F. S. A. NEWS

Almost one out of every five home accidents, causing injuries serious enough to require hospital care, occurs in the kitchen.

"The kitchen is the busiest room in the American home, especially during canning season, and families participating in the Farm Security Administration program are being urged to find ways to make their kitchens safer," says Miss Edwards, home supervisor for Yancey county.

National Safety Council estimates show that falls, burns and scalds, collisions and bumps, cuts, bruises and poisoning are the most common accidents, she said. Burns and scalds account for more than a fourth of the mishaps, with steam and hot liquids the most frequent. Miss Edwards said that carelessness is the cause of burns more often than poor kitchen equipment.

Children as well as housewives are among the chief sufferers from kitchen scalds and burns. Safety advisers agree that the kitchen is not a safe place for young children to play unless a far corner, away from the stove, is fenced off for them.

Hazards causing falls in kitchens account for about one out of every ten falls that cause death or injury Miss Edwards said. She urges families on the FSA program to prevent causes such as highly polished linoleum, or floors made slippery by spilled grease, water or fruit peelings.

Presbyterian News
