A third boy, Gerald Sauls, had started to swim to shore for help. Glover was exhausted and his head was under water when he was rescued.

The Simpsons pulled the two youths into their cruiser, gave Glover artificial respiration, and took them to shore. Glover was hospitalized for the night. Allmond was released after examination.

The three, employees of a local supermarket, had taken advantage of an afternoon off to go boating despite bad weather.

Time Grows Short!

Mrs. A. N. Willis, right, helps register voters at the Morehead City town hall Saturdays. This coming Saturday will be the last day to register. Registering above are Bill Cherry and his sister, Mrs. H. A. Weeks.

By noon yesterday, 761 persons had registered in Morehead City's new registration, according to E. W. Olschner, registrar.

EVERYONE must register if he intends to vote in the election May 2. Having been registered for town elections in the past won't count for this one. You must register again or you won't be permitted to vote.

Morehead City's population count is 5,583. If only half of that number is of voting age and fulfills residence requirements, at least 2,000 more people must register during the coming week.

Unless they register steadily now through Friday at the home of the registrar, 200 S. 34th St., there will be such a rush Saturday at the town hall that people will have to stand in line.

This coming Saturday is the last day registration books will be open. Mr. Olschner urges people to come to his home this week between 9 a.m. and sunset and register!

Representatives of federal, state and private agencies attempted, at a public hearing at the courthouse Friday morning, to provide economic justification for the opening, deepening and stabilizing of Drum Inlet, as required by the Corps of Army Engineers before any decision can be made on the project.

Col. R. P. Davidson, district engineer, conducted the meeting. He said it is hoped that unsatisfactory conditions at the inlet can be improved and remarked that the hearing was being held to give everybody a chance to express their views.

Before any decision can be made, the colonel remarked, the engineers must consider the desire of local citizens for opening the inlet, the cost of such work, the benefits to be derived, and amount of local cooperation.

Drum Inlet was created by a storm in 1933. It lies about half way between Cape Lookout shoals and Diamond shoals. The inlet has not been used since 1955 because it has filled in until it is only a few feet deep.

Fishermen have asked that the inlet be maintained to a depth of 12 feet. Both the bar channel and sound channel are 7-foot channels and the engineers seem hesitant to dredge a 12-foot channel to connect them. Fishermen maintain that a 12-foot channel would remain open longer if dredged to 12, even

A. B. Cooper Wins Election

● 336 Ballots Cast
At Atlantic Beach

● Two Commissioners
Returned to Office

An 82-vote margin returned mayor A. B. Cooper of Atlantic Beach to office Friday. He polled 204 votes to 122 of his opponent, John A. Baker.

Successful candidates for commissioner are R. A. Barefoot, who polled 247 votes; W. L. Derrickson, 199; Charles S. Walters, 159; and Mack G. Smith, 177.

Because Atlantic Beach does not have a permanent year-round group of residents, balloting is done by mail. Names of the winning candidates are sent to the governor who appoints them to office for four years.

A. H. James, clerk of court of Carteret county, is expected to swear in the officials at the next board meeting, Friday, May 12, at the Atlantic Beach town hall.

M. G. Coyle, town clerk, said 520 ballots were mailed to property holders. Three hundred thirty-six ballots were cast, but those that were not signed were not counted. Six fell in this category. On other ballots, some did not vote for mayor and some failed to vote for a total of four commissioners.

Unsuccessful candidates for commissioner are the following: M. D. Foxman, Kingston, 148; Mrs. N. A. Edwards, Goldsboro, 136; J. C. Sherrill Sr., Atlantic Beach, 97; B. G. Wrightberry, Atlantic Beach, 53; J. E. Talton, Atlantic Beach, 52; and Oscar G. Gulley Jr., Tarboro, 50.

Two write-in votes were cast for Leslie R. Sermons and one for S. A. (Red) Horton.

The election returns mayor Cooper to office for his third regular term. Mr. Derrickson and Mr. Barefoot were re-elected. Of the new commissioners, Mr. Smith is a resident of Greenville and Mr.

Congressman Reviews Duties of Homemakers

Home Demonstration club members stretch their budgets by making their own hats. Modeled at the district club meeting Thursday at the Biltmore hotel were hats made by Mrs. Johnnie Hardesty Gray, left, and Mrs. Olivia Nevins, both of Onslow county. Mrs. Gray is a native of Carteret.

CD Director Says 'Be Ready'

Harry Williams, county Civil Defense director, commented yesterday that the revolution in Cuba to unseat Castro might easily spill over into the United States.

