AN APPRECIATION OF OUR PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICES

"Tribute to whom tribute is due." Do we ever pay tribute to our Public Health Service? We know, as parents, teachers and citizens of the three counties, that we do have a Public Health Doctor and Nurses, but do we realize the great work that is being done by them? We know, vaguely that our children are being vaccinated for various diseases, and that they are being physically examined in the schools. Our children come home from school and remark, "The doctor was at school today." Do we then dismiss the matter from our minds?

It probably takes a case like the one in the first grade at Tipton Hill school to really open our eyes. In examining the first grade, the health officer found a child with a serious heart disease. Upon his recommendation the parents took the child to a specialist. The specialist examined the child and remarked, "You can thank God that your child was in school the day your doctor came, and that you have a school doctor who knew his business. Having found the disease in time and with proper care and treatment, the child should soon overcome the disease. Whereas, if the disease had not been found, her life span could not have exceeded four years."

This is only one of the many services rendered by our Public Health Services. Pauline W. Byrd, First Grade Teacher.

Many foreign agriculturists are studying Extension activities and cropping methods in North Carolina. The latest is Carlos E. Dates, an agricultural expert from Argentina.

Burnsville High School

A program will be given by Burnsville high school students on Friday evening, Oct. 25. The program will include miscellaneous numbers and music by the Glee Club.

Following the program an Auction Sale will be held with a widely known auctioneer in charge. Articles to be auctioned were donated by local merchants and business firms.

Included in the articles to be sold are a 600x16 tire, electric heater, electric broiler, electric lamp and a large number of other items.

On the following Friday night, Nov. 1, the elementary grades will present a program and a Baby Contest will be held. A number of local babies have been entered in this event. The King and Queen of the first grade will be selected also.

RUMMAGE SALE

Burnsville High School will sponsor a Rummage Sale on the Square on next Saturday, beginning at 9.

The pressure saucepan can be used to advantage in preserving the natural food value of scarce food stuffs.
