LOADING AN AIRCRAFT CARRIER

Food for Yanks—see how it is packed in wood. To get to the fighting fronts it must be well packed. Wood is needed for boxing and crating. Uncle Sam needs more men and women working in the woods and mills—and more lumber coming from the farms. Harvest your timber crop NOW.

EXCELLENT RESULTS FROM GRAZING CROPS

A temporary grazing crop for winter and early spring grazing must be planted early in the fall, fertilized heavy, and planted with plenty of seed, says S. W. Tharrington of Franklin county on Route 1 out of Louisburg. Tharrington knows what it takes to make a good pasture because he has one of only 1 1/2 acres that is providing grazing for 12 brood sows, 125 shoats, and 2 yearlings.

According to W. C. Boyce, county agent of the State College Extension Service, Tharrington sowed 3 bushels of small grain (wheat, oats, rye and barley), 20 pounds of rye grass and 20 pounds of rape and 10 pounds of clover per acre about September 10. The land was in small grain and lespedeza in 1942 and in soybeans and corn in 1943. An application of 400 pounds of 3-12-6 fertilizer and 200 pounds of nitrate of soda was made at planting and an extra 200 pounds of soda was applied on February 15.

"The pasture has provided grazing for an average of 50 shoats since October. The pigs did very little rooting because of rings in the nose. Hogs were kept off the pasture for two weeks during January. Brood sows on this pasture produced good litters of thrifty pigs.

"I believe the pigs will weigh 250 pounds each between six and seven months of age. My hogs graze an inch off the pasture each day and it grows back that night," Tharrington reports.

"Many farmers are sending in phenomenal returns from early grazing crops and in every case they planted early, fertilized well, and used relatively large amounts of seed," says Dr. Emerson Collins, State College Extension agronomist, who is conducting a survey of grazing results obtained by farmers in all parts of the State. He points out that pastures have done exceptionally well because of abundant supplies of water.
