BBB Warns Taxpayers

R. E. Hitchcock, Manager of the Better Business Bureau, today urged taxpayers to be cautious in the selection of a tax preparation firm if it is necessary to use a professional service in the preparation of an income tax return. He noted that the Federal Trade Commission has recently provisionally accepted a consent order which prohibits one such firm, H & R Block, from making certain advertising claims.

According to Mr. Hitchcock, the proposed complaint alleged that, despite implications in the Block organization's advertising, it does not reimburse a tax payer for all payments he must make, in addition to his initial tax payment if the additional payment is the result of an error made in the preparation of the tax return.

In addition, the FTC complaint alleged that Block personnel are not certified to practice before the IRS in the event that a customer's tax return is audited.
