

Loans from Individuals to Build Newport Medical Center

Money Will Not be Gift, Chairman Bell Emphasizes

There are still a lot of people who think they are being asked to give, rather than loan money for a Newport Medical Center.

J. Stancil Bell, chairman of the fund-raising committee for the center, says that to correct that thinking a letter is being sent to as many persons as possible in the Newport area.

This letter, to be distributed this week, will be followed by calls at homes by committee members.

Forty thousand dollars for the medical center (plans are shown in the accompanying drawing) is needed, but construction will start as soon as $25,000 is obtained, Mr. Bell says.

To each person who lends $25 or more a loan certificate will be given. The loan will not bear interest, but it will be repaid, funds for repayment coming from the doctor, or doctors, who rent the medical center.

By the end of this month, the fund raising committee hopes to have in hand or have promised the $40,000.

In the letter to Newport residents and communities of the Newport area, Mr. Bell points out that construction of a medical center was undertaken only after a survey, which required a year, was made by the Sears Roebuck foundation.

The survey determined that the Newport area can support a doctor, that such medical service is needed, that almost $90,000 is spent annually with doctors in other areas, for medicines and for gas and oil to make the trips to out-of-town doctors.

In addition, on such trips to other towns, Newport area residents spend approximately $32,000 a year for groceries and supplies.

Mr. Bell states that after the necessary money for a medical center is raised, the Sears Foundation will continue its help by assisting in finding a doctor or doctors to locate in Newport.

Dr. Manly Mason, who practices in Newport and has reached retirement age is 100 per cent in favor of the project, Mr. Bell points out.

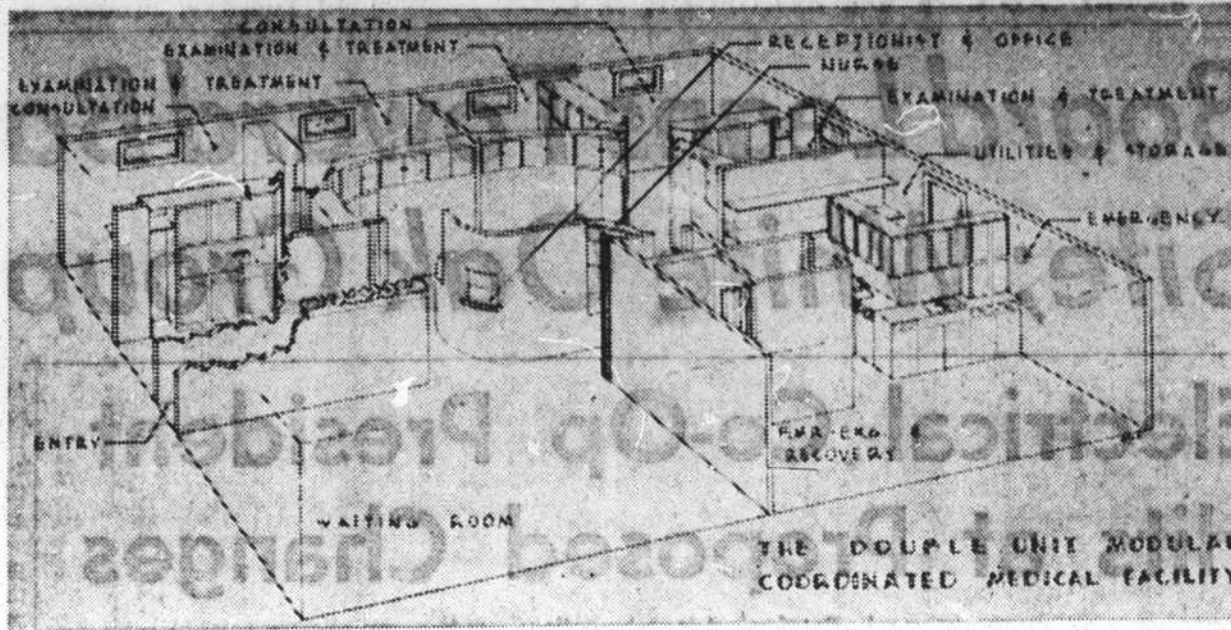

In addition to providing a much-needed health service in the area, Mr. Bell points out that the medical center would be stimulant to growth and more business.

To supervise construction of the center and fund-raising, a non-profit organization, Newport Medical Center, Inc., has been set up. Until the fund-raising goal is reached, the following are serving as temporary officers: Wallace B. Hill, president; Leon A. Mann, vice-president; and R. K. Montague, secretary-treasurer.

After the $40,000 is obtained, holders of loan certificates, or "stockholders," will elect permanent officers.

In the face of all the bickering about a county hospital or a repaired Morehead City hospital, this project is very important to the Newport communities, Mr. Bell observed.

Cossacks are a pastoral people who developed a warlike way of life. Their name derives from a Turkish word meaning adventurer or disturber of the peace.

These are the plans for a medical center at Newport, as recommended by the Sears Roebuck Foundation. The center will be located on the Nine-Foot road next to the Woodmen of the World hall. The land has been donated for the center by the town.

Cooperative Savings Will Have New Manager Soon

Marvin L. Troutman, Wilmington, will assume management of the Morehead City branch office of the Cooperative Savings and Loan association within the next few weeks, Frederick Willetts, president of the association, announced today.

Mr. Troutman is a native of Wilmington, where after completing his education, he entered the banking field with The Bank of Wilmington, beginning as a teller. Since that time he progressed to assistant cashier and for the past six years has been branch manager of one of the Wilmington branches of the bank.

Mr. Troutman has completed numerous courses related to the finance field during his eleven years with the Bank of Wilmington, now merged with the North Carolina National bank.

Thirty-eight-year-old Mr. Troutman is married to the former Polly Parrish of Wilmington. They have four children. Both Mr. and Mrs. Troutman are members of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Troutman served as a deacon at the St. Andrews Covenant Presbyterian church, Wilmington.

He succeeds Garland M. Scruggs, former manager of Cooperative Savings and Loan, who has been with the association since the inception of the Morehead branch approximately five years ago. Mr. Scruggs anticipates entering the real estate and contracting business in this area.

H. S. Gibbs Jr. Speaks to Club

Morehead City Rotarians heard a talk by H. S. Gibbs Jr. at their meeting Thursday night. Mr. Gibbs reported on the meeting Wednesday at Raleigh of the special committee of the Outer Banks Seashore Park commission.

The committee has the job of making recommendations to halt erosion on the North Carolina outer banks.

Mr. Gibbs spoke before the committee on the effects of the storm-prone North Carolina coastline on insurance, saying that for every dollar taken in in premiums in the coastal area since 1920, $1.21 has been paid in claims.

Mr. Gibbs also said that, according to the committee hearing, storm damage since 1954 has amounted to over $350 million dollars. Nature may be the only recourse to stabilize the banks, it was reported at the meeting. The Portsmouth island area was cited as an example. Protective grasses have staged a comeback in that area after the removal of cattle.

Guests at the meeting, at Mrs. Russell Willis' restaurant, were Jack Price, Beaufort, and W. H. Zinglemann, Morehead City.
