Change Noted In Burley Allotment Division

Raleigh — Burley tobacco allotments may not be allocated as designated by the owner when land is sold or transferred to a new owner. According to A. P. Hassell, Jr., State Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, this procedure was allowed by Amendment 3 to the Reconstitution Regulations issued on April 22, 1965. Hassell went on to say the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 excluded burley tobacco from this designation provision.

Hassell says that when a farmer sells part of his farm, the burley tobacco allotment will generally be divided according to the percentage of cropland he has sold. In some cases, it may be divided on agreement if an estate is being divided among the heirs.

Farmers that have any questions about the division of burley allotments are urged to check with their local ASCS office before they make a sale of land. The local office has all the records for the farm and will be able to tell the farmer how the allotment will be divided.

LIONS BEGIN ANNUAL CAKE SALE

Burnsville Lions Club members will hold their kick-off fruit cake sale this evening before their regular dinner meeting at The Amperjack. Sale of fruit cakes is one of the ways Lions all over the world are able to help others, and especially the blind.

The Burnsville Club takes profits from the sale of brooms as well as cakes to give help to the blind and near blind in Yancey County, and in North Carolina through its donation to the White Cane Fund.

Presently the local Lions Club is sponsoring the eye clinic held at the Health Center here twice each month. The equipment used in the clinic was purchased by Lions of Yancey, Mitchell and Avery counties. Cost of the clinic, medical supplies and other necessary items, are paid by Burnsville Lions.

Lions are always ready to join in any worthwhile project, civic or personal. The local club went on record as being in favor of a "yes" vote in the State Road Bond Election.

And when you buy a fruit cake, buy it from a Lion. That way, someone else will be made happy.
