VITAMIN facts & fancies!

People who refer to Englishmen as "Limeys" may not know that this term stems from the limes, rich in vitamin C, that were distributed to English sailors in the 18th century to keep them from developing scurvy.

All the vitamins needed by a grown man each day amount to a mass no larger than a grain of rice.

Women who take birth control pills may have a greater need for certain vitamins and minerals than women who do not. For these women, a nonprescription special dietary product containing the nutrients they might need has been developed, called Feminine.

The name "vitamine" later shortened to vitamin, was first proposed by Polish chemist Casimir Funk. He thought they were all of the chemical class "amines" and added that to "vita," the Latin word for life.
