Leaf Markets Open Today

- ASC Rules on Two Farms at Newport
- Discount Variety There, Agency Says

Tobacco markets in the eastern belt open today, with untied tobacco going on the floors for the first time in an experimental sale to last for the first five sale days.

The untied tobacco will be confined to lugs, primings and non-descript grades. The untied tobacco is supported at $6 a hundred under the regular support price for the grade. The loose leaf sales held on the border belt averaged $50.18 per hundred.

The sales opening means half the normal support price for a number of farmers decreed to have discount variety tobacco, including two from Carteret county, Sam Garner and John I. Smith, both of the Newport area.

The state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee ruled Friday that 14 farmers in Eastern North Carolina had the discount tobacco, which is sold on a "blue card," and allowed only one half of the support price for the grade.

The so-called discount variety tobacco was found on farms in Columbus, Wake, Johnston and Carteret counties. The farms in Carteret involved approximately eight acres of tobacco.

Farmers with the disputed tobacco assert that the tobacco was grown from seed of an accepted variety, and that unusual weather conditions caused the characteristics of the discount varieties.

The state ASC committee has announced its intentions of classifying all tobacco that has discount variety characteristics as discount tobacco, regardless of the seed origin.

Appeals are pending before the state committee for 18 more farms in the state. The 14 growers whose appeals have already been turned down by the committee have reached the limit in attempting to save their tobacco without going to the courts.

Home Economics Teachers Meet In Beaufort

The five-county group of vocational home economics teachers met with their supervisor, Mrs. Mabel Hall, Wednesday in the Eureka building, Beaufort. The teachers, from Carteret, Craven, Beaufort, Pamlico and Hyde counties, elected Mrs. Harry Mizelle, Newport, chairman for the 1962-63 school year.

In addition to electing officers, they planned the coming year's work.

Mrs. Louise Cook, Washington, was elected vice-chairman; Mrs. Charlotte Whitford, Pamlico County, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Louise Burtlesoe, West high, Swanquarter, district I advisor; and Mrs. Hannah Beasley, Smyrna, district II advisor.

Committee members: publicity, Mrs. Birchie Johnston, Belhaven; Mrs. Pauline McIntosh, Atlantic; Mrs. Blanche Dudley, England; Mrs. Nell Hill, Vanceboro.

Community development representatives: Mrs. Dudley, Mrs. Mizelle, Mrs. Nell Hill, Mrs. Eunice Dixon, Mrs. Pauline Robbins.

Evaluation committee: Mrs. Carolyn Ballard, Washington; Mrs. Rachel Swindell, Bath; and Mrs. Nancy Paul, Aurora.

Program committee: Mrs. Margaret Fischell, New Bern; Mrs. Robbins, Mrs. David Beveridge, Beaufort; Mrs. Louise Cook, Washington.

During the morning of the all-day meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Beveridge. The teachers had lunch at the Sanitary restaurant, Morehead City.

Following luncheon, program suggestions were given the program committee.

Future meetings will be Sept. 22, Nov. 17, and March 9. The places will be announced.

Dates Announced
Registration for students planning to enroll in St. Egbert's school, Morehead City, is Friday, Aug. 31. School will open Tuesday, Sept. 4, the day after Labor Day.

His Children Help 9-Year-Old Boy

Without quick action by US game management agent Malvern Cecil, Beaufort, Mrs. Joseph Parker, wife of a professor of biology at North Carolina college, Durham, might be dead today.

Mr. Cecil and Charles Lewis, Marshallberg, pulled Mrs. Parker from the water at the west side of Pivers Island at 9 a.m. yesterday. She was floating face downward. Mr. Cecil administered artificial respiration on the shore and Mrs. Parker started breathing in about three minutes, the game management agent said.

She was rushed to the Morehead City hospital in the Beaufort rescue ambulance.

According to Mr. Cecil, Mrs. Parker was in swimming with her son, Joseph Jr., age 9, when he got into water over his head. Another younger son was reportedly on the shore. Mrs. Parker went after the 9-year-old and she got into trouble.

