For the New Year we resolve:

Not to ask any one else, "How are your tires?" —

to see if Os Lewis really gives up his pipe — to get some shoes like Ruby Hennessee's — cross between old ladies' comforts and cowboy boots — to keep up with these cute babies that are growing so fast — to attend a watch party next year — to go down and watch Mildred Ray do the week's ironing and see if it's as easy as the demonstration looked — to have photograph made at John Robinson's new studio — to go by to see the Robbins twins, that we've heard so much about — to save all scrap paper for the Scouts — to answer the lovely Christmas letter from Miss Margaret C. Welz who is the late Mrs. Peltz' sister — to learn the new license number of car — to get green Chevrolet like Doc Jones' — to plan to see next Rose Bowl game if played in N. C. — to arrange audition for Ben Bank's tobacco auctioneering — to attend at least one recital or play directed by Rush at G. C. — to get pair of saddle oxfords and see how long they'll last without polishing — to recommend that next wedding be held in church so that Alice can play march on new Hammond Organ — to finish up a first aid course — to see more of the marvelous winter sun rises we're having — to see "Sergeant York" when it comes to Yancey Theatre — to recommend that all of us write letters to men in camp — to feel peeved at Lucille and Ellis Moody for giving us no hint at all of their plans to get married — to do our Christmas shopping early — to "set a dinner" for Hope sometime — and to do all we can at all times for National Defense.

To live safely watch your step when you cross the race track, (sometimes referred to as Main Street). We have had several fatal accidents on this street within the past few years that shocked the whole community. Let's not forget these, and other lives may be spared.
