MICHAEL ROBINSON

Robinson Was Speaker

Michael L. Robinson, vice-president of National Mapping, Inc., talked to the Luverne Business and Professional Women's Club Monday night when they met in the home of J. H. Lisenby.

Introduced by Mrs. Lisenby, Robinson told the club about the work involved in property ownership mapping in Crenshaw County, which includes the use of tax assessment records, deeds and aerial photography. This survey is being conducted because of the Federal Court ruling which ordered that all property in the state of Alabama be appraised. According to Robinson, the records of the Tax Assessor and Probate Judge are in very good condition and he stated that his work was ahead of schedule due to this fact.

Ken Hill, an associate of Robinson, accompanied him to the meeting and participated in the open discussion which followed his talk.

Admissions Are Open

The Berea College Office of Admissions reports that applications for the fall of 1974 are up 31% over the previous year. This is especially noteworthy at a time when many colleges are experiencing a decline.

Applications may still be requested by writing to the Office of Admissions, CPO 2344, Berea, Ky. 40403. To qualify for admission to Berea a student must come from a family of modest income and must be above average academically. Berea charges no tuition. Eighty percent of Berea's students are selected from a 230 county area of southern Appalachia.

Any student who has need of financial help to meet the cost of attending Berea is assured of aid. A limited number of $200 scholarships are still available to students who have shown qualities of Christian leadership in their home communities and who meet the other requirements for admission. These are made possible by proceeds from the DeWitt Wallace Reader's Digest Endowment Fund.
