BURNSVILLE
"So They Say"
 About town: No signs yet of the "Easter spell" but still warm and spring-like. . . Moving about: The Troy Rays have bought the big house opposite P. O. from Mrs. Honeycutt and have moved there. . . Mollie Howell has moved back to house next door to the Paul Laughrins—and the Dellingers to the house where the Biss Petersons lived until they moved to the Biggs house. . . Gladys Coletta and one of twins home from hospital. . . Rebecca King now in Biltmore hospital following operation. . . Latest celebrity, featured in "State" magazine, several N. C. dailies, "Food Facts", "Wide World", etc., etc., is Mrs. Wray and story about Nu-Wray hotel! Started when Bill Sharpe visited hotel recently and wrote story which was first published in the "State" magazine. . . Juanita Masters should feel relieved that the past two weeks are over. To begin with, Royce was up in Ohio when the rains came, and he was water bound there for two weeks. Then little Carolyn developed pneumonia in one lung, but is now improving rapidly, and Royce is home too. . . We are still short of the goal for the Red Cross fund. If you haven't contributed already, don't forget to do so at your earliest opportunity.
 We wish that it were possible to have an exhibit sometime of medals which Yancey county boys have received and sent home to their folks. We've seen Purple Hearts, air medals, Silver Stars, Bronze Stars, etc. but very difficult to get any accurate and definite

WHAT WILL NORTH CAROLINA DO ABOUT THIS PULPWOOD SHORTAGE?

Latest reports show North Carolina has fallen behind in its response to the government's appeal for more pulpwood. The situation is so acute that some North Carolina pulp mills might shut down. There are implications in this that should give serious concern to every North Carolina farmer and business man. Is North Carolina going to lose its standing in this important industry?

Manpower is a Problem
 The only problem is to get men to cut it. But this problem has been solved in other sections by getting farmers to cut pulpwood in slack seasons and by recruiting men released by other war industries. It can be solved here. A large area of North Carolina is in forest—much of it suitable for pulpwood.

An Industry with a Future
 Pulpwood is playing a vital part in the war. But many of the new war-time developments in pulpwood products have equally brilliant peace-time potentialities. There is every indication that expanding civilian demands will absorb every available cord as fast as military requirements release it.

The 6th Largest Industry
 Here is an industry that can mean a great source of revenue for North Carolina farmers; new factories for the towns; thousands of jobs for returning service men; increased prosperity for all.

Here is an industry that is already Sixth largest in the country and on the verge of great expansion. Does North Carolina intend to hold its place in this great industry?
 Will North Carolina do its share now to meet this war emergency?
