High Schools Urged To Consider WFC Scholarship

WINSTON-SALEM—Wake Forest College officials are urging North Carolina high school seniors to consider the George Foster Hankins Scholarship Program at the College.

A minimum of 25 scholarships will be available under a program set up last year through income of over one million dollars left the College by Col. George Foster Hankins of Lexington.

The scholarships range in four-year value from $1,200 to $3,600. Basic factors considered in awarding the scholarships are need and ability, with preference being given students from Davidson County as Colonel Hankins stipulated in his will.

To be eligible an applicant must be a resident of North Carolina or the child of a Wake Forest alumnus living elsewhere. He also must graduate from his high school in the spring of 1957. Both men and women are eligible.

James B. Cook Jr., secretary of the scholarship committee, said inquiries from all applicants should reach him no later than Dec. 1. A screening test will be given Jan. 2. The 60 finalists will be brought to the College March 23 for a series of tests and interviews.

Finalists not receiving Hankins Scholarships will be offered College Scholarships, the exact amount to be determined later. The scholarships will be renewed annually on condition that the holder meet certain scholastic requirements, subject to review of his financial status each year.

Information and application blanks may be obtained by writing Cook at Box 7201, Reynolda Branch Winston-Salem.