Coastal areas, such as North Carolina, would be vulnerable to intentional or accidental attack. He urged that each homeowner store sufficient food to take care of family needs for at least two weeks, keep auto gasoline tanks filled for quick evacuation if necessary, see that auxiliary power units are in working order (flashlights, batteries, etc.), replenish stored water supplies and take any other precautions necessary.

He reminded folks that no aid can be expected from any local, state or federal government agency in less than two weeks after an attack. "You're on your own!"

Ship Destined For Wilmington

Wilmington has been recommended as the site for the battleship North Carolina. The recommendation was made Friday by the North Carolina Battleship Advisory commission after hearing comments from representatives of Beaufort and Morehead City (mayors W. H. Potter and George W. Dill), Southport, and Wilmington.

All three areas had offered sites for the battleship. Final decision on location of the ship will be made by a battleship commission to be appointed by governor Sanford.

It is expected that the permanent commission will launch a public subscription campaign to bring the battleship to the state.

The mayors from this area recommended that the ship be placed at Fort Macon state park.

Mayor Potter said yesterday that Carteret interests were "given two fair hearings," one at Wilmington several weeks ago and again at Chapel Hill Friday.

"If Wilmington is to be the place where the ship is to be located, I'll help them all I can to get it into Wilmington," he said.

Mayor Potter spearheaded the drive to get the ship located at Fort Macon park.

J. P. Mansfield Heads Migrant Ministry Group

The Rev. J. P. Mansfield was elected chairman of the county migrant ministry committee at its recent meeting at the Eure building, Beaufort.

Other officers are the Rev. Corbin Cooper, treasurer, and Miss Evelyn Henderson, secretary.

The committee will meet again at 4 tomorrow afternoon at the Eure building. Anyone interested in the program for migrant farm laborers is invited.

Mr. Mansfield attended Thursday at Raleigh a meeting of the North Carolina Council of Churches. The council has agreed to provide for the migrant minister's use this year a station wagon.

Miss Georgie Hughes, county welfare superintendent, at the recent county committee meeting, explained the homemaker program which is financed by the state welfare department.

To be instituted in Carteret this summer, it provides a woman who works with the migrants, teaching them to prepare balanced diets with the resources at hand, teaches older children how to care for the younger ones, teaches hygiene and other homemaker practices.

The Rev. Charles Kirby spoke recently to a Kiwanis club in Jacksonville and at the conclusion of his talk was given $55 by individual Kiwanis club members who wanted to help with the program.

It was reported that the migrant ministry treasury in Carteret totals $57.93.

Committees were appointed as follows: homemaker committee, Miss Hughes, chairman; L. R. Johnson, S. R. McLendon, the Rev. Ralph Fleming, Mrs. Floy Garner.

Audio-visual committee, R. M. Williams, the Rev. John Cline; financial, Mr. Cooper, Mr. Kirby, Mrs. Silas Thorne; health, Dr. John Gainey, Mr. Fleming, Mrs. Virginia Moore, Dr. W. L. Fulcher, Mrs. Leota Hammer, Mrs. Jethro Quiddy.

Commodity, Mr. Cline, chairman; Mrs. Dan Sadler, Mrs. Sallie Conway, Mrs. Homer Lewis; religious, the Rev. B. L. Davidson, the Rev. E. Everett Lewis.

Sports and recreation, Mr. Johnson; publicity, Mr. Cline and Miss Ruth Peeling; brochure, Mr. Mansfield, Mr. Cooper, Miss Peeling and Mr. Williams.

David Henderson Talks To 400 Women

Congressman David Henderson told members of the 20th district, Home Demonstration clubs, Thursday that it's a good thing the myth about women being the weaker sex has been exploded, because if they were weaker than men, "they could not possibly measure up to the terrific responsibility that is theirs in the 20th century."

Congressman Henderson addressed 400 women of Carteret, Craven, Jones, Onslow and Pamlico counties at the Biltmore hotel, Morehead City. He was introduced by Mrs. Myrtle Swicegood, Raleigh.

The women were greeted by Moses Howard, chairman of Carteret's board of county commissioners.

Mr. Henderson observed, "The housewife of today—even if she does not work outside the home—is expected to be able to cook with the finesse of a French chef, to manage her children as expertly as a child psychologist, to balance the family budget with the exactness of a certified public accountant, to render first aid and medical attention as skillfully as a trained nurse, to be able to change a tire on an automobile, to make minor repairs to complicated electronic equipment, to discuss modern philosophy with her teen-age son or daughter, to keep posted on all the latest styles and fads in clothes, music, speech, and manners, and have a wide knowledge of interior decoration, landscaping, horticulture and dietetics."

