

Judge Sends Four to Higher Court Tuesday

Judge Lambert R. Morris Tuesday found probable cause in four cases brought before him in county recorder's court and bound defendants in all four cases over to the next term of superior court under bonds of $500 each.

The four defendants were Will Owens, Guy Walter Herring Jr., Rudolph Sparrow and Walter Thomas Kennon. Owens was charged with larceny, aiding and abetting in forgery and conspiring to cheat and defraud. The warrant for Owens said that he paid Dora Mann to steal a check and then cashed the check himself. Mrs. Mann is already serving six months in woman's prison for her part in the theft.

Guy Walter Herring Jr., charged with manslaughter, was the driver of a car that wrecked on the Nine-foot road, Newport, last August, killing W. B. Allen Jr., Newport. Rudolph Sparrow, charged with forgery, allegedly forged another person's name to a check which he cashed. In the fourth case, bound over to high court, Walter Thomas Kennon, Newport, was charged with breaking, entering and larceny.

Fourteen cases against speeders were processed. Defendants paying costs for exceeding the speed limit were William Larry Sharps, Everett J. Honeycutt, Walter H. Pierce, Robert G. Walker, Annie Lawrence Willis and Nancy Gas-kill Josey.

Charles F. Brown paid $2 and costs, James Leo King paid $5 and costs and Robert Harrison Gray and Carl Deleon Fulcher paid $10 and costs. Paying $50 and costs for speeding was Edward C. Buck and forfeiting bond on the charge was Clyde Wilson Fulcher. Joseph E. Peters and Norman F. Smith were not prosecuted.

Other defendants, their charges and the findings of the court were as follows:

Milton O'Neal, assault, not prosecuted.

Linwood E. Salter, having improper steering equipment, one-half court costs.

Ray Colon Salter, having no operator's license, remanded to juvenile court.

Eloise McCarty, issuing worthless checks. The defendant requested a jury trial and the case was transferred to the next term of superior court.

Donnie Lewis, non-support, not prosecuted.

Clifford L. Williamson, having no operator's license and driving on the wrong side of the road, not prosecuted.

Griffin Cannady, having improper registration, not prosecuted.

Board

Street Methodist church, also located in the same block, said that his church was in favor of the property being rezoned funeral home only or remain residential.

The board decided to put the lots in question in the "restricted commercial area" classification, zoning it for funeral home use only, and further stated that the zoning ordinance relative to use of signs shall be complied with in that area.

According to town attorney Claud Wheatly, the funeral home moved there from the causeway after Donna and neighbors signed a statement saying they had no objection to its location there.

The business area on Cedar street was widened from 110 feet to 220 feet on both the north and south side of the street. Mayor W. H. Potter, prior to the board's action, read a statement recommending that the proposal be sent back to the zoning commission.

The commission had recommended that the business zone be widened.

Mayor Potter said he was speaking as a private citizen and felt that property owners along Cedar street would not be in a position "to pay taxes on business property." The mayor said he had no objection to widening the business zone where "business is already set to go."

Mr. Taylor said that he is a property owner on Cedar street and a business depth of 110 feet is too little to encourage business people to acquire the property. He suggested that if property values are increased, people who may not be able to pay the taxes would sell and thereby open the area for business development.

"The price people are asking for property on Cedar street is exorbitant," Mr. Taylor said, "and if you let them go on owning it for nothing, they'll keep it and it never will be opened for development."

The town attorney commented that taxes are based on market value, not zoning. (The county tax office states that the way an area is zoned does not always affect property valuation. If vacant property is in a business zone, it is considered business property; if a home is in an area zoned for business, it is given a residential valuation.)

It was pointed out that Front street property, on the water side, is decreasing in value, and the town would do well to compensate for the tax loss in other areas, if feasible.

The board went into executive session to make its decision. The decision for rezoning the area to business for 220 feet on either side of the street was unanimous.

Attending the hearing, in addition to those mentioned, were town commissioners John Jones, Frank Morning, Earl Mades, W. R. Hamilton; Manly Mason, Henry White, H. D. Paul, Gerald Woolard, B. J. May, Glenn Adair, and the Rev. Billy Mobley.

Good News About

With a county-wide 4-H Development Fund campaign getting under way, I feel sure many people will want to know "just what 4-H is all about." For this reason, I plan to review, through this article, some fifty years of 4-H club work in North Carolina. This will take several "continued" articles and will require a few weeks to complete the story.

The "big county-wide 4-H project" mentioned above is a fund raising campaign for the prime purpose of raising funds to build a 4-H camp in this county. A site for the proposed camp has been selected and approved by the state 4-H camp site selection committee. The site is a 125 acre tract of land bordered by Adams Creek, located near Merrimon.

The proposed camp will house 150 4-H boys and girls per week for a period of at least 10 weeks each summer. A drawing of this camp was on the front page of the Nov. 24 issue of THE NEWS-TIMES.
