Scene From Top O' The Hill

By: Jack Kelly This Column comes to you from Washington, D. C., where the weather is hot and sticky, - almost as hot as the Politics. However. righ now the hottest thing in own is the approaching White House wedding of the Chief's daughter, Luci. This will be without a doubt, the most glorious wedding Washington has ever seen. The coup e at the center of all the action will have best wishes from the world at large. Evéryone everywhere always wishes the very best to any bride and groom but this wedding sort of symbo-I'zes the times in which fwe live. Peop'e all over the Country are getting married earlier than was the custom over recent decades, and Luci Johnson and Pat Nugent sort of stand forth as representatives of all these youngsters. Even Republicans are bi-partisan on this deal.

Luci will carry two bridal bouquets. One of them will be left at the foot of the status of St. Agatha, the patros saint of nurses, which is in the National Shrine, and the other bouquet will be, following the old custom, tossed to the bridesmaids at the White House Freeption.

I don't know whether President Johnson knows it or not but a new Bishop was appointed down Texas-way, and this Bishop used to be aucht by LBJ. Come to think of it — maybe that's how come the gentleman got to be the Bishop. At least it proves that "ecumenica'ism" is here to stay. Further evidence of the new, or revived, Christian Brotherhood is seen in the recent appointment in Pittsburgh of a Methodist, Alfred A. Darter, as Director of Institutions for the Commission for Catholic Charities and Social We fare for the Diocase.

Lefore we got back here, my girl and me naturally had to leave Burnsville. Even on that rainy Sunday mornnig, we were sad to leave. Blanche took so many backward gances at our Top o' the Hill that she almost wrecked the car. We drove to Peaks of Otter Lodge and staved the night. Just to be devi ish, I registered under an assumed name and didn't tell my good wife. She will be embarrassed when she reads it.

The weather faired up after we crossed the mountain and it was beautiful all the way to Washington — which I no longer regard as home.

As we unpacked, Blanche said "Won't it be wonderful when we make a final pack to leave for Burnsville permanent'y."

Our buying a place in Burnsville makes me wonder if the various businessmen. Chamber of Commerce fo ks and so forth realize that Gordon Bennett is now respossible for 32 new sets of people going to Burnsvi le and surrounding area, including Cattail and Mitchell Branch. If it hadn't been for Gordon Bennett running the Playhouse and bragging on Eurnsvi'le upon his return to Miami there would not have been the first house on Mitchell Branch, because Bennett "sold" Mike Ross on the area, and, in turn, Mike sold others. A lot of Cattail people also came directly as a result of him, So, how come us Burnsvillites don't grab the Bennetts and make them a real deal to settle in our

I know a'l about the Wednesday afternoon closing of businesses in Burnsville, and I like the idea. but — I know a lawyer's office that was closed at 11:30 a. m. — either was closed or just didn't answer the phone. Didn't make any difference because I phoned him at home and got everything straightened out.

Here's a closing idea: If the good Ladies of Burnsville, with the assistance of their husbands, care to get a Greeting for best wishes, good luck, long life, much happiness, and so forth to Luci and Pat for their wedding, and have that Greeting signed by everyone in Burnsville, clergymen and laymen, white and colored, - I guarantee it wi'l be presented to the White House for them. No city or town except Burnsville has thought of this.

IT NEVER FAILS

Paper Industry Moves

A ceremony was held in the port of Chareston, S. C. recently, marking the millionth ton of paper pulp to move cut of the port bound for Europe. This particular snipment was headed) for France, and came from the mill of International Bowater Paper Corp. in South Carolina.

The occasion was notable because there was a time when most of the newsprint consumed by newspapers and publications came from Europe. The United States produced very little.

Production of paper in the United States has grown by leaps and bounds in the last 20 years or so. But even more significantly, it is understood that the old-time miles of Europe are turning toward the North American continent. Several have invested heavily with U.S. and Canadian companies to make paper here. There is even a prediction that in the next few years there will be even more.

Papermen say there is a reason. Europe is running out of trees. North America still has plenty and modern improvements in equipment has made it possible to produce a high grade product from our trees.

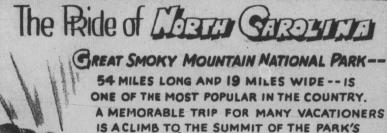

Tree farming is undergoing a boom, too. The mills chew up a lot of logs fast and it takes plenty of wood to keep the wheels turning.

All of which points up an important clue to the future. Efforts must be made now to keep our lands reforested. Modern conservation methods must be used. Reforestation is important. Else we may have plenty of paper rails and no trees for them to chew up.

It is du'v noted that Charles deGeu'le, upon returning from his visit to Russia brought with him a Russian gift of a cub bear, which when it is grown may wind up giving him a Russian bear hug.

It rained, we understand, in some sections of the U.S. on July Fourth. Ants we hear, are petitioning Washington for a poverty program.
