Registration At Appalachian

Boone — Final plans have been completed for registering the second six-week term of the summer session which starts July 16 and ends August 17, it was announced today by Dr. James Stone, director of summer sessions.

He predicts a bumper enrollment for the second term. Enrollment for the first term soared to an all-time high of 1892 students on the first day of registration. The total registering for the first term went to nearly 2500. The regular summer school enrollment was increased by two series of two-week workshops.

Dr. Stone said that this year's enrollment for the first summer term is an increase of approximately 21 per cent over last year's summer school enrollment for the first term. College officials had expected an increase of about 10 per cent.

Appalachian's summer program is somewhat unique in that nearly as many students register for the summer sessions as during the regular terms. Dr. Stone implied that this almost makes Appalachian a 12-month college.

Final examinations for the first term are slated for July 12-13. Finals for the second term will be held on August 16-17.

A state institution since 1903, the summer school enrollment at Appalachian has steadily grown through the years. Both students and faculty count it a treat to study and teach in the ideal climate of Boone.

Of the total enrollment for summer school, approximately 800 students are registered for graduate work, according to Dr. Cratis Williams, director of graduate studies. About 200 of the graduate students are entering the program at Appalachian for the first time. The majority of graduate students are North Carolinians with about 20 per cent from out-of-state. The out-of-staters include students from 40 other state and foreign countries, including Alaska, Hawaii, Germany, England, Venezuela, and Libya.

Parkway Playhouse Second Production

For its second production, The Parkway Playhouse announces the presentation of Emlyn Williams' suspenseful melodrama, "Night Must Fall," on July 20 and 21.

Emlyn Williams is one of the theatre's most versatile men. A few seasons ago, he impersonated Charles Dickens and toured the United States in a special production drawn from Dickens' works. Currently he is starting on Broadway in the award winning "A Man For All Seasons." Among the many highly successful plays he has written is "The Corn Is Green," which has served as a starring vehicle for Ethel Barrymore and Bette Davis, and is considered by many to be a modern classic of its kind. "Night Must Fall," also, ranks as one of the most exciting plays of its genre: mystery and suspense.

The events that take place when a body is found near Mrs. Bramson's house make an exciting change in the dull routine of the day, but when night falls... For a thrilling evening in the theatre you will not want to miss Emlyn Williams' "Night Must Fall" on July 20 and 21. It will be directed by Lester L. Moore, who has directed past productions as "Inherit the Wind" and "Finian's Rainbow." The setting will be designed by Joe Allen who created the set for last season's "Diary of Anne Frank."

Parkway Playhouse Opens 15th Season

"The Importance of Being Earnest" by Oscar Wilde opens the 15th season of the Parkway Playhouse, Burnsville, N. C. Directed by Dr. Annetta L. Wood of Rutgers University, this justly famous farce is scheduled for three performances beginning Thursday, July 12, and running through Saturday, July 14.

An outstanding cast, including several new faces as well as Playhouse favorites, has been assembled by the director. Joining the Playhouse company for his first season is Frank Whiteman, an upperclassman in the New Brunswick colleges of Rutgers University, who has appeared there in such plays as "Ah! Wilderness," "Strange Interlude" and a musical "A Trip to Chinatown." Also appearing with the Playhouse company for the first time are Joel Gersmann, a student at Rutgers University in Newark, and Carmillina Carrao, a student at Patterson State College in New Jersey.

Returning to the Playhouse boards for her third season, after an absence in which she appeared with The Barre Theatre and Players, Inc., is Sue Walker. Miss Walker is remembered for many fine portrayals, particularly in the Playhouse production of "Inherit the Wind" and as Phedre in "The Cretan Woman." She is joined by Anthony M. Malvest, who has delighted audiences in "Finian's Rainbow," "Teahouse of the August Moon," and "Mister Roberts" to name a few; and by Bambi Long, in her third season, who has several serious and comic portrayals to her credit, notable among them last season's Carole Arden in "Personal Appearance." Christine Barnett, who brought us such diverse characterizations as Bladys in "Personal Appearance" and Ismene in "Antigone," returns to the playhouse boards for her second season. Appearing for her third season in Karen Lachowitch, who played Laura in "Look Homeward, Angel" as well as in "The Glass Menagerie" and the title role in last season's "Antigone." Rounding out the cast of players are Ernest Albrecht, director of last season's "The Loud Red Patrick" and Lester L. Moore, assistant director of the Playhouse.

"The Importance of Being Earnest" is being presented by the Parkway Playhouse in its original version, which includes the so-called "lost scene" not normally found in the reading editions of the play. A contemporary review of "Earnest" reported that it was different from all other farces, and funnier. Wit crackles throughout the play. The fun which Dr. Wood has envisioned through "The Importance of Being Earnest" is also reflected in the setting designed by Vern Smith.

Season Subscriptions which entitle the holder of six admissions are on sale at local merchants and at the box-office. The Playhouse curtain is at 8:00 p. m.

Dr. Annetta L. Wood is directing "The Importance of Being Earnest" at the Parkway Playhouse this week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Dr. Wood is Chairman of the University Department of Dramatic Art, Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N. J., and guest director at the Playhouse this summer.
