sized; placed on the distributor belt, passing from bin to bin. This is controlled by a lad who sits overhead using a rope and block to control the amount of peaches dumped into each bin.

Girls called "ringers" pick up the fruit and place it into steel rings which later constitute the top layer of the basket; other girls fill metal tubs lined with temporary cardboard holders. These move smoothly along the conveyor belt; are turned over into the permanent baskets where the ripened peaches become the top layer and then pass to the hydro-cooler, a water system whereby water flows from an ice vat and is cooled to a 33-degree controlled temperature. This water flows into a trough filled with holes, and seeps through, washing the basket of fruit underneath the trough thoroughly. The baskets then move along to the place where the lid with paper lining is placed on; wire handles attached; labeled and stamped; then they finally reach the truck for shipment to market. About 50 or 60 employees are hired; known variously as "Dumpers, Graders, Ringers, Tubbers, Basket Girls, Turners, Rope-Boy, Lid and Wire Fasteners, Labelers and Stampers." It was a very interesting experience to watch the whole process. Mr. Sheffield ended our educational tour with a gift of a large donation of sample peaches.

We were truly grateful for his generosity and kindness. In addition, Mr. Head permitted us to pick peaches to our heart's content, and we brought home vast quantities to eat and preserve.

Sheffield (a man of many talents and one very skilled in the supervision and management of this particular peach enterprise). We learned the many steps involved in the processing of peaches from tree to market. For instance, it begins when the pickers bring the fruit into the packing plant. It is dumped onto a conveyor belt system, defuzzed, passed over the grading table; into bins; then

NORTH CAROLINA INQUIRIES SOAR

A 20 percent increase in inquiries about North Carolina for the first six months of 1961 was announced by Director Hargrove Bowles, Jr., of the Department of Conservation and Development.

The total, Bowles said was 140,808, up 24,506 over the corresponding period last year. The inquiries were generated by North Carolina's national advertising program which during this six months' period appeared in 40 newspapers and 30 magazines. Returns were bolstered, too, Bowles states, by new radio, tv and travel show schedules inaugurated this year.

Bulk of the inquiries were about North Carolina's "Variety Vacationland" attractions. Travel is North Carolina's third largest industry.

THE TRUTH ABOUT LYING

Hanging by his wrists from the rafters of a crude log cabin deep in the Wisconsin woods, an 8 year old boy cringed under the impact of repeated blows from willow switches. "Pa, I will not lie," he sobbed. Beaten for two hours, the only words he said were, "Pa, I will not lie!" Finally, he wept softly, "Pa, I'm so cold." His next gasp brought death.

The devil is the "father of lies." We know that the human race started going down hill when the devil lied to Adam and Eve. Adam's children continue to abuse or hide the truth by lying. Even among Christians we sometimes find the habit of telling "white" lies. What boy today would die rather than tell a lie? What man would? Where would Emmanuel Jannan's courage of 1851, be imitated in 1961?

A lie is a word spoken to deceive. It is contrary to what the speaker believes to be true. A lie is a misuse of a God-given power. Such a misuse is a sin. God gave us speech to enable us to disclose our thoughts. To share ideas and experiences with others. Nevertheless, lies are common in some men's lives. "White" lies should rather be called "yellow," because they are a coward's tool to avoid embarrassment or difficulty. Because this is so common, some Christians no longer consider it a sin. And we see lying Christians imitating lying Communists.

However, there are times when seeming untruths are spoken but are not lies. In the circumstance, jokes are understood to be humorous, rather than truthful. At times, "I haven't a cent" is understood to mean "I have nothing to lend you." And "I don't know" can mean "It is none of your business."

But a lie, even off the witness stand, or outside a written contract, is still a sin against God's order. Every sin bears serious consequences for society, as well as the sinner himself.

"Wherefore, put away lying and speak truth each one with his neighbor, because we are members of one another" (Ephesians 4:25). "But as for the cowardly . . . and all liars, their portion shall be in the pool that burns with fire and brimstone, which is the second death" (Revelation 21:8).

Christians, it was your Saviour and Master who said, "I am the way, THE TRUTH, and the life."
