

Press Backs Governor's Industrial Campaign

With circulation of nearly a million and a half, newspapers of the state are joining hands through the North Carolina Press Association to spread the word about the need for new industry and ways and means of getting it.

The message will be carried in a series of public service advertisements, published without cost to the state.

"This is a fine public service by the Press," declared Governor Hodges, "and is in keeping with its leadership not only for industrial development but toward improving our economy in every respect."

The public service project, largest of its kind ever undertaken by North Carolina newspapers, will be carried out in cooperation with the Conservation and Development Department.

The Board of Conservation &

Development, of which Governor Hodges is chairman, adopted a resolution commending the newspapers of the state for their public service both in publishing the series of advertisements without cost, and their editorial presentation of information about North Carolina's economic needs and progress.

General theme of the advertisements, prepared by the State Advertising Division of the Department of Conservation & Development, will be the benefits to every community and residents of the state of new and expanded industry, and things the state and its communities can do to get new industry, such as the establishment of more technical schools to train skilled labor required by modern science industries.

An extra good dressing for green salads starts with 1/2 cup soured cream, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and a teaspoon each of salt and sugar.

Two chocolate cake layers are wonderful when put together with sweetened whipped cream which has been mixed with instant coffee powder for flavoring and some finely chopped walnuts.

There's wonderful flavor in a tomato aspic which is made with a package of strawberry-flavored gelatin and 1 1/2 cups tomato juice with lemon juice to taste.

Make certain your barbecue sauce has brown sugar, dry mustard and Worcestershire sauce to give it a good "smoky" flavor.

Traffic Safety After Dark

Raleigh—"Drive right, slow down at night."

In these words, Col. James R. Smith, commander of the State Highway Patrol this week emphasized the necessity of reducing speed at night. Col. Smith spoke on behalf of this month's safety-after-dark program of the Motor Vehicles Department.

"Darkness reduces visibility, so the distance you can see at night is limited," Col. Smith said. "A good rule of the thumb is to travel at a speed that is slow enough to enable you to stop within the distance covered by your headlight beam."

Even when traveling at a lowered speed, the driver is still in greater danger of an accident at night than in daytime, so he must increase his vigilance, the colonel said. He especially cautioned drivers to watch out for pedestrians dressed in dark clothing and for vehicles with dim lights or no lights at all.

"Be sure your own lights are in good condition," he warned. "Make it a habit to turn on your driving lights at the first hint of dusk, and always use them properly. Use the upper beam only on rural highways when no approaching car is within 1000 feet. Dim your lights even though an oncoming driver fails to dim his."

It's also important that all parts of your car be in top condition. Because danger is much closer before you can see it in the darkness, night driving makes sure mechanical response a must, Col. Smith said.

Here are a few more do's and don'ts the colonel mentioned. Be sure your lights are on before you pull onto a throughfare at night. Don't wear tinted glasses at night. Never stop on the traveled portion of the highway at night; pull completely off the road, leaving parking and dome lights on. If you must have full headlights on, dim them. It's also a good idea to have your directional signal light flashing. Carry flares for use in emergencies. All of these precautions help to let other drivers know you are stopped.

"And remember," Col. Smith said, "the most important rule of all is: 'Be your brother's keeper.' At night it's most important to give the other fellow the benefit of the doubt in traffic."

Young married couples usually save for the purpose of buying durable goods or for making a down payment on a home. Older couples more often save for children's educations or retirement.