It was then that Mr. Cecil's two children, Debby Lou, 14, and Joe, 10, got the boy back to shore, then ran to their father's office nearby to get their father to help Mrs. Parker.

Lewis was passing by in his car at the time, Mr. Cecil said, and they both went into the water to get the woman. At the time, she was in water slightly more than waist deep.

The incident happened in the area where Pivers Island residents and students swim, but Mr. Cecil said the Parkers were beyond the roped off area.

Mr. Parker is a student at the institute for college teachers now being conducted at Duke marine lab. While he is enrolled in the course, the Parkers are living at 1410 Bay St., Morehead City.

Submarine, Destroyer Will Arrive Friday

Carteret residents will be treated to a visit by both a submarine and destroyer of the Navy this weekend. The commanding officer of the sub, Harder, is Lt. Cdr. Jay Ky Beam, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Beam, Beaufort. Commanding officer of the destroyer is Cdr. J. L. Rice.

The submarine and destroyer are scheduled to arrive at the Morehead City port Friday and will remain through Sunday. Visiting hours aboard both will be from 1 to 5 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

Ship's personnel will escort visitors on guided tours. Local folks who may wish to entertain any of the members of the submarine or destroyer's complements are invited to do so. They should contact the state port office, Morehead City, and leave messages for the commanding officer of either the submarine or the destroyer, according to Phillip Bullock, manager of the greater Morehead City chamber of commerce.

The visit of the vessels is the culmination of a request for such a visit made many months ago by the chamber. It was particularly requested that the Navy arrange for commander Beam's submarine to visit his "hometown" port.

The American Legion, Carteret Post No. 99, is planning a seafood dinner for officers sometime during the visit. Commander Beam's father is a past commander of the post.

Shrimp Trawler Picks Up Three Capsize Victims

- Outboard Flips Over In Squall Friday
- Attempts to Save Boat Fail

The shrimp trawler Beveridge, captained by David Beveridge, Beaufort, rescued three people who were thrown from an outboard motorboat Friday afternoon at 1:30, when the outboard capsized.

The rescue was made in the ocean at the entrance to Morehead City channel in the vicinity of buoy No. 4, according to Lt. A. K. Manthous, commanding officer of Fort Macon group. The Coast Guard sent its 30-footer from Fort Macon to the scene.

Taken aboard the Beveridge was the owner of the outboard, Ray Barbee Jr., Kingston, and two persons who were with him. Their identity was not known. Barbee was later removed from the Beveridge to the 30-footer.

The information on the capsizing was radioed to the Coast Guard station by the trawler, Miss Beaufort. The Beveridge, which was in the vicinity, was in position to make the rescue.

Lieutenant Manthous said a freak squall came up. The barometer dropped suddenly. It started to rain and the water became quite rough, causing the small outboard to flip over.

The rough water made it extremely difficult to get a line around the capsized boat. The 30-footer, commanded by third class

Owners Asked To Trim Bushes At Intersections

Twenty-one intersections in Morehead City are overgrown with shrubbery at the corners, creating hazards for motorists, according to chief Herbert Griffin of the city police force.

Chief Griffin said that property owners are asked to prune the shrubbery within 10 days (by Thursday, Aug. 30) so that traffic will be visible or the town will remove it.

The "blind corners" affected by this request are the following: 14th and Arendell, south side; 14th and Shepard, southwest side; 15th and Shepard, southwest side; 16th and Arendell, southwest side; 16th and Evans, northeast side.

Sixteenth and Shackelford, northeast side; 17th and Evans, northwest side; 20th and Arendell, northwest side; 20th and Evans, southwest side; 20th and Shepard, northeast side; 21st and Shepard, northeast side.

Thirty-second and Arendell, 28th and Evans, 23rd and Arendell, 23rd and Bridges, 22nd and Bay, 21st and Bay, 16th and Arendell, 10th and Bridges, 7th and Fisher, and 7th and Bridges.

Cooks Invited To Enter Dishes

In conjunction with the crab derby at Long Beach Saturday, there will be a contest among the ladies to determine who can make the best crab cakes and deviled crab.

