

Units to March in Parade Today

Marching in the Armed Forces Day parade at 3:30 today in Beaufort will be the combined honor guard of the Second Wing and air station, Cherry Point.

Chamber's Air Committee Contacts FAA

The aviation committee of the Greater Morehead City chamber of commerce, Ben Alford, chairman, has made three recommendations to the Federal Aviation agency, Washington, D. C., relative to use of air space in this area. The recommendations were made after Mr. Alford conferred with private and commercial pilots who use Beaufort-Morehead City airport. Also studied, Mr. Alford said, were changes now proposed in Air-space Docket No. 60-WA-277.

Since a fatal collision between a private plane and a Marine Corps jet over Morehead City in 1959, local fliers have become actively concerned with the extensive air space restricted for use by military aircraft.

Recommendations made by the chamber of commerce committee are the following:

1. The outer banks from the airport to Ocracoke should not be included in the restricted area, inasmuch as light planes use this route ferrying passengers back and forth to the outer banks. For many residents of the outer banks, this is about the only means of transportation available to them. Also, many hospital patients are flown from the outer banks to local hospitals.

2. Due to several near-misses at less than 1,000 feet over the Beaufort-Morehead City airport, we recommend that the minimum altitude for jet aircraft over or in the vicinity of the airport be established at 3,000 feet.

3. At the present time, private and commercial planes have to obtain clearance via direct line telephone to take off from the Beaufort-Morehead City airport. This direct line is paid for by the Marine Corps.

We recommend the discontinuance of the practice of using this direct line and obtaining clearance for local flights, or flights moving through the controlled area in VFR weather for all flights below 35,000 feet.

Mr. Alford, in the letter to FAA, directed to D. D. Thomas, thanked the agency for its consideration of the matter.

Stewart Daniels to Go To Windsor as Principal

Stewart Daniels, principal of Smyrna school, has accepted the position of principal of Windsor high school in Bertie county. According to H. L. Joslyn, county superintendent of schools, Mr. Daniels had planned to return to Smyrna, but was contacted during the past week by the Bertie county school superintendent relative to the Windsor position.

Mr. Joslyn said no replacement has been found for Mr. Daniels. He expressed regret at Mr. Daniels' leaving, terming him "one of the best principals in the state."

In addition to the parade in Beaufort at 3:30 today, there will be displays of military equipment at the municipal park on Bogue sound, Morehead City.

Included will be aerial photographic equipment, survival and parachute equipment, both of the Second Marine Wing; a combined ordnance exhibit by the Wing and Cherry Point Air Station, and infantry and ground weapons of the Second Marine Division.

The display will be at city park from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Fort Macon Coast Guard station will have open house from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. Visitors will be welcome aboard the Jonquil, buoy tender based at Fort Macon, from noon until 4 p.m. today.

The Coast Guard cutter Chilula, berthed at the state port, Morehead City, will be open to visitors from 1 to 4 p.m. today, tomorrow and Sunday.

Two Arrested for Trying To Steal Items on Car

Two Cherry Point men, Daniel P. Daly and David Ferry, were charged with attempted larceny Wednesday.

Deputy sheriff C. H. Davis said that the two, with four buddies, were apprehended at the North River bridge after they attempted to strip Roy Lewis' 1960 Lincoln at Otway.

Lewis heard someone tampering with his car about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday, ran them off and then called the sheriff's department.

Ferry and Daly, out on bond, are scheduled to be tried in county court Tuesday.

The Whaling Museum Will Open in Beaufort June 1

The museum in the sharpie, Alphonso, Beaufort, will reopen Thursday, June 1, announces Grayden Paul, director. It will have a new name this year, The Whaling Museum.

Mr. Paul said the former name, Museum of the Sea, had little meaning. Because the museum has many of the relics used in whaling during the 19th century on the outer banks, Mr. Paul decided on the name, The Whaling Museum.

The museum will be open weekdays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and from 2 to 6 p.m. Sundays. The admission charge will be 25 cents per person.

Elsewhere in this issue is the second part of a story on whaling, written by Mr. Paul. On display in the museum is one of the backbone sections of the whale, Little Children. Also displayed is the harpoon and gun which killed the whale, the try pot that was used in boiling out the oil, a lamp that burned the oil, the yoke used on the oxen that hauled it and the museum itself is housed in a sharpie, a sailboat like the ones used in towing whales ashore after they were killed.

