

THIS IS THE LAW

BY ROBERT E. LEE
(For the N. C. Bar Association)
LAW DAY

May 1 is Law Day U. S. A.

It is a new kind of national "day" which has appeared on the American scene. It originated in 1958 with a proclamation by President Eisenhower. Subsequent presidents have yearly done so.

The public response to it has been enthusiastic and widespread. No day of national observance has grown so big, so quickly.

The Russians for years have been using May 1 to parade their military might, symbol of their philosophy of rule through force and fear. In the United States, May 1 now has become a day for a demonstration of different sort.

It is a day for reaffirmation of faith in the rule of law in the daily lives of all Americans. It is a time for imparting to all citizens a deeper awareness of the part that our laws and courts play in sustaining the spiritual and social values we cherish most as a nation.

Law is an agency of social control that has received the sanction of the sovereign state. It is the only agency of social control that may be enforced by policemen, sheriffs, judges, and other officers of the government.

There are two basic aims of Law Day U. S. A. They are:

(1) To foster increased respect for law, enabling the nation to grow in moral strength as it grows in population, resources and world leadership.

(2) To provide an occasion for the American people to rededicate themselves to freedom for the individual under just laws administered by independent courts, and in so doing to emphasize before the world the contrast between the rule of law in the United States and the rule of force and fear under totalitarian systems.

In the United States the law is superior to the government; the courts are designed to protect the rights and property of the individual against the power of the State.

Government in the United States has become emphatically termed a government of laws and not of men.

The beginning words of the Constitution of the United States are "We the people." These words bear witness to the fact that the Constitution emanated from the people. They describe those who hold the power and conduct of the government through their representatives.
