YANCEY THEATRE

Movie fans of Yancey county are going to have an opportunity to see that highly praised, much-heralded Paramount epic, Cecil B. DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind."

The film, adapted from Thelma Strabel's Saturday Evening Post story, is due Sunday and Monday at the Yancey Theatre with Ray Milland, John Wayne and Paulette Goddard starred, and featured roles filled by Raymond Massey, Lynne Overman, Robert Preston, Susan Hayward, Charles Bickford and Walter Hampden.

The story of "Reap the Wild Wind," which is told in Technicolor, is a broad and sweeping tale of Charleston and Key West in the 1840's, of the relentless hurricanes of the Caribbean and lawless captains who wrecked tall ships for gold. It is the romantic story of wild, tempestuous I. I. Claiborne, played by Paulette Goddard, loved by two men—Ray Milland, a Charleston lawyer, and John Wayne, a fighting son of the sea. It is the exciting story of their rivalry.

According to those who have already seen the picture, and to critics who have reviewed it, "Reap the Wild Wind" is undoubtedly the best and most entertainment any movie has provided in many a season, which ought to make it one film you won't want to miss.

SAVE TIN CANS

So far we have not had a tin can collection in Yancey County. We should begin immediately to save them because Uncle Sam needs them. When you get a collection notify Mrs. Helen R. Goodman, Burnsville or call 190 and arrangements will be made to collect them.

The first step in preparing cans for your government is to remove both ends (or leave attached no more than an inch). The next step is to wash them thoroughly inside and out and remove label. Then remove or fold in top and bottom and step on it firmly. Your tin cans are now ready for collection.

Much of the tin reclaimed from these cans will be used on more cans containing food stuff for our American soldiers abroad. 27,000 tin cans supply the tin required in a flying fortress. Approximately 64,000 tin cans supply the steel scrap required in the manufacture of a light Army tank.

Every precious bit of metal in America's salvaged tin is used in the war effort.

You will remember Yancey county rated very high in the Scrap collection in North Carolina and we should be able to do the same in the tin can collection.

Salvage Committee.

Mrs. Vay Anglin and Mary Cecil have been visiting in South Carolina.
