INFANTILE PARALYSIS FUND REPORT

Frank W. Howell, chairman of the Yancey county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said today that local contributions to the March of Dimes had helped make possible a huge new program aimed at expanding the reservoir of scientists trained to carry on the fight against polio.

He said the program had just been announced by national headquarters of the Foundation and the National Research Council, of Washington, D. C. It will be financed with $200,000 in March of Dimes funds and will be administered by the Research Council.

The Foundation grant, Mr. Howell said, continues support of fellowships for young physicians of exceptional promise in virology, orthopedics and pediatrics, and will make possible new senior fellowships in neurology and epidemiology.

Asserting the new grant supplements $170,000 previously allocated by the Foundation for similar Research Council fellowships, Mr. Howell said the funds were derived from the 50 per cent of March of Dimes sent to national headquarters by local chapters.

The fellowships provide up to $6,000 annually per fellow and up to $1,000 annually for laboratory expenses. Most Fellows will study for three years at various universities throughout the country and some will have the opportunity to continue for another three years.

The local chairman said the Fellows would devote much of their time to work in the field and in laboratories, and would be available during polio epidemics for special assignments on behalf of chapters of the National Foundation.

The end of the war, he said, had released many promising young scientists to civil pursuits, and the Foundation is expanding its support of the fellowship program so as to harness their talents in fighting disease.