Dan Walker, town manager of Long Beach, says he's anxious to know "which ladies, Brunswick or Carteret, are the best crab cooks." He assures the Carteret entrants "unprejudiced judges."

A community kitchen will be available at the Lorraine motel so that the cooks can prepare their dishes there. Mr. Walker says. He says they should be sure to have enough so that the judges will have a sufficient amount to taste!

Elmer Willis, Williston, is taking Lord Calvert, the Fabulous Fishermen entry in the Crab Derby, to Long Beach for the race.

Taken to Hospital

Harold Banks, Havelock, was taken to Memorial hospital, Chapel Hill, Saturday night in a Bell-Mund ambulance suffering with convulsions. Mr. Banks, a victim of hemophilia, was transferred from the Cherry Point dispensary.

Committee Acts Yesterday At Snow Hill

Luther Hamilton Jr., Morehead City attorney, was unanimously selected yesterday as the Democratic candidate for solicitor of the fifth district.

Mr. Hamilton faces no opposition in the November election.

He was selected as the candidate yesterday morning at Snow Hill during a meeting of the Democratic solicitorial executive committee. The former candidate, Cecil May, New Bern, withdrew last week after he was convicted on four counts of income tax evasion in Wake county superior court.

The only other person mentioned as a possible candidate was Charles Whedbee, Pitt county, judge of Greenville's recorder's court.

On the first ballot the vote was 10 to 2 for Mr. Hamilton and on the second ballot, 12 to 0. It is presumed that the two representatives on the committee from Pitt county, as a courtesy gesture, voted the first time for their candidate, judge Whedbee. (Pitt has at present a Greenville resident on the superior court bench, W. J. Bundy.)

Attending the meeting was Harvey Hamilton Jr., Morehead City, and Mrs. Vance Fulford Jr., Beaufort, both members of the solicitorial committee. Joe Horton, Snow Hill, was named chairman of the committee by state Democratic party chairman Bert Bennett Thursday.

The decision as to May's successor had to be made yesterday morning because yesterday afternoon was the deadline for getting candidates' names to the state board of elections for printing of absentee ballots.

Mr. Hamilton said yesterday, "I'm proud to have received the appointment and if elected will try to serve the office with dignity, and to the best of my ability."

Mr. Hamilton, who will succeed Robert Rouse Jr., Farmville, will begin his duties in January. His term of office is four years, not two as reported Friday. At present he is serving as county attorney in this county.

T. J. Price Presents Paper

Thomas J. Price and Frank T. Carlson, fishery biologists at the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries Biological Laboratory, Pivers Island, Beaufort, attended the third seminar on biological problems in water pollution last week at Cincinnati, Ohio, according to G. B. Talbot, director of the laboratory.

Mr. Price, who is associated with the radiobiological program under the direction of Dr. T. R. Rice, presented a paper entitled "Accumulation of Radionuclides and the Effects of Radiation on Molluscs."

Mr. Carlson, a staff member of the menhaden program under the direction of Fred C. June, attended as a participating scientist.

The seminar is conducted annually at the Robert A. Taft Sanitary Engineering center, a US Public Health Service laboratory. Participants include the country's leading authorities on water pollution and scientists concerned with related problems.

Mr. Hamilton said yesterday, "I'm proud to have received the appointment and if elected will try to serve the office with dignity, and to the best of my ability."

Frank Langdale Speaks to Club

At the regular meeting of the South River Junior 4-H club Tuesday night, Frank Langdale of the Carteret-Craven REA gave an interesting talk on electricity. Mr. Langdale hopes to meet with us again Sept. 14 to show a film and also to begin our workshop.

We were glad to have three visitors with us and will welcome them as future members.

On Sunday afternoon a group of the junior and senior members, assisted by their leaders, Mrs. Marsha Tosto and Mrs. Mary Willis, made a door to door campaign to get funds for a needy family. We collected $73. The club members thank the community for their gifts.

The president, George Willis, called the meeting to order. We said the pledge of allegiance to the flag and to the 4-H flag. Devotional leader Gloria Pittman read the devotion. Kathy Pittman, secretary, read the minutes and took up the offering.

