Mrs. Bailey is a student at Bald Creek High School and Mr. Bailey is attending State Teachers College, Johnson City, Tenn.

Green Pasture Awards Presented At Meeting

State College Specialists discussed problems and outlook with twenty-five poultrymen, hatcherymen, and others interested in this industry, last week in the County Agents office.

F. K. Farnham, Extension Dairy Specialist, and Sam Dobson, Agronomy Specialist, showed slides and led discussions on how to solve problems of the local dairymen. One of the foremost problems was the need of more feed, especially hay, corn silage, and MOST PRAYERS are petitions for God's help. Christian faith teaches that no prayer goes unanswered. However, that does not mean that God can be commanded to do just what the petitioner asks. In prayer we present God with a difficulty. But we may not presume to dictate how He will solve the difficulty.

When the wine ran short at the marriage feast at Cana, the Mother of Christ turned to Him, saying: "They have no wine." Her statement was an implicit prayer for His assistance. Mary did not know how her Son would solve the problem. Nor did she presume to make any suggestions. She merely made known a need. Her obvious confidence that Christ would respond to the need made her prayer a sublime act of faith that the Savior could not ignore.

Most Christians have a great deal to learn about prayer. Often in times of some urgent need, we expect God to intervene at once. We tend to become impatient when nothing seems to happen. Worse still, we may let our disappointment and discouragement turn into spiritual weariness, not to say despair.

Prayer must not become a tug-of-war with God. We cannot dictate to God how or when He shall answer us. We cannot be sure that the thing we ask for is as good and right as we think it is. We can never have God's knowledge of what would result from heedings some particular mundane or temporal plea.

Home Demonstration Meeting Held

The Burnsville Home Demonstration Club met last Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Lon Roberts with Mrs. E. L. Dillingham as associate hostess.

The meeting was begun by the members singing The Old North State. Mrs. W. H. Holleman gave the devotional. Mrs. Troy Ray, commander of the Burnsville district Cancer Drive, spoke on the danger of cancer, and pamphlets on cancer were passed out to the club women and they pledged their support to the cancer drive to be carried on during the month of April.

Miss Mary Helen Neill, Home Demonstration Agent, for this county, and county campaign manager in the cancer drive, showed films on cancer. Miss Neill also spoke on "tailoring tips" and showed example of good tailoring.

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Joe Godfrey, President presided at the meeting.
