No new cases of Polio have been reported in the county this week, according to a statement this morning from the health office.

We have been requested to reprint the following precautionary measures which all citizens of the county are urged to observe:

1. Avoid overtiring and extreme fatigue from strenuous exercise.
2. Avoid sudden chilling such as would come from a plunge into extremely cold water on a very hot day.
3. Pay careful attention to personal cleanliness, such as thorough hand-washing before eating. Hygienic habits should always be observed.
4. If possible avoid tonsil and adenoid operations during epidemics. Careful study has been shown that such operations, when done during an epidemic, tend to increase the danger of contracting infantile paralysis in its most serious form.
5. Use the purest milk and water you can. Keep flies away from food. While the exact means of spread of the disease is not known, contaminated water and milk are always dangerous and flies have repeatedly been shown to carry the in-

AREY SUGGESTS MORE MILK FOR TAR HEELS

North Carolinians need to drink about twice as much sweet milk as is now being produced in the State to bring them up to the national average of about 95 gallons per person.

Just how can this extra milk be obtained? John Arey, in charge of Extension Dairying at State College, says that an extra 175,000 cows can do it but at the same time he points out that not enough good roughage is being produced to feed the livestock already on the farms.

He explains that more milk may be obtained through better breeding of dairy cows, better feeding practices, improved farm management, more feed crops, and more cows. Along with this program, he suggests that Tar Heels, can learn to drink more milk and make a much wider use of it in the daily diet.

At present it appears that the biggest problem is that of feed principally good, high quality roughage and grazing crops. With long growing seasons here in North Carolina, State College agronomists say there is no valid reason for not growing the supplemental grazing crops, both winter and summer, and putting in well fertilized permanent pastures, seeded with the right kind of legumes and grasses.

Veterans Insurance

The liberalized insurance benefits which became available to veterans when President Truman signed the Congressional Act amending the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940 were anticipated by numerous ex-servicemen and women in North Carolina who have recently reinstated policies they allowed to lapse when they left the service.

Widespread reinstatement in North Carolina were attributed today by Regional Insurance Officer E. C. Bailey to expectation on the part of veterans that the law would be changed. Until January 1, 1947, he added, a veteran may reinstate lapsed National Service Life Insurance simply by paying two months back premiums and signing a statement that his health is as good as it was when his premium was due. After that date a physical examination will be necessary in most cases.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Wray of Sanford, Fla. will arrive this week for a visit with relatives.

Mrs. Grace Banks and son, Tracy, spent the past week end at Queen, N. C. visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Kell Fox and other relatives. Cpl. Banks is in Tokyo, Japan.

7. Maintain community sanitation at a high level at all times.

8. Avoid all unnecessary contact with persons with any illness suspicious of infantile paralysis.

Mowing permanent pastures regularly during the growing season is essential to destroy weeds and other undesirable plants.

DEER HUNTING

The state board of conservation and development explained its purpose in closing the deer season in Western North Carolina yesterday, declaring that its aim is to increase the number of deer in this section.

The state is trapping deer on federal and state preserves, and is using them to stock the forests of Western North Carolina. To protect these deer, and those already in the forests, there will be no public or private deer hunts in this section this year. The ban also includes the taking of deer in state and national game preserves, the office of the division of game and inland fisheries here explained.

Farmers and property owners in the western counties have been called upon to assist in this restocking program by furnishing protection to the deer and by helping enforce the closed season this fall.

B. R. Penland and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Robertson are spending a vacation visit with friends in Wilmington.