"In addition to all of this, she needs a sufficient working knowledge of her husband's business or profession to be able to discuss it with him intelligently."

The congressman noted that since 1920 women have a new responsibility in public affairs: voting. "An uninformed vote is worse than no vote at all," Mr. Henderson said, "and as we know well, many corrupt politicians have perpetuated themselves in office by appealing to the ignorance of many of the voters."

Because women have access to all communications media, they are much more likely to be influenced by a candidate's platform and his stand on public issues than they are by an empty emotional declaration that the candidate is

Marines Will Leave Tomorrow

Camp Lejeune—The 2d Battalion (reinforced), 8th Marines, commanded by Lt. Col. Duane L. Faw, will leave Morehead City tomorrow on operation TRALEX 2-61 to the Caribbean area.

Attached to the battalion landing team are elements of the 2d Marine division's supporting units, including artillery, anti-tanks, reconnaissance troops, and pioneers.

Amphibious landings will be made at Vieques, Puerto Rico, followed by several weeks of extensive training on the island.

The reinforced 2d Battalion is expected to visit several liberty ports in the Caribbean area.

The unit is tentatively scheduled to return to Camp Lejeune June 17.

Law enforcement officers raided a trailer occupied by George Godette Saturday night in Beaufort and confiscated nearly one-half gallon of non-taxpaid whiskey. Godette, who lives in the trailer at 310 Queen St., will appear in county court today to answer to possession of moonshine.

Making the raid were ABC officer Marshall Ayscue; police chief Guy Springle and patrolman Otis Willis of the Beaufort police department and deputy C. H. Davis of the sheriff's department.

Good Neighbor Days Approach In Beaufort

Beaufort businessmen will make available tomorrow their display windows to between 12 and 15 communities east of Beaufort.

The communities will arrange displays showing items made in their area, pictures and other exhibits. The project is a part of Good Neighbor Days, scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

The event is being fostered by the Beaufort Merchants association. It was "stormed out" last fall, when originally scheduled, Hurricane Donna interfered.

J. O. Barbour Jr., president of the Beaufort Merchants association, describes the event as an opportunity for Beaufort and its down east neighbors to become better acquainted. Beaufort's hospitality will be climaxed with a coffee hour from 10 a.m. until noon Saturday at the Inlet inn. Everyone is welcome.

In charge of the coffee hour are Mrs. Leslie Moore and Mrs. W. R. Hamilton.

Edward Barrett Found Guilty

Judge Lambert Morris was lenient Tuesday morning with Edward Barrett, Beaufort, who was convicted in county court on two counts, public drunkenness and assault. The judge didn't send Barrett to the roads because he just came back to town three weeks ago after serving time for assault with a knife.

Barrett was given a six-month suspended sentence for assaulting Lillian Chadwick, and told to pay $10 and costs. The judge told him to stay on good behavior for three years. On the public drunkenness count, Barrett was given 30 days to pay costs.

According to testimony, Barrett snatched Lillian off a porch April 6 on Cedar street, threw her on the ground, choked her and then stood over her "like a bull," Lillian told the court. She said he bruised her neck.

Nelson Lewis, Beaufort, asked for a jury trial. Solicitor Wiley Taylor said Lewis had been summoned to court for failure to remain sober and on good behavior as stipulated in a prior court order.

"Since December," Mr. Taylor said, "he (Lewis) has been in jail three times. He was found guilty of driving drunk and he promised to stay sober for five years. We have agreed to go along and try to work things out, and the court has to date, but this is the last date!"

Lewis's bond for appearance in superior court was set at $500.

Strong Case Presented for Opening Inlet

Representatives of federal, state and private agencies attempted, at a public hearing at the courthouse Friday morning, to provide economic justification for the opening, deepening and stabilizing of Drum Inlet, as required by the Corps of Army Engineers before any decision can be made on the project.

Sen. Luther Hamilton said it is known to Army engineers and laymen that state and federal governments are emphasizing the build-up of economy. It cannot be unwise, he said, to invest a few thousand dollars where the return can be many thousands. By bringing more money to the fishermen, there will be more for them to "chip in to the coffers" of the state and federal government, the senator said. There is every evidence for a favorable recommendation, he concluded.

D. G. Bell, Carteret's legislative representative, said it is just as important to be able to get at the fish as it is to get them to the market. He said that a great majority of boats are not able to fish the grounds in Raleigh bay because they lie between two of the most dangerous spots on the coast.
