

Drivers License

Raleigh—The R, S, T group of motorists makes up one of the largest which must stand examination for drivers license renewals yet persons in this category have been very slow to make application for licenses, the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles reported.

A glance at local telephone directories reveals the cause for the size of this group, the Department pointed out. The name Smith alone generally fills several pages. Persons with such popular names as Roberts, Rogers, Stephens, and Thomas fall within this category.

Approximately 185,000 North Carolinians are included in the R-T group. Although one-third of the examining period has passed, only 50,000 persons have stood examination.

Motorists who must renew their licenses can be assured of immediate attention if they go to their nearest drivers license examiner within the next few weeks, but if they wait until the rush begins, they are likely to have to wait for their examination. The examining period for motorists whose surnames begin with R, S, or T started on July 1 and will continue through December 31.

Notice To Veterans

A recent Veterans Administration extension of the July 25, 1951, cut-off date for resuming GI Bill training applies only to veterans who already started their studies and are prevented from going on with them by reason of their return to active military or naval duty.

But, the VA said, the extension does not apply to those veterans who had never had GI Bill training at the time they re-entered active service. For them, the July 25, 1951 date still holds.

The VA explained that its decision to extend the cut-off date for veterans stopping training in order to go into active service is entirely consistent with the law and with a VA regulation of April on the deadline.

That regulation states that veterans actually must be in training on July 25, 1951 if they want to continue afterwards. The only exception is for an interruption for reasons beyond a veteran's control. An interruption for the purpose of going on active duty, the VA ruled, falls within that category.

enter military service will be permitted to resume their training within a reasonable period following their release from service, even though they get out after the deadline date.

Under the law, the July 25, 1951 cut-off date applies to World War II veterans discharged before July 25, 1947. For those few discharged afterwards, the cut-off date is four years from date of discharge.
