Beat the "Tax Bite Blues"

How does one beat the April 15th "tax bite blues"? Easy, my friend... pay up on March 15th!

Why wait? Go ahead, send your dues in ahead of time and forget that deadline panic.

Seriously, though, to encourage early payment, here's a bit of information to get you started: deduct home improvements that qualify as medical necessities — such as central air-conditioning for cystic fibrosis or asthmatic victims, a chair elevator for heart patients, or a swimming pool for polio victims.

The amount deductible is simply the difference between the expense of your home improvement and the increase in property evaluation. A $20,000 swimming pool, for example, that increases your property evaluation by $15,000 leaves a difference of $5,000 that the government will allow you to deduct.

The above comments appear each week to air thoughts, opinions, and information we believe to be important to our friends and customers — your comments are welcomed.

Black Walnut Tree Sold For $12,000

wood is still the preferred substance for rail ties. And the railroad industry, which may or may not boom again as a result of the energy crises, currently needs 28 million of these ties each year. How big the demand will be in the future is anyone's guess.

The Japanese, whose expansion in the bowling alley business all but drained the U.S. supplies of maple a few years ago, are now placing similar strains on basswood. The culture-conscious Japanese are also going in for pianos and organs in a big way. Yamaha, well known already for its pace-setting rise in the motorcycle industry, also turns out 3,000 pianos a month. The basswood, it seems, is Yamaha's choice for the ivory-coated keys.

And so the tale continues.

The paper industry used virtually no hardwoods 10 years ago, but now improved technology in the treatment of hardwood fibers makes hardwood use comparable with that of softwoods.

To alleviate shortages of the finer woods, meanwhile, the forest products industry has been working for years to reduce waste in the industry. The use of computers for the grading of hardwood lumber shows promising results. Sensing mechanisms detect flaws in the lumber and feed this to a computer which instantly adjusts the cutting for maximum efficiency.

While maximum use of the present hardwoods and elimination of waste is being encouraged, this will not result in ample supplies of hardwoods being encouraged to establish hardwood forests on their lands. They can get all the advice and help they need from the state forester. One suggestion is that "you grow a gold mine in your own backyard. Enjoy bumper crops of nuts for decades, then cash in on the timber during your retirement years.

More accurately, though, you are likely to be leaving the timber as a legacy to your children. Walnut timber can become commercially valuable at 25 years, but 40 years is a more acceptable age and it's the 70 year and older trees that command the really big prices.

Conceive, if you will, of one black walnut tree reportedly sold for $12,000 to be turned into the veneer that gives pianos and other pieces of quality furniture that exquisite walnut finish.
