A trial examiner has recommended that another election be conducted at the Fry Roofing and Volney Felt plants, Morehead City, to determine whether employees should be represented by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, AFL-CIO.

Announcement of the results of the report by the trial examiner, Wellington A. Gillis, was released by the National Labor Relations board yesterday afternoon.

Date of the new election has not yet been set.

Mr. Gillis recommended in his report, following a hearing Nov. 7 at Morehead City, that the first election of Aug. 8, 1962, be set aside.

In that election, 32 votes were cast in favor of the union and 34 against.

The union filed an objection Aug. 15, alleging that the management at Fry and Volney engaged in "unfair labor practices."

The trial examiner found that several allegations were correct in that management questioned employees concerning their union membership and activities, threatened to deprive its employees of benefits if the union were successful in its organization (benefits were interpreted as welding done in the shop for the employees), that management said it would favor non-union men over union members, that it kept watch over union meetings at the union hall in the 400 block of Arendell street, and informed employees that it was the supervisor's job to find out which of its employees were for the union or engaged in union activity.

Other allegations by the union were found to be without factual basis. All of the allegations were denied by the employer.

The new election will be conducted by the 11th region of the NLRB with headquarters at Winston-Salem at such a time as the regional director "deems that circumstances permit the employees' free choice of a bargaining representative."

Fry Roofing and Volney Felt are engaged in the manufacture of roofing products which are shipped to points within and beyond the boundaries of North Carolina.

Deputy Sheriff Makes Arrest in Parts Theft

Joseph A. Buoniconti, Morehead City, has been charged with theft of auto parts from the Donald Gierke home at Newport.

Deputy sheriff Carl Bunch said yesterday that Buoniconti was apprehended at his home Thursday and has been released under $500 bond. Buoniconti denies being involved in the theft, the deputy said. He is also charged with breaking and entering.

The auto parts were returned to the owner several days after the theft by someone who said they had been offered for sale at Cherry Point.

Beach Commissioners Hope To Solve Litter Problem

Atlantic Beach mayor A. B. Cooper suggested to town commissioners at their February meeting Friday that they hire a man with a truck to clean the town and beach during the summer season. That would be his only job, the mayor said.

Commissioner W. L. Derrickson was appointed to investigate the possibility of hiring such a person for four months.

Clerk M. G. Coyle said the town is wasting its money on clean-up as long as the beach causeway looks as trashy as it does.

"That infernal mess on the causeway and those shacks being put up counteract anything we do," the clerk remarked.

The commissioners discussed the fact that as soon as people cross the bridge they think they're in the town of Atlantic Beach, whereas the town limits don't begin for almost a quarter mile beyond the bridge end.

Chief of police Bill Moore said the sign "Atlantic Beach" is right at the end of the bridge. He said it ought to be moved.

The clerk was requested to write county commissioners, the district and division highway engineers regarding trash that blows on the right-of-way and ask that the highway department keep the area clean.

The mayor's suggestion that the man they may hire clean up the causeway occasionally met with no response. The mayor said, "Let's do a little more than we're supposed to do."

William E. McNeill was present to discuss the dump problem, but the mayor said there was no need discussing the matter unless more of the residents in the area concerned were present. The residents near the dump claim that it is a nuisance.

Mayor Cooper told Mr. McLellan that as soon as he attended a board meeting with a representative group the board would be happy to discuss the matter with them.

County road superintendent J. L. Humphrey is to be invited to attend the March board meeting to discuss the fact that people are re-starting a trash dump at a site just west of the town limits on the Salter Path road.

Commissioners Derrickson, J. C. Sherill and the clerk were authorized to contract for three 50-foot sun shelters to be put on the boardwalk, the total cost not to exceed $2,000.

Town attorney George McNeill was authorized to draw up an ordinance requiring owners to keep dogs on leashes and authorize officers to get rid of dogs traveling in packs. The ordinance will be presented to the board for action in March.

Mr. McNeill gave a report on the recent increase in water rates permitted by the State Utilities commission. Chief Moore stated that lifeguard stands are being built.

