Headstart has ended for another year. The program proved to be even more successful than last year. People are gradually seeing that the results are good. If in doubt, ask a parent of a Headstarter.

Many activities were carried out during these weeks. This was for some of the children the first experience with other children outside their homes — learning to live outside the home — learning to give and take. To others it was perhaps their first trip to places such as the Courthouse, Library; their first experience on Daniel Boone's train. You should have been present to have seen their small faces light up with delight. These children will have something to talk about for days to come!

As well as learning and experiencing new things, these children now have a Headstart in life.

Should other children be deprived of Headstart? Only you can answer this question. To be of help write your Congressman and ask for his support to help the boys and girls in the future.
