GLEN RAVEN PLANS OPEN HOUSE MAY 20

Plans are being made at Glen Raven Silk Mills, Inc., for an Open House, to be held Friday, May 20, 1966. This Open House, to which the public is invited, is being planned and implemented largely through the efforts of Glen Raven employees.

There will be displays illustrating a variety of subjects. The Fire and Safety Brigade, under the direction of Champ McMahan, will have a display on safety and the mill's safety record. Edgar Angel, Brooks Boone, Zenus Metcalf and Howard Bennett from the shop are working on product displays and lighting. Paul Fox, David Boone, Jodie Russeil and even Champ McMahan's son and daughter, Jerry and Lynda, have been making posters.

Besides local displays, there will be exhibits from the American Textile Manufacturer's Institute, Draper Corporation, Alcott Boat Company, Snowiss Fur Company, DuPont, Steel Heddle Manufacturing Company and others. Penland School will have a hand loom in operation to illustrate the difference between the "old and the new".

A guided tour through the mill will be the main feature of the event, showing the modern machinery and improvements being made at Glen Raven.

'Arsenic And Old Lace' Howling Success

Joseph Kesselring's comedy, "Arsenic and Old Lace", presented by the Drama Department of the East Yancey High School Friday night, the 29th, directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Westall, assisted by Student Director, Ramona Penland was a "howling success", as evidenced by the applause and laughter of the large crowd in attendance.

This comedy, long a favorite of stage, screen and TV, is centered about the Brewster family, and the entire action of the play takes place in the living room of the Brewster home in Brooklyn. The play centers about the "hobby" of the two Brewster sisters — Abby, played by Jennifer Fox, and Martha, played by Linda Wilson, and their three nephews, Teddy, played by Gary Blankenship, Mortimer, played by Dan Banister, and Jonathan, played by Ronnie Webb. The peculiar hobby of the two spinster sisters, is giving a home to lonely old men, who they feel will be better off dead, which, after a proper period, they cheerfully go about accomplishing through the serving of their famous elderberry wine laced with arsenic. The disposal of the bodies is carried out by their "teched" nephew Teddy, who believes himself to be Teddy Roosevelt and is kept busy digging the Panama Canal in the basement of the Brewster home, which proves a handy burying place for the dear departed. The "good works" of the sweet old ladies, aided and abetted by Teddy, goes along smoothly until nephew Mortimer, the only normal one in the family, discovers a body in the window seat awaiting proper time for burial. About the same time nephew Jonathan (Ronnie Webb) appears on the scene, accompanied by his partner in crime, Dr. Einstein (Dean Hicks), who are on the run (Continued on back page)

Mrs. Angell Dead

Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. Agnes Angell of Miami, Florida, on Sunday, April 17th, in Miami.

Mrs. Angell was returning from church with friends, and on their way to a restaurant for lunch, she collapsed with a heart attack and died instantly. She had requested that her body be cremated and her ashes be buried with those of her mother in Graceland Cemetery in Miami, which request was carried out on Wednesday, April 20th.

Mrs. Angell is survived by three grandchildren and one son, Ronald of California.

Mrs. Angell, a well loved and long time summer resident of Cattail Creek, will be remembered here for her sunny disposition and interest and participation in all community activities. While at her home at Cattail she contributed a weekly column to THE RECORD of the doings of the Cattail Creek and Pensacola community; also, upon her return to Miami she was in contact with summer residents of Burnsville and Cattail, and kept the readers of the RECORD informed of their activities through a weekly column. She shall be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Banks Youth Drowns

Funeral services for Hugh Carson Banks, 14-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Eanks of Marion, were held in the chapel of Holcombe Brothers Funeral Home here Tuesday of last week at 2 p. m. Rev. Sam Miller and the Rev. Lois Woodard officiated. Burial was in Banks Cemetery.

The youth drowned in a pond near Marion Sunday, April 24. He was swimming in the pond while a friend paddled in a canoe nearby. The boy in the canoe said he saw the Banks youth go under and tried to rescue him but was unable to do so. He called for help and Banks' body was recovered. McDowell County Rescue Squad administered artificial respiration, but the youth was pronounced rear at a Marion hospital where he was immediately taken.

Hugh Carson was a native of Yancey County, but had lived in McDowell County with his family for some time.

In addition to the father and mother, he is survived by four brothers, Roger Banks, Jr., who is a student at Mars Hill College, Michael, Richard, and Jesse Banks of the home; his paternal grandfather, Hugh Bannib of Burnsville; and the maternal grandfather.

Post Office To Be Remodeled

WASHINGTON —The Post Office Department will spend $4,080 00 to remodel the Burnsville, North Carolina, Post Office, Congressman Roy A. Taylor announced Friday.

The Postal Department will also renew the lease on the building with Mr. E. L. Briggs, for 5 years, with 3 two-year renewal options.

Rep. Taylor Announces Grant

WASHINGTON: Eleventh District Representative Roy A. Taylor Thursday announced an Office of Economic Opportunity grant of $21,732 to Watauga, Avery, Mitchell and Yancey Counties, North Carolina, for a health follow-up program for more than 400 children. Most of these children have been enrolled in Project Head Start.

This program calls for the coordination of all public health and community resources in the area. Social workers, nurses, teachers, and parents will help develop plans for treatment of individual cases.

BURNSVILLE SCHOOL HOST TO YOUTH ORCHESTRA

The Burnsville Elementary School was host on Saturday morning, April 30th, at ten o'clock, at a concert in the school gymnasium, rendered by the Asheville Symphony Youth Orchestra.

Over 300 school children and interested adults from Bee Log, Pensacola, Micaville Bald Creek, Clearmont, South Toe, The Arthur Morgan School, and Burnsville composed the very receptive audience. It is felt that lack of transportation cut down considerably on the attendance of school children.

Mr. Ed Hunter, Burnsville Elementary School Principal and Mrs. Don Burhoe, General Chairman, gave brief introductory talks. Mrs. Burhoe stated that it was through the cooperation of the Burnsville Elementary School and the generosity of the Asheville Youth Orchestra that the concert had been made possible. She also mentioned that this was a Girl Scout project, which had been endorsed by the county-wide public school system. Mr. Joseph E. Fischer, conductor, and Mrs. Helen Sor-ton, Manager, were introduced to the audience. Also present, and assisting with the handling of instruments, was Mrs. Betty Edwards, of Asheville, District Advisor for Pisgah Girl Scout Council.

The 35 members of the orchestra ranged in age from 10 to 17, the majority being in the 12 to 13 age bracket.

Luncheon for all members of the orchestra was served in the school cafeteria, through the courtesy of the Burnsville Elementary School.

Coletta Member Of National Group

BOONE — David Coletta, son of P. C. Coletta, Burnsville, is a member for the current term of the National Newman Student Federation at Appalachian State Teachers College in Boone.

The Newman Student Federation is a national organization of Catholic culture and fellowship that fosters the spiritual, intellectual, and social interests of Catholic students at Appalachian. The group is organized on a local, diocesan, regional, and national level and works with other Catholic groups to promote understanding of Catholicism.

Coletta is a 1964 graduate of East Yancey High School and a college sophomore.

This concert, which might be called the highlight of the school year, and the 800 children who sat spellbound during the entire concert, as well as the number of interested teachers and adults present, gave emphasis to the desirability of a broader public school music program in our county school system.

L.G. Deyton Passes

L. G. DEYTON
