Yancey United Fund Gets Big Donation From Plant

The score or more volunteer workers who have been diligently soliciting contributions for this year's Yancey United Fund campaign were cheered by the receipt this week of a check for $668.82 from the American Thread Company of McDowell County. This check covered both the in-plant donations made by Yancey County employees of the Thread Company, plus the Company's own contribution.

evenings and Sunday afternoons so that the area residents can shop at their convenience.

The store will employ approximately 40 people to be hired locally. The manager has not yet been selected. His name will be announced at a later date. He and his associates will live in the community.

With Crest Stores growing as they have the past few years and with the planned expansion, we are seeking aggressive management personnel either with or without prior retail store experience. If you feel you are qualified and desire a position with an expanding company with a great future, send a brief resume to Crest Stores Company, P. O. Box 1628, Charlotte, North Carolina.

The headquarters of Ben Franklin stores is in Chicago. This store will be serviced out of the Baltimore district warehouse that serves over 300 stores.

The combination of a major company with local ownership and management enables us to meet the needs of all the people in the area.

The company is looking forward to being identified with the Burnsville community which it sees as a progressive town with a great future.

from a company located outside the county made a specially favorable impression. Its sizeable amount testifies both to the generosity of Yancey Countians who drive to work at the thread plant, and to the generous spirit of the company in supporting the valuable programs included in our UF budget.

The Yancey County United appeal which got off to a later than usual start this year, is now in full swing, and the giant size thermometer standing in the Burnsville square is recording the progress made.

A number of contributions have been received or pledged which qualify the donors for inclusion in the Century Club or Patrons Club. The former gives recognition to those who contribute a hundred dollars, the latter, two hundred dollars or more. The Yancey Journal will shortly publish the list of those who qualify. Last year there were 36 in the Century Club; the Patrons Club is new this year.

The first reporting meeting of workers was held last Sunday evening at the Cane River School. A second report meeting has been scheduled by Campaign Chairman, Mrs. Cara Cox for this Thursday, November 30, 7:00 p. m., at the Cane River School. Because of the late campaign start, and the approach of the Christmas rush, the campaign committee is urging volunteer workers to intensify the drive and complete the job within the next ten days.

The application cards necessary for obtaining 1973 license plates will be placed in the mail on December 1, December 8 and December 20. Department of Motor Vehicles officials expect this huge mailing, estimated at more than 3,700,000 cards, to be delivered by January 1. Those receiving the cards should take care not to lose or misplace them.

Painter Visits Art Classes Here

Last month, Mrs. Ema Leon took a three-week "busman's holiday" from her job as an artist-illustrator at the Military Police School at Ft. Gordon and attended "Painting in The Mountains" art school in Burnsville. Painting from morning until night--sometimes until midnight--she produced fifty watercolors. Twelve of these paintings will be among the 36 watercolors on exhibit at a one-man show at the Augusta-Richmond County Public Library from December 2 til Jan. 10. Two very special works that will be shown are "The Lantern" and "The Poet". The first is a painting of a lantern just outside the Painting in The Mountains school. "The Poet" is a profile of John Beecher, renowned for his poetry, who was visiting the school and consented to pose.

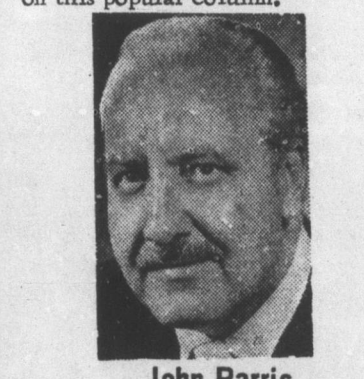

John Parris To Autograph

Author and newspaper columnist, John Parris, will be at the Yancey County Country Store from 1:00 to 4:00 p. m. Saturday, December 2 to autograph his latest book.

Entitled "These Storied Mountains," the book is a rich new collection of mountain folk tales, folkways, and legends, from the hills of Western North Carolina.

Parris, who was recently promoted to contributing editor of the Asheville-Citizen Times has written his front page column, "Roaming The Mountains" since 1955. "These Storied Mountains," which is Parris' fourth book, will be based on this popular column.

The continuing demand for a fourth volume prompted the decision to publish "These Storied Mountains," which will include many of Parris' columns on old ways and mountain history as well as much of the new material the author has developed since his last book.

Parris' three other books are out of print and have become collectors' items. Total sale of the three books was approximately 45,000 copies.

The continuing demand for a fourth volume prompted the decision to publish "These Storied Mountains," which will include many of Parris' columns on old ways and mountain history as well as much of the new material the author has developed since his last book.

Parris, a resident of Sylva, returned to his native western North Carolina in the late 1940's after a distinguished career as a foreign correspondent with Associated Press and United Press. Since that time, he has devoted himself to writing about mountain people, places and events.

"These Storied Mountains," is available for the Christmas season through the Yancey County Country Store, most book stores, and directly from the Citizen-Times.

Council To Administer

The Yancey County Council at its November meeting voted to assume program administration of a child development project funded with $114,000 of Federal money for its first year operation. In assuming this management role the County Council demonstrates the important service the Council is rendering the county.

The Yancey County Child Development Committee which is a working component of the Council, is making plans for setting up two child development day-care centers in the county. The $114,000 for the first year's operation of the program comes from grants from the Appalachian Regional Commission and the Health, Education, and Welfare Department.

The day-care centers will be along the lines of the present child development center operated in Burnsville by the County Social Services Department. Tentative plans call for two centers, one in the east end of the county, the other in the west.

This day-care project is all a part of a major program of the Eastern Appalachian Children's Council, an organization of which 13 counties in the western part of the State are members. The headquarters of this organization is in Marion, and a total of nearly $3,000,000 is being provided for the first year's operation of the program. Child development centers will be established in all thirteen counties.

The Yancey County Child Development Committee consists of the following members: Chairman Charlie Hensley, Wanda McNeill, Norris Deyton, Dr. Fergus Pope, Shirley McAllister, Nancy Shaw, Marilyn Kuzweiler, Wanda Austin, Suzanna Jones and Ruby Smith.

Chairman Hensley states that much planning work remains before the day-care centers get into operation. The centers will serve primarily children, aged three through five, of low income families, in many cases making it possible for the mothers to obtain employment. Surveys are now being made to determine the number and location of eligible children in the county.

A requirement of the program is that the agencies assuming administration of the projects be responsible chartered corporations. The Yancey County Council which has been incorporated as a non-profit organization, was fortunately in a position to assume the managing role.

Banks Square Is Progressing

Recent legal notification of the dissolution of Banks Family Square, Inc. as printed in the Journal has prompted a question on the part of some people as to whether the proposed shopping center would be built.

This notice has been run only because the company operating Banks Family Square shopping center is being changed from a corporation to a partnership. It in no way affects the plan or purpose of the center.

More positive progress in the construction of the centers should begin to appear now that the steel, which has caused an undue delay, begins to arrive.

Dividend From Northwestern

The trustees of Northwestern Financial Investor declared a dividend for the period ending October 31, 1972, in the amount of $.29 per share. The dividend will be payable December 15, 1972, to shareholders of record November 30, 1972.
