Mars Hill College To Award

Degrees Sunday

MARS HILL — The 111th year of Mars Hill College will be climaxed Sunday (May 28) with the awarding of degrees to approximately 205 students.

Commencement exercises will be held in Moore Auditorium on the campus at 3 p. m. Dr. Fred Bentley, who is completing his first year as president of the college, will award the degrees and speak briefly to the graduates. There will be no commencement address. This is a departure from a long-established custom. It will give additional time for the awarding of degrees individually and for the recognition of various students who have won honors.

Baccalaureate services for the graduates will be held at 11 a. m. in the auditorium with Dr. Elmer West, pastor of the Mars Hill Baptist Church, as the speaker.

A total of 194 of the degree candidates expect to receive the Bachelor of Science; 85 expect the Bachelor of Arts degree; 16 others expect specialized degrees in music.

The Class of 1967 will be the fourth to receive degrees since

Mars Hill upgraded its program from junior to senior college status.

A heavy schedule of varied activities concluding the school year will begin Friday with the opening of a student art exhibit. Other events will include business sessions of the board of trustees and the alumni association, reunions of the classes of 1902, 1907, 1912, etc., the annual alumni banquet, and a performance of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" by the division of dramatic arts.

Dr. H. F. Robinson, dean of research at N. C. State University in Raleigh, will be the banquet speaker. Renowned for his work in agricultural science, he will discuss world food problems, their possible solutions and the opportunities for service to mankind offered by these problems.

During the banquet two distinguished graduates of the college will be honored as "Alumna of the Year." Mrs. R. Knolan Benfield of Morganton will be recognized for her contributions as president of the state Woman's Missionary Union; and Dr. Joseph H. Miller of Memphis, Tenn. will be cited for his significant work in the field of neurosurgery.

Kathleen Nelson Named Western H.E. Agent

RALEIGH — E. Kathleen Nelson has been named western district home economics agent for the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service. Dr. George Hyatt, Jr., director of Agricultural Extension, North Carolina State University, says she will be in charge of the Extension home economics program for 18 counties and the Cherokee Reservation.

A native of Marietta, S. C., Miss Nelson graduated from Furman University, Greenville, S. C., with a degree in home economics. She has done graduate work at the University of Tennessee and North Carolina State University.

Miss Nelson was home economics Extension agent in Mecklenburg County for seven years before joining the State staff. Before that she taught home economics and was an extension home economics agent in South Carolina.

Miss Nelson is a member of the American and North Carolina Home Economics Associations and in 1965, she served as president of the North Carolina Association of Extension Home Economics.
