FARM ENLARGEMENT LOANS CAN BE MADE THROUGH FSA HERE

Farmers owning farms too small to be complete units now have an opportunity to borrow money with which to purchase enough additional land to enlarge their present farm to a complete unit.

The regulations covering this loan are practically the same as those that have been used in the past for making tenant purchase loans. The farm must be a family-type unit; that is of the proper size to utilize the family labor to the best advantage.

It is possible through this program to secure money with which to make needed repairs, in addition to the purchase cost. The present improvement and repairs must be within the limitations of the War Board Order L 41, which at the present time limits any new construction to the dwelling to $200 and $1,000 on agricultural buildings.

Farmers who have small farms and are interested in securing funds with which to purchase addi-

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FROM YOUR FARM

As the Xmas season draws near, farm women, often with little money and not given to gift-buying sprees anyway, think of relatives and friends living in towns they would like to remember but are apt to dismiss the idea that they have access to is not good enough.

The more people have, the more easily they are pleased with simple gifts that reflect thought and personal labor. Nature has been so lavish with us in the mountains that what we take for granted is often a rare treat to others.

Tiny, wild strawberries, whose flavor cannot be rivaled in stores, when made into jam, never fail to evoke appreciation from those who have experienced the tediousness of gathering this elusive berry.

With just a little forethought earlier in the year, one's garden can produce many novel gifts. A row of broom corn turns into useful hearth brooms bound with bark and made like big ones, leaving out the handle.

tional land should get in touch with County Farm Security Administration Supervisor, Mack B. Ray, or any member of the County Farm Ownership Committee who are Ed King, John Holcombe and Dewey Silver.
