

GARDEN TIME
M. E. Gardner
N. C. State College

It happened during blueberry seasons. A native of Raleigh coming from Wilmington stopped in the blueberry territory and bought a pint cup of blueberries.

They were beautiful berries. All the way home this native of Raleigh was thinking about how presented to his wife, to and be such tempting fruit for dinner. When the cup of berries was presented to his wife, to and behold, clearly stamped on the cover were these words: "Packaged in New Jersey."

The native of Raleigh bought his berries in a southeastern North Carolina county within 100 yards of where the berries were grown. He recalled that when he bought the berries a big diesel truck, with a New Jersey license tag, was busy loading crates of these same berries. This truck load of North Carolina berries was on the way to the New York market the next day, sold as New Jersey berries, without any reference whatever to North Carolina.

How frequently this story can be repeated: The products of the soil and factory in North Carolina sold on markets outside of North Carolina under trade names of other states. Growers of other fruit, and vegetable crops, which can be grown in abundance in North Carolina, have the same experience as the blueberry grower.

The time must come—and hasten the day—when all products grown or manufactured in North Carolina can be sold bearing the labels of the producer. This will be a great step forward toward increasing our per capita income, raising our standard of living, and at the same time giving our people greater incentive to produce and market only quality products both from the farm and the factory.

I have quoted much of an article which appeared in the July issue of "We the People," a fine magazine about North Carolina and its people. I agree with what the writer has to say and will comment more in detail on this next week.

You can buy blueberries "Packaged in North Carolina" and there is a reason, and a good one, for the label "Packaged in New Jersey."

Cantaloupe — a la Mousse!

For a dessert to top off a tip-top meal, fill wedges of California cantaloupe with frozen lemon mousse to create "Cantaloupe San Joaquin."

Cantaloupes grown in California's fertile San Joaquin Valley are noted for their relatively small seed cavity, which means more nutritious fruit per melon. Their beige rind features a high, well-defined, close net and is clean at the stem end. The thick, apricot-colored meat of California cantaloupes is firm yet tender with a vine-ripened flavor.

CANTALOUPE SAN JOAQUIN

- 2 cups whipping cream
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
- 1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Few drops yellow food coloring
- 2 California cantaloupes

Whip cream until it will hold soft peaks; gradually beat in sugar. Fold in lemon rind, juice, salt and coloring. Turn into freezing trays or loaf pan. Freeze without stirring, until firm. Cut cantaloupes into quarters; scoop out seeds. Fill with frozen lemon mixture and serve at once. Makes 8 servings.

OIL HOME HEATERS
force the heat down
and fuel bills go down

Ordinary heaters pile the heat up on the ceiling until some of it finally steps down to the living level. If you own an ordinary heater, you know how costly and uncomfortable that system is! Siegler does just the opposite... your floor gets heated first. Heat is not wasted on the ceiling and out the chimney. Don't close off rooms this winter and pay high fuel bills to boot... order your new Siegler now.
