MILK SHORTAGE

A. C. Kimrey, extension dairyman of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, has the following to say about the outlook for the milk supply in the next few months:

All the signs point to the greatest shortage of milk in North Carolina this fall and winter that we have yet experienced. This is being brought about by a combination of circumstances such as low grain feeding this summer due to high priced grain, a comparatively wet season in most of the state that has led to abundant sappy pasture and this usually is followed by a let down in milk production after frost. These conditions, together with a few less cows on farms than last year and high buying power on the part of the consumer will most certainly add up to a winter milk shortage.

The more milk we can force out of our cows this fall and winter, the less we will be able to produce next spring when we may not need it so badly. It is now too late to start in order to receive the maximum fall flow of milk, but much can be done to help out. A studied plan can be put into practice that will result in more winter milk each year.

Practices Looking to Fall and Winter Milk

1. In the summer, particularly late summer, feed cows and heifers an abundance of roughage—good pasture, silage, good hay—either one or a combination of all.

2. Provide as good hay as possible to feed cows in October and November or even in September if grazing fails that early. Start fall and winter feeding before cows have dropped in production due to short feed. If they are thus allowed to drop, it will be impossible to bring them back, even with heavy feeding later.

3. Grain should be fed according to production the year round. If grain is cut out during flush pasture season, or reduced to a very low rate, low production later will be the result.

4. Cold fall rains are detrimental to high milk production. Flesh lost in early fall due to exposure or short feed will result in lowered production and require extra winter feed to maintain even a fair winter milk flow.

5. Save some milk by using a calf starter. Large healthy calves can be grown on dry calf starter. This method may not prove very much cheaper, but it will place 700 to 800 lbs. more milk on the market for each calf raised.

6. The most effective practice to get fall and winter milk is to breed for fall freshening. Cows will produce more milk during a lactation period when freshening in the fall. More dry cows in July and August leaves more time to make hay and take a few days off, which dairymen need as well as do other people. A proper coordination of all these suggestions will mean more milk this winter and in winters to come.

MARCH OF DIMES

New York—An audit of the 1946 March of Dimes shows $8,184,595 was realized by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to carry on its programs in research, education and emergency epidemic aid, and $7,797,555 by chapters for care and treatment of patients, making a total of $15,982,150. Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation announced today.

"This year," Mr. O'Connor said, "expenditures for care and treatment of infantile paralysis are running higher than ever before in the National Foundation's history." He pointed out that by mid-August reports from the U. S. Public Health Service showed new polio cases occurring at a rate far higher than any year other than 1916, the worst on record.

Mr. O'Connor explained that 50 per cent of funds raised during the March of Dimes is retained locally by chapters to carry on year-round care and treatment of those affected with this disease and to equip hospitals in their communities with the proper facilities to care for polio patients. The other half is allocated to National Headquarters to finance research into the cause, prevention and treatment of polio, to provide a broad educational program and to maintain an emergency fund to aid local chapters hard hit by epidemics.

Don't cut that alfalfa too late. It needs about 6 inches of growth when it goes into winter quarters.
