INDUSTRY REALIZES IT NEEDS SERVICES OF OLDER MEN

Through at sixty? Not in these days when skill and experience and judgment are looked for in plants where defense materials must be produced in record quantities and in record time. Nor at 65 or even 70. Information beginning to trickle into Government agencies concerned in the development of the defense program indicates that age in itself is now no barrier to employment. According to Graham Martin, manager of the Asheville office of the Social Security Board, hundreds of reports of the rehiring of retired workers have been received, and information reaching the Social Security Board indicates the retention on the pay rolls of many who had declared their intention of applying for their old-age insurance payments. Hundreds of retired workers have returned to jobs calling for the skill and experience they have. Some of these workers are 65 or 70 years old. Others have been called back to serve as instructors in vocational training or in industrial plants where intensive training of young workers is being done. What is regarded by Government officials as a clear indication of the growing demand of employers for the skill and experience of the aging increase of the number of workers is the slow rate of

IT IS OUR information that no Yancey county person has been drafted to service thus far in the National Emergency. A goodly number of our young men have volunteered their services to the various defense corps. Volunteers of the skilled workmen type, to build and equip training quarters have been so numerous that this type of workmanship comes at a premium around here. We "volunteer" to voice our approval and gratitude to those who are thus engaged. YEAR 1941 has the ear marks of being the best business year ever. We plan to keep step with the times. Before making changes in your business procedure or before modernizing your home you will make a good move by consulting your Electric Dealer or Power Company concerning appliances and service. BURNSVILLE— "So They Say"

The weather: a few flakes of snow in the air—but not the kind we like! If it must snow we prefer large, soft flakes that fall "busily all the night" so that the next morning it's a new and unmarked world we see when we look out. It's just right for snow balling and making snow men. Tastes mighty good all sweetened and flavored for snow cream—That's the kind we like and if it gets colder after a day or two and crusts over so that the sleigh riding is fine then, that's OK too. "But we definitely don't care for the hard balls of "blue" snow that whiz through the air at about 60 miles per hour and can always whip around and get in your face no matter which way you are facing. So—whether we'll be glad to see the first real snow fall of the winter will depend on the kind of snow. Sorry the Doc Joneses are leaving us, and that Tony King has already gone to Asheville where she's accepted a position, we'll miss them all!...New folks in town: the Royce Perry's who've moved here from Boone—he's assistant supervisor of F.
