Five generations in one family will be sharing Mother's Day on May 10, 1970. Although the youngest member of the family, David, will never celebrate Mother's Day himself, his arrival into the family was essential in allowing the fourth generation mother to join in the festivities. David's mother, Iris Cook, is shown holding her son; Edna Geuge, Iris' mother, is standing behind her; Edna's mother, Ollie Robinson, is standing on the right and Cory Carroway Ollie's mother, is seated. The four women are David's mother, grandmother, great grandmother, and great, great grandmother, respectively.