Sinking of a well by the town to provide an emergency water supply was discussed. It was decided that the better solution might be a portable generator to supply power to pump water through the private firm's lines in case of emergency. The police chief and civil defense director Jack Savage were

Gull-Borne Clam Drops, Hits Pappy

If anybody wonders whether a gull dropping a clam ever hits anyone, the answer is yes.

It happened to Capt. Pappy Joe Fulcher on the Morehead City waterfront at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Captain Pappy Joe, the oldest licensed partyboat operator on the Atlantic seaboard, was walking between Dee's gift shop and the Sanitary restaurant when a clam dropped out of the air and hit him on the left leg.

It raised a big not and bruise, despite the fact that Captain Fulcher was heavily padded with winter clothing. The clam, chowder size, broke, but the gull who wanted it to do just that, didn't bother to dive down to pick up the meat.

Captain Pappy Joe says if the clam had hit him on the head, he'd have been a goner.

Judge Suspends Two-Year Jail Term Tuesday

Tommy Penny, charged with seven counts of larceny and larceny less than $100, was sentenced to two years in jail in county recorder's court Tuesday, but was put on probation for five years. The seven cases were consolidated into one for trial.

Two other cases against Penny were dismissed. One charged him with damage to private property and the other charged him with larceny of less than $100.

Not prosecuted was Alton Lee Jones, no brake; forfeiting bond were John Oliver Williams, improper brake, tail light; Essie V. P. L. Burt Will be Named Jaycee by Judge

P. L. Burt, Cedar Point, is going to get to be a justice of the peace after all.

Mr. Burt filed for justice of the peace of White Oak township last spring prior to the primary. He had no opposition, so automatically became a candidate. But in the November election, his name appeared on a ballot for constable. So he got elected constable.

Whether this was really a valid election in view of the fact that he had filed for justice of the peace is a good question.

Anyhow, he was constable if he wanted to be, say elections officials. But Mr. Burt doesn't want to be a constable. He wants to be a Jaycee.

Mr. Burt wasn't awfully upset. He didn't say anything to the elections board about the mistake until early in December. Then Christmas came along and now things have settled down so that routine problems can be handled, says Charles Willis, chairman of the elections board.

Mr. Burt is going to resign as "constable." To A. H. James, clerk of superior court, he will submit an application to be appointed justice of the peace and this will be sent to the resident judge of superior court who will appoint him a justice of the peace.

He said the error that elected Mr. Burt a constable is regretted. But the ballot was printed with the word "constable" and in proof-reading the ballots after they came from the printer, the error was not caught.

Emmett Simmons Hospitalized With Severe Cuts

Admitted to Morehead City hospital about 1:30 p.m. Sunday, suffering from loss of blood, was Emmett Simmons, Beaufort.

Deputy sheriff Billy Smith said that Simmons had been cut around his shoulders with a butcher knife. His wife, Dorothy, was in custody for a short while but released from the county jail when Simmons said he didn't want to press charges, the deputy said.

The couple lives in a trailer on the West Beaufort road, where the cutting allegedly took place. The officer said that he understood that Simmons got after his wife with a knife and she, in defense, went to work on him.

Simmons, employed by the Seashore Packing Co., was taken to the hospital by the Beaufort rescue ambulance.

David Russell's Get Note From Boy Who Got Truck

The Rev. and Mrs. David Russell, Morehead City, have received a thank-you note from a little boy in Canada whose wish for a truck at Christmastime was answered by the Russells. The boy was 4-year-old Robert Sturgeon of route 1 Blockville, New Brunswick, Canada.

The story all began when the Russells bought their Christmas at the Jaycee tree sale in Morehead City. Tied to the tree was a note from the boy. The Russells complied with the request and on Jan. 6 the boy's mother, Mrs. Cameron Sturgeon, wrote the thank-you note.

Mrs. Sturgeon said the only kind of trucks her son had had before were plastic ones and he was so proud of his new one he put it away in the box "to keep it nice." She said the family has two girls, one 5 years and the other three months old.