The meeting was adjourned and Mrs. Clarence Mason served refreshments.

It is estimated that $130 profit was made Saturday night at the pie party at Carl Edwards' store. Proceeds will go to the 4-H camp. —Gene Mason, Reporter

Board Rejects Resignation Of Marion Mills

Morehead City's board of commissioners met Thursday, and adjourned less than an hour later in a meeting that probably set a record for brevity.

Fast handling of the matters at hand and a relatively small amount of new business was the reason for the short meeting.

The board voted not to accept the resignation of Marion Mills of the Morehead City board of adjustment, and requested Mr. Mills to stay on the board for one more year.

The board, in discussion of the resignation, felt that at the present time it is in the town's interest to retain as many of the old board as possible.

Commissioner D. J. Hall reported that the city fire alarm system had been shifted from battery operation to standard electric current, with new batteries to be used on a standby basis for emergencies.

Mr. Hall also stated that the fire department was planning to begin work on the fire alarm boxes in the future, rewiring them and doing a general overhaul. Approximately $1,500 would be needed for the work, which included trimming of tree branches away from wires.

The board also granted requests for street lights at the entrance of Park Drive and on East Alley between Shepard and Evans streets.

The board also heard that new directional signs had been put up at the approaches to the cemetery.

After adjournment, commissioners made a brief visit to the fire department to inspect the new alarm system and the department in general. Firemen have been overhauling fire equipment and the department quarters, and had issued an invitation to the board for a visit.

Presiding at the meeting was mayor George W. Dill.

65 Readers Get Certificates

The summer reading club conducted at the Webb Memorial library, Morehead City, was brought to a close Friday morning. Sixty-five participants of the club were awarded certificates of merit for having read the required number of books during the session of the club.

Presentation of the awards was made by Mrs. Virginia Bradbury, librarian of the juvenile department. She complimented the winners for their faithful interest in the club as well as their prompt return of all books.

Robert Cummins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cummins, Morehead City, received a special book prize for reading the largest number of books, forty-two. Ice cream and cake was served in the social room with a take-home lollipop.

This is the fourth year that the library has conducted a reading club. Mrs. E. A. Council, librarian, announced that the club would be conducted again next year.

Trash Fire
A trash fire back of Sound Appliance Co. got prompt treatment from Morehead City firemen Friday night. The alarm went in at 8:37 p.m., and the fire was out shortly after the firemen arrived.

Hunter Found Guilty of Injuring Federal Game Agent with Automobile

Lloyd H. Mason, 35, Atlantic, was found guilty in federal court at New Bern Thursday of assaulting Malvern Cecil, Beaufort, with an automobile. Mr. Cecil is a United States game management agent.

Mason was fined $500 and placed on probation for a year. He waived jury trial and was sentenced by judge John D. Larkins.

The assault took place at 2:30 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 18, on the road between Cedar Island and Atlantic. According to Mr. Cecil and state wildlife protector Reuben Crumpton, Mason attempted to run down Cecil as Mason, and Clyde Mason Jr., also of Atlantic, tried to escape arrest for taking duck in closed season and for firelighting.

When Cecil was struck by the car, he was flipped on the hood and the car stopped only when Cecil fired through the windshield. The game management agent suffered a broken bone in his ankle and a neck injury.

He was discharged from Sea Level hospital in March and was on crutches until the latter part of May. Although back on duty, he has not yet retained normal use of his leg. (Mr. Cecil saved a woman swimmer at Pivers Island yesterday. See story this page.)

The maximum penalty for assaulting a federal agent is $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison.

Immediately after Mason and his companion were arrested in February, they pleaded guilty before US commissioner Eleanor G. Howard, New Bern, on charges of hunting duck out of season and taking them by means of artificial light. Their fines were $500 each and a year's probation on those counts.

During testimony Thursday, Cecil said he was carried 100 feet on the hood of the car. When he fired through the windshield, the car stopped, he fell to the ground and fired again.

Mason claimed he did not know the men were federal agents when they approached him and Clyde Mason as they were preparing to return home from hunting. He said he climbed in the car and started to drive off.