In addition to whaling relics, there are displayed more than a hundred other objects used by the early seafaring folks of the county. The museum was established last year in conjunction with Beaufort's 251st anniversary celebration.

It is located on the Beaufort waterfront at the south end of Pollock street, between the Inlet inn and the postoffice.

Driver Hospitalized After Monday Accident

Derryl Garner, Newport, was hospitalized Monday after the 1959 Ford he was driving ran off the Nine-Foot road at 6:30 p.m.

Patrolman W. E. Pickard, who investigated, said that Garner was following some Marine trucks. Driver of a truck in the lead signaled that it was OK to pass.

As Garner pulled out to pass, the truck immediately ahead of him also pulled out and Garner had to go into the ditch to avoid a collision, according to the patrolman.

Damage to the Ford was estimated at $200.

D. G. Bell Introduces Bill On City Redevelopment

A bill was introduced in the House Tuesday to allow the use of federal funds in redeveloping blighted areas in the downtown business sections of North Carolina cities and towns.

Rep. D. G. Bell of Carteret introduced the proposal at the request of Governor Sanford.

Mr. Bell said that he was honored to be asked to introduce the bill.

It was one in a series of three bills Sanford plans as organizational tools in his economic redevelopment program.

Mr. Bell said the bill would "clarify" present laws to allow the use of urban renewal funds in redeveloping "commercial and industrial areas as well as residential areas."

"This is essential to the renovation of downtown areas which are the heart of our economic system," Mr. Bell said. "Most slum or blighted areas are adjacent to the business areas of our cities and serve to stifle expansion . . . of the business area."

Governor Sanford urges community, county, and area groups interested in sharing in the federal area redevelopment program to "start moving." He invites them to get in touch

Jaycees Name New Delegate To Convention

At the Morehead City Jaycees meeting Monday night, Joe Beam was appointed delegate to the state convention in Asheville replacing Cliff Lynch who will be unable to attend.

Mr. Beam will attend the convention with P. H. Geer Jr., the club's other delegate. Alternate is L. E. Kelly.

State director Russell Outlaw reported that the national convention will be held in Atlanta beginning June 19 and added that a large North Carolina delegation was expected. Local Jaycees who wish to attend should contact Dr. Outlaw to make reservations.

Morehead City Jaycees are participating in a stamp-saving plan to help finance and promote the state organization at the convention.

John Edwards, football project chairman, announced that Dick Spears will be in charge of the football program this year. Dalmon Lawrence will head the concession stand committee.

President Paul Cordova read a copy of a letter that has been sent to the Guilford College Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of this year's Miss North Carolina pageant. The letter offers the winner of the pageant a week's vacation in Morehead City and Atlantic Beach.

Members were reminded that next week's meeting will be a stag party at Bruce Goodwin's camp near Swansboro. Former Jaycees and prospective members are invited, according to Paul Cordova.

State Buys Land

In conjunction with the state program to conserve and stabilize lands in danger of erosion in coastal Carolina, the state last week purchased Portsmouth land from J. Hanes Lassiter and others for $60,000 and from Donza Lee Morris and others for $28,000.

with his assistant for economic affairs, George Stephens Jr. Said the governor: "The area redevelopment legislation is designed to help progressive groups and areas help themselves by building a firm economic base on which to grow."

Under the act, also called "depressed areas" legislation, areas designated by the federal redevelopment agency will be eligible for grants to construct industrial facilities.

They can also get loans for public facilities, such as water or sewer systems.

Any area can get funds for studies aimed at outlining economic development plans.

