

TURKISH TOBACCO IS 'TRICKY' CROP

"Tricky" is the word for Turkish aromatic tobacco, says William D. Lee, soil specialist for the State College Extension Service.

In fact, says Lee, Turkish leaf probably is the "trickiest" crop grown commercially in the State. It is far more responsive to nitrogen and organic residues in the soil than are any other crops.

For example, Lee asserts, an application of only 10 pounds of nitrogen per acre, made on a field which apparently needs a "stimulant," will cause rapid growth with thick, dark-green leaves—and resultant low quality.

On fine-textured soil (silt loams and clay loams) the growth is very poor; on deep sandy loams the growth is strong to excessive. On eroded or galled spots the plants grow slowly or in some cases not at all.

Summing up, Lee says the more suitable soil conditions for Turkish tobacco appear to be: (1) medium-thick loams with moderately open subsoils, (2) a moderate level of fertility (about 30-bushel corn land) and no freshly turned or recently added organic material.

Manure should be worked into the soil in late fall or early winter ahead of

The aromatic tobacco crop. Fall-turned lespedeza is all right, but probably it is better to avoid a field where clover has been grown the previous year.

Notice to Veterans

Jack C. Winchester of the Veterans Commission will be in the court house Thursday, August 24 to contact veterans and their dependents.

Mr. Winchester said there is still time for children of World War I or II Veterans to make application for a four year college scholarship. The applicant must be a child of World War I or II veteran whose death was due to war service, or if he died after leaving service, then due to a service connected disability. Other requirements are—the child must have been a resident of North Carolina for two or more years and is less than 21 years of age when entering school on the scholarship.

If you believe you are eligible under the above requirements, even though you have already completed one or more college years, you may make application now in order to be ready for this fall.