He could not see through the iceed windshield, he asserted, and did not know he was being pursued. He said he stopped the car when glass from the windshield hit him in the face.

Atlantic Air Field Serves Well, Even Though Strip Obsolete

By SSGT. H. CALDWELL and SSGT. H. DUKE

Cherry Point—Forty miles southeast of the Marine Corps Air station, Cherry Point, lies Atlantic airfield, an "ancient" World War II airfield now abandoned except for a lone Marine caretaker.

Yet today, this obsolete landing strip serves in a vital dual capacity as an emergency landing field—and more important, as the site of Rocket Range Two, a rocket-bombing range for squadrons of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing.

While the landing field is manned by a single Marine, the rocket-bombing range area is manned by five Cherry Point Marines of the Station G-3 section. Overseers of the five-man range crew are Capt. Billy M. Owen, head of the gunnery range section, and GySgt. Jerry E. Ramsey, NCOIC, who act as a liaison between the wing squadrons and the range personnel in scheduling rocket-bombing practice.

A scheduled practice bombing mission means many hours of tedious work to the five-man range crew who rise before dawn to make the 40-mile trip to the bombing range.

The gunnery mission is a full day of activities beginning at 9 a.m. and ending at 9 p.m. But, before the gunnery activities begin, the range crew must be on hand hours before the first bomb falls to check and service the generator that supplies power for the radio and lights in the control houses, and to make sure that all equipment is in top working condition. This is an absolute must on all gunnery missions. Other important details must also be taken care of before the squadron arrives for the day of firing.

Prior to the arrival of the planes, a range officer and assistant range officer, furnished by the squadron utilizing the range, get together with Sgt. John E. McCarthy, range chief, to discuss the number of flights to be made and the types of ordnance which will be used. This information is then relayed by sergeant McCarthy to his spotters, Lt. Col. Samuel G. Ruden and Pvt. Walter T. Volante, positioned at the two rake or spotting houses, each 1,000 yards from the target.

Now, preparations are followed by action. The bombing mission is about to begin.

As the squadron's planes approach the rocket area, the leader of the first flight calls in, verifying his position and his bomb load. A visual check is then made by the range crew to determine that no stray aircraft or personnel are in the danger area. If all is clear, the "commence firing" command is given by the duty range officer. High angle bombing comes first, using small practice bombs containing a small shotgun charge that explodes on impact, giving off a puff of smoke. This smoke is used to aid in spotting the hits.

Meanwhile, a member of the range crew, Pfc. James L. West, is in his position by the window of the control tower. On the window of the edge of Morehead City harbor.

Ship Pumped Out; Tugs Move Her to New Spot

The remains of the tanker, Potomac, have been pumped out and yesterday she was shoved by tugs to a more convenient point for cutting her up.

At 1:30 p.m. yesterday, the tanker was lying almost due south of Radio island, several thousand feet from her former resting place at the edge of Morehead City harbor.

Governor Names Five County Residents to Commission

Five Carteret residents were appointed Friday by Gov. Terry Sanford to the Outer Banks Seashore Park commission.

They are Leslie Moore, Cape Lookout marina operator; Tony Seamon, Morehead City restaurateur; Miss Alida Willis, Morehead City, medical secretary; Harvey Smith, Beaufort, menhaden plant owner and operator; and Monroe Gaskill, Cedar Island businessman.

Mr. Moore formerly operated a motel at Atlantic Beach. Mr. Seamon is one of the owners and operators of the Sanitary Fish Market and Restaurant, is a former member of the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries commission and has been honored on several occasions with state and national restaurant awards.

Miss Willis is secretary to Dr. John Morris, who was recently appointed medical director of the North Carolina Industrial commission. She is a member of the Carteret Business and Professional Women's club and recently promoted sale of seafood cookbooks published by the State Department of Conservation and Development.

Mr. Smith has menhaden interests throughout the world and is past grand master of the North Carolina Masonic lodge.

Mr. Gaskill is an experienced commercial fisherman and is a member of the state commercial fisheries advisory committee. The Outer Banks Seashore Park commission has been established to work for the preservation of North Carolina's unique shore line.
