Entered as second-class matter November 11th, 1936, at the Post Office, at Burnsville, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

Educational opportunities that will be offered in Burnsville during the summer months are of increasing interest to citizens not only of this county and adjoining counties but to the entire state.

Woman's College of the University of North Carolina will bring the summer session here, thus extending to this section the facilities of the school. Leaders in many fields of education will be here "in person" to teach and direct in the summer classes.

The wide response from teachers who desire to attend the summer school for teachers has been most heartening. The founding here of a summer school in dramatics and a stock company, under the direction of Dr. W. R. Taylor, is receiving much favorable publicity in this section and in Woman's College publications.

The accelerated classes classes for veterans, and the vocational training classes have attracted many students, and inquiries continue to come in for these.

The summer art classes, inaugurated here last summer by Frank Stanley Her-ring of New York and Edward S. Shorter of Columbus, Ga., will have a larger enrollment this year, present reservations now indicate. Students will come from a number of states.

Perhaps the county as a whole is not yet awake to the good fortune that has come our way in being selected for these summer projects. Yet the county has a responsibility to cooperate in every way to make every phase of the program a success.

From this present undertaking may grow a development that will be far reaching in its effects and scope. We make this appeal to the citizens of the entire county: learn all that you can about the summer classes, help other people to learn about them so that

Agricultural Program

The bill, recently passed by the House Committee on Agriculture and now before the Senate, making a drastic cut in appropriations for the department of agriculture will greatly affect the programs of this department now operating. This will mean recession instead of further expansion and development of the programs that have meant much to this section.

In this county, the Triple A program has been of untold benefit in building up the soil through conservation practices. It is doubtful that more than a small percent of the farmers would continue the extensive use of lime and phosphate and the planting of cover crops if these had to be purchased at market price.

In this county alone the Farmers Home Administration and the Farm Security Administration has worked with over 500 low income farm families. There are now over 300 active cases being helped in the county.

Approximately 50 farms have been purchased through funds provided by the Bankhead Jones Farm Tenant Act that perhaps could an increased number may take advantage of the opportunities, and cooperate in every way toward the successful operation this summer of the very varied program.

not have been purchased otherwise and these farm families are now "on their own."

In addition, at the annual F. H. A. meeting a comparison showed decided progress in improved living conditions, health conditions, farm production, soil improvement, home improvement and many other phases of farm life.

The economy of the nation rests on the agricultural development and productivity, and it seems poor economy indeed to hamper or retard the programs that have aided greatly.

Particularly in the agricultural south there would be a grave and lasting effect if congress finally passes the legislation as now proposed.
