TV A REDUCES PRICES ON FERTILIZER

Reduced prices on Ammonium Nitrate fertilizer distributed by the Tennessee Valley Authority have been announced for the following farm uses:

1. Crops seeded in late summer or early fall for watershed protection, winter grazing, seed production, or for grain.
2. Establish crops to be used for watershed protection, winter grazing, and seed production.
3. Crops to be harvested for seed.

The Tennessee Valley Authority, The North Carolina State Extension Service, and the Production and Marketing Administration are cooperating in this program which will make T. V. A. Ammonium Nitrate available to farmers within the Tennessee Valley Watershed for pasture improvement and soil-conservation practices.

Discounts on the Ammonium Nitrate will be as follows: Up to August 15, 1951, a discount of 30%. August 16 through October 15, 1951, a discount of 27%. From October 16 through December 15, 1951, a 20% discount. From December 16 through January 31, 1952, a 15% discount.

It is recommended that farmers obtain this material now in order to make the greatest saving. Ammonium Nitrate can be stored for use until next year if it is not needed now.

In order to purchase Ammonium Nitrate at these prices a certificate of eligibility should be obtained from the local P. M. A. office. Detail instructions on eligibility, rates of application, and dates of application may be obtained from the County Agent's office or from the P. M. A. office. The Farmers Federation acts as agent for the Tennessee Valley Authority in handling this material.

Faries in the State. Other lists of books thus available will be ready soon.

The Library urges the people of Yancey, Mitchell and Avery Counties to make full use of this new service.

More about — LAST NAMED PEAKS

manship was real. With axe and gun and hoe he carved out a pioneer's empire in the most rugged land this side of the Rockies, and even before his death he was enshrined as one of the greatest mountaineers of the Appalachians.

Big Tom had a passion for bear-hunting, a fervor he communicated to his son, Adolphus and so to his grandson, Ewart, who today hunts over the 17,000 acres of Wilson bear lands in the shadow of Mitchell and Big Tom. It was said of Big Tom that he could go out in the morning and get a bear as rapidly as a housewife could step into the backyard to wring a chicken's neck.

Although bear hunting brought most attention to Big Tom, he was also known as a mountain host, guide and tracker. It was he who followed a days-old trail to find the body of Dr. Elisha Mitchell, who lost his life while exploring the mountain which bears his name. This trailing over miles of the most difficult terrain was widely acclaimed at the time. In the years following the Civil War, the Wilson home was a favorite stopping place for travelers and bear-hunters in a section still a wilderness, as indeed some of it is to this day.

Mrs. T. D. Halliday and granddaughter, Pam Meeham, of Jacksonville, Fla. have arrived here for the summer. Mrs. Halliday has a summer home in West Burnsville.

MANY BOOKS ON GARDENING IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

Gardening books, literally from A to Z, are now available through the Mitchell, Avery, and Yancey County Public Libraries. All kinds of gardening—indoor and outdoor, flower and vegetable, landscape and orchard—are told about in these books, and you can procure them by contacting the library or by giving your request to the bookmobile librarian.

A list of these books is on file at the library for your use, it was announced by Dorothy Thomas, County Librarian, in selecting titles you may want. The list contains over two hundred titles beginning with Abbott's "The Indoor Gardener" and ending with Zim's "Guide to Familiar American Wild Flowers".

These books are the first in a plan whereby the public libraries of the state of North Carolina will cooperate in an interlibrary loan plan to have a wide variety of books in fields of particular interest to the people of the state made available on a state-wide basis. The Rowan Public Library, Salisbury, is building the collection on Gardening and Landscape Gardening and will lend these books to other lib-
