Number Twenty

Lady In Pink

This pink creation, worn by Mrs. Robert Scott at the presidential inaugural ball Monday night in Washington, D. C., represented North Carolina and Western North Carolina spectacularly. Of DuPont's pink dacron polyester, woven at Glen Raven Mills, it was designed by J. Faulton Hodge and made by Doncaster. It is trimmed with mica accented with amethyst flakes given by Mrs. Margert Newbert. Mrs. Scott's large garnet earrings were made by Jim Tow, Asheville goldsmith. Asheville Citizen

MRS. SCOTT'S GOWN REPRESENTATIVE OF W.N.C.

Yancey County was represented at the Inaugural Ball in Washington Monday night by the gown worn by North Carolina's first lady, Mrs. Robert Scott.

The material for the gown was designed by Miss Annie Hassell, designer for Glen Raven Mills Burnsville Division, and was woven by Glen Raven Mills Burnsville Division. The mica used on the gown was a gift of Deneen Mica Company of Newdale. The fabric, especially designed for Mrs. Scott's gown, was spun in duPont's Kinston plant. The dying and finishing was supervised by John Coleman. Only 19 yards of the material were manufactured, but Glen Raven expects to develop it for the market.

The gown, made by the Doncaster Company of Rutherfordton, was designed by J. Faulton Hodge. Featuring a boat neckline, fitted bodice and slightly flared A-line skirt, it has self-trim at the waistline and a panel of self material falling from the shoulders. The hemline is accented by an intricate pattern of mica in graduating circles, which is carried out in the panel of the dress. A small inverted replica of the mica design at the neckline is accented with flakes of amethyst. The amethysts were a gift of Mrs. Margaret Newbert of Asheville. An Asheville goldsmith, Mr. Jim Tow, designed and gave the large garnet earrings worn by Mrs. Scott.

When introduced in the market the fabric will be under the trade name "Raescott" honoring Mrs. Robert Scott, whose name is Jessie Rae Scott. This name was originated by the designer of the gown, Mr. Hodge.

Miss Annie Hassell, who designed the fabric, is a graduate of the N. C. State University's School of Textile Design, and has been employed by the Burnsville Division of Glen Raven

Trellised Tomato

School Held

A trellised tomato school is being held for low income farmers in Yancey County. The school is being held in the Oakcrest School and will last for six weeks.

Students will receive instructions in all phases of tomato production and marketing. These qualifying will receive pay for attending providing they meet all requirements.

Yates Deyton, experienced tomato grower and manager of the Yancey Producers Association, is instructor in tomato growing. Otis Peterson and Vernon B. Stennel will instruct the group two hours per day in basic education.

The class is being sponsored by the Extension Office in cooperation with the Employment Security Commission and the McDowell Technical Institute.

Mills for about 14 years — first in the New York office, and for the past 12 years in the Glen Raven Mills Burnsville Division. She grew up in Washington, D. C., where her father, a lawyer, was employed by the U. S. Post Office Dept. Her parents, native of North Carolina, have retired to a home in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Miss Hassell for many years was associated with the Girl Scout program in Burnsville. She is co-owner of the Pendulum Antique Shop.

PRODUCERS ASSOC. SEEK 100 ACRES OF TOMATOES AS GOAL

Joe Crisp Manager Of Ben Franklin

Mr. Joe Crisp has taken over as manager of Ben Franklin Stores here. He is replacing Harry Hayter, who has gone into partnership with Kenneth Autrey in the Spruce Pine News Center, a news stand and discount store.

Mr. Crisp took over his duties on January 20th. He was formerly with Morgan Brothers for 12 years. He came here with his family eleven years ago from Asheville. Mr. Crisp, his wife and five children live on Summit Street.

Mr. Hayter has been manager of the Ben Franklin Store here for the past nine years. He was associated with Mr. Ramsey, owner of Ben Franklin, for the past 21 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayter live in the Bödens Creek section of the county, where they will continue to make their home. They moved here nine years ago from Virginia. They have one daughter, Mrs. James Buckner, who lives near Asheville.

The officers and directors of the Yancey County Producers Association set a goal of 100 acres of tomatoes and adopted the budget for 1969 at a meeting in the Courthouse Monday night.

Plans were made for a meeting of businessmen to discuss the economics possibilities of the tomato program on the economy of the County. E. L. Dillingham, County Extension Chairman, explained that plans were being worked out with N. C. State University officials and that a tentative date of February 12 had been set.

Wilbur Howard, F.H.A. Supervisor, led a discussion on the budget. Nine-een and sixty-nine plans call for tripling the number of acres produced and increasing the number of employees.

All directors agreed that 100 acres of tomatoes would be necessary to pay the operating expense and have a balance to meet the payment on the principal and interest.

John Powers, President of the association, presided.

Second Session

District Court

The second session of District Court in the 24th Judicial District is being held in Burnsville this week, with Judge J. E. Holtshouser as acting judge, and Phillip M. Thomas as Prosecuting Attorney.

Cases coming before the District Court are not heard before juries, but any person wishing to appeal to Superior Court may do so.

The first session of District Court was held in December, 1968 but only two cases were tried, so this is really the first significant session of this newly set up Court. 141 cases are scheduled for this week.

Ramsey Elected Leader Of Democratic House Delegates

Liston B. Ramsey of Marshall, representing Madison, Haywood and Yancey Counties in the 47th House District, has been elected leader of the Democratic House delegates from the western end of the state.

Ramsey was made the unanimous choice at a meeting Monday night by 15 legislators from Gaston County westward, including three from northwestern counties.

Cane River Faculty Working Toward Re-accreditation

The Cane River High School faculty is working toward re-accreditation by the State Department of Public Instruction. Their goal is two fold: (1) to be re-accredited by the state (2) initial accreditation by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. Each teacher is doing a revised course of study for each subject taught as part of this process. Also each department is being evaluated and upgraded for this purpose.

The primary purpose of accreditation is to provide self-evaluation and improvement in the school as a means of achieving desirable educational goals for all girls and boys. To be accredited implies a school has met certain standards set up by the State Department of Public Instruction or by one of the regional associations.

A continuous evaluation of the school program is essential in today's rapidly changing society. A school which might have been good in the past is probably inadequate today and a school that is adequate today may be obsolete tomorrow.