She expressed the family's thanks to the Russells for the gift. Mr. Russell is pastor of the Church of God of Prophecy.

Monsters, Anyone?

Brant Barnes, the "monster man" of Morehead City school, displays a sample of his talent. This monster, painted on a notebook, carries a bloody hatchet in one hand and a head in the other.

By ELLEN MASON

David and Brant Barnes, sons of Mrs. Naomi Barnes, Morehead City, may have begun a new teenage fad. David, 16, will paint a cartoon character on your sweatshirt, or if you happen to be in the mood for a monster, Brant, 14, will paint you a juicy one on your jacket or notebook. The results are very good. Not too expensive either—only 25 cents each.

Both boys have always liked to draw, their mother said, and their interests have leaned towards cartoons and monsters. About a month ago David painted a character on a sweatshirt and gave it to Brant. He's also painted one as a gift for his nephew, Kevin Pelletier.

Brant took up the hobby about two weeks ago and it's already paying off. He's painted six monsters, but says most of his money has gone to buy more paint and brushes.

The boys use the kind of paint usually seen on plastic car and airplane models. The paint withstands washing, so when a fellow invests his quarter he can assure his monster won't vanish.

State's First Commercial Fishing Magazine Appears

The first issue of the state's commercial fisheries magazine has appeared.

Titled Shell and Fin, it is published by the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development in cooperation with the Institute of Fisheries Research. It is a public service venture. Roy Wilder Jr. is editor.

The issue, dated January 1963 consists of eight 8 by 11 1/2 pages. The paper is of yellow color and the ink blue. The cover photo by John Hemmer shows shrimp trawlers under way.

The magazine is scheduled to appear quarterly. "It is intended to help the commercial fisherman and those whose jobs are related to fishing have a better understanding of the state we have in North Carolina's fishing industry," according to a comment from the editor on page 2.

The first issue features oysters, an article by Dr. A. F. Chestnut, director of the Institute of Fisheries Research, UNC; fisheries statistics, an article by Eric Rodgers, chairman of the state commercial fisheries committee and photographs.

A wave of weekend car accessory thefts in Beaufort and Morehead City brings warning from police officers that persons should not leave their cars unlocked.

Although all thefts cannot be prevented by locking cars, some would be, police say.

In Beaufort Saturday night floor mats were stolen from two cars. A set was taken from Snow House's car as it sat in his yard on Lennoxville road.

A set of front and back floor mats was taken from the car of J. B. Weeks, 902 Broad St., while the car was parked in front of the Weeks' house.

In Morehead City Saturday night a rear view mirror was stolen from the Ben Alford car while it was parked at the high school and a battery was taken from a 1959 Chevrolet owned by Jewell A. Smith.

A rear view mirror was stolen from the Don Shanor car Sunday and a tire, wheel and mirror stolen from a 1960 Falcon owned by Walter Lasker.

Taken from the car of Clyde Burr Sunday morning, while it was parked in the 900 block of Arendell street during the church hour was a green overcoat with a velvet collar.

The thefts are under investigation by the Beaufort and Morehead City police departments.

Three Doctors Attend Clinic

Assisting Dr. Lenox Baker, Duke orthopedist, at the orthopedic clinic Saturday at the Morehead City hospital annex was Dr. William C. Rhangos, assistant resident in orthopedic surgery at Duke hospital.

Dr. Rhangos was recently granted a $4,000 fellowship by the United Cerebral Palsy Research and Educational foundation.

Also present was Dr. Ralph Olsen, Milwaukee, Wis., a pediatrician who is in this state to observe clinics and work done by Dr. Baker.

Forty-six patients attended the clinic. Twenty-two of them were new and 24 returnees. Clerks were Mrs. Agnes Eckhoff, Morehead City, and Mrs. Jackie Joyner and Mrs. Sammy Hughes, members of the Morehead City Junior Woman's club.

Between $500 and $600 was realized. Proceeds will go toward purchase of new uniforms for the band. Mr. Wade, band director, says about $150 more is needed.

The follies consisted of variety acts by students.