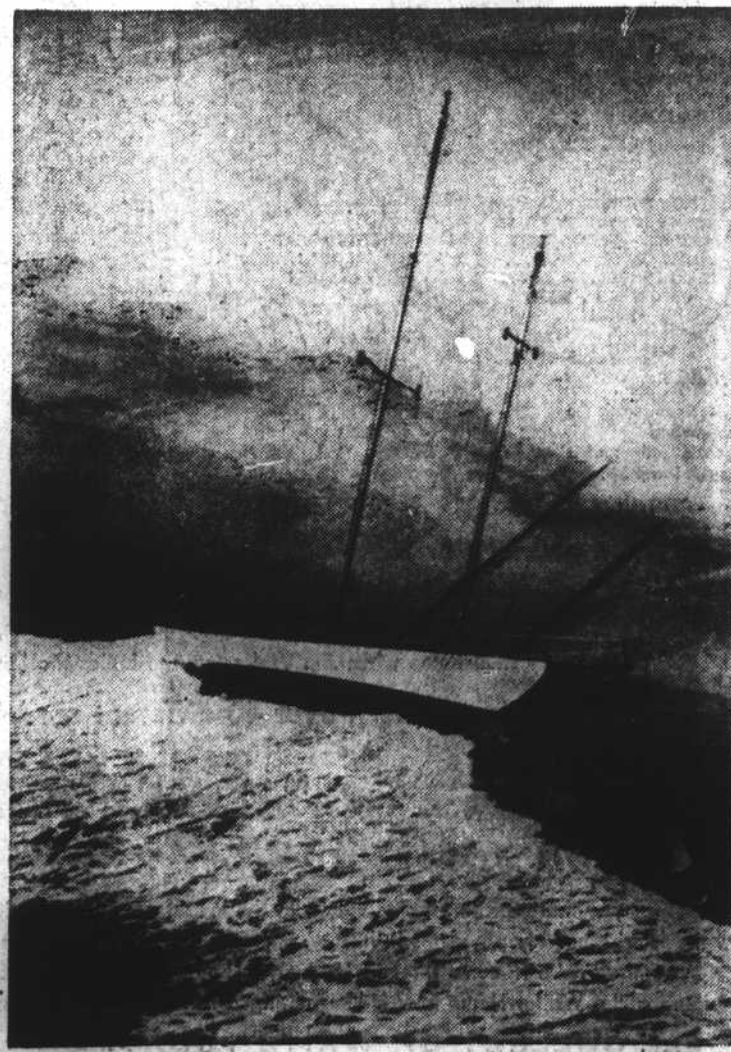

Under the program, funds must be channeled through agencies such as county or community governments, or area development groups.

What constitutes eligibility for the funds has not been made clear by the federal agency.

Sanford said an announcement of the definition is expected shortly.

"Those desiring to make use of funds should make their interest known, so that applications can be submitted as soon as it is determined that they are eligible," the governor commented.

Schooner Founders

Four persons walked away from this schooner after she fetched up south of Portsmouth about a week ago.

A 45-foot schooner with its owner, Tom Nowling, Buzzards Bay, Mass., and three others aboard, fetched up on the beach two miles south of Portsmouth at 3 a.m. last Thursday. The schooner was only slightly damaged and arrangements were being made this week to refloat it. According to Cape Hatteras Coast Guardsmen, the schooner was en route to Plymouth, Mass., from Nassau. The Coast Guard was unable to give an explanation as to why it ran aground. After she went in on the beach, the four aboard her got out and walked to a hunting club at Portsmouth where they phoned the Coast Guard. Portsmouth is located south of Ocracoke on the outer banks of Carteret county.

Craft Vanishes Without Trace

The yacht Calisto III, for which Coast Guardsmen were searching for several weeks recently, has apparently disappeared without a trace. It is assumed to have been lost off Cape Hatteras in April en route to Boston from the Bahamas.

Memorial services were held Wednesday for four men aboard the yacht. The services were conducted in Plymouth Congregational church, Plymouth, Mass., for Alfred De Gozzaldo, 69, Allen Ferguson, 43, and Eugene MacArthur, and Colin Porter of Suffolk, England.

De Gozzaldo was chairman of the board of Roxbury Carpet Co. of Framingham's Saxonville section and the others were associated with the firm.

During the search for the vessel, a Beaufort, N. C., drawbridge tender reportedly saw the Calisto, but this was later believed to be an erroneous report.

Flour Shipment, First Of Its Kind, Comes In

A shipment of tapioca flour, the first to come into Morehead City, arrived last Friday, and has been shipped by rail to the Champion Paper and Fiber Co., Canton, N. C.

Both Southern Railway and ports officials hope this will be the first of many shipments.

The flour company uses the flour in finishing bond paper. The shipment consisted of 450 tons.

Robert D. Darden, Southern Railway freight traffic manager, New Bern, said Southern has been working three years on bringing to conclusion arrangements to have the flour imported here and shipped upstate to the purchaser.

The flour came from Bangkok, Thailand, aboard the Steel Executive of the Ishmian Steamship Line, United States flag. The ship calls regularly at the port with import and export cargoes.

Mother Given Check

Mrs. Bert Brooks, bookkeeper at Morehead City hospital, presented a check for $80 Wednesday morning at the hospital to Mrs. William Godette, Adams Creek.

The check represents part of an amount contributed by NEWS-TIMES readers to help the Godette family whose 9-year-old son, Therman, is fighting lockjaw at the Morehead City hospital, and whose 5-year-old son Daniel, was killed by a car Sunday.

Since the check was given Mrs. Godette, $80 more was received at the newspaper office for the fund which is being collected to help the family meet the financial burdens thrust on it by illness and death.

After Mrs. Brooks gave Mrs. Godette the check Wednesday morning, she went into her son's room and wept.

Doctors noticed some improvement in Therman's condition this week. Unable to move because of the nature of tetanus, the boy was seeming to regain some control of his muscles.

Funeral services for Daniel were held Wednesday afternoon at Craven Corner Baptist church by the Rev. W. O. Moore, pastor. Surviving are the parents, six brothers and three sisters.

At an inquest Tuesday night in New Bern, a coroner's jury recommended that George D. Wetherington of Adams Creek be held for grand jury action in the case. Wetherington was driving the car which struck the child.

Hazel Godette, sister of the dead child, said her brother was partly on the road and partly on the shoulder when he was hit. First reports of the accident said the boy ran from behind an ice cream truck into the path of the car.

Former congressman Graded a scroll by the Neuse Development association Wednesday night at the association's spring meeting at the Biltmore hotel, Morehead City.

The framed scroll, presented by W. B. Chalk, president, was a tangible token of the Neuse valley's "grateful appreciation" of congressman Barden's service to this area.

Mr. Barden, in his address, listed attributes of the Neuse valley and the cities represented at the meeting, Goldsboro, Kinston, New Bern and Morehead City. He told members they should be pleased by the healthy growth of the area and thankful that it had not been a "mushroom growth" bringing many difficult problems.

The elder statesman advised his listeners not to take the excellent government in the area for granted. He questioned overseas spending by the United States and drew applause from the many businessmen present when he criticized government officials, in general, for wasting money.

Former congressman Barden said that if it had not been for several conservatives like himself in public office "I don't know what the wild-eyed liberals would give away."

He said that if the public studied the Neuse valley in the light of what was expected 30 years ago of the area, "we all would be optimistic about what we can do for ourselves."

J. G. Campbell, Goldsboro, was named president of the Neuse Development association for the coming year. The association is made up of citizens interested in the expansion of business and industry in Morehead City, Kinston, Goldsboro and New Bern.

Mr. Campbell succeeds Mr. Chalk of Morehead City, who has served as president of the association since its inception in 1959. Other officers elected were Olin Wright, New Bern, secretary-treasurer; and directors from each of the cities served by the association.

Directors for the Morehead City area are George W. Dill, Moses Howard, S. A. Chalk, Joe DuBois, Thomas Russell, Walter S. Morris and H. S. Gibbs Jr., who will serve as a vice-president. The two other vice-presidents are Charles McCullers, Kinston, and Bob Monte, New Bern.

Mr. Campbell said his goal for the coming year will be a complete survey of what the area has to offer. He said the group must have complete and accurate facts and figures about itself. He asked the members to ask themselves the question, "What kind of picture are we painting of our own community?"

Reports from officers of the association in the different cities were given. Mr. Chalk gave a report from the Morehead City area, combined with an overall report of the association's progress.

Closing his address, Mr. Chalk reminded folks to "always be alert to talk to any leaders in industry who by birth, education, friendship—or otherwise—have some relation with our area. A personal contact through someone whom you know may be the direct approach to obtaining the next industry or business venture."

Both Mr. Chalk and mayor George Dill of Morehead City pointed out that the new convention facilities at the Biltmore hotel should bring much new business to this area.

Approximately 125 people were present for the meeting. They were welcomed by mayor Dill.

The invocation prior to dinner was given by Ely Perry, Kinston.
