Production Staged At Local Church:

'Godspell' Retells Parables

have heard about it, and now is your chance to bask in its glory as thousands before you have. Godspell has been called wonderfully refreshing. happy and bright, and delightfully exciting. It is all this and more. Brad Munson of it up like this: "How do you explain Godspell? Simply put, it is a modern musical retelling of the story of Christ and His parables, taken from the Gospel of St. Matthew. It is neither a revival meeting or a pitch for Christian converstaging techniques Godspell's message of love and happiness denies any real sectarian boundaries that might be expected in a play about Christ and His teachings. During its incredibly successful professional run, it was applauded by all denomina tions--not just Christians--for it brings life and beauty to some powerful ideas. Live, don't merely survive. Love yourself and love your neighbors, friends and enemies alike. And be joyful--above all things, be joyful."

Godspell, a self-supported production sponsored by the Mayland Technical Institute and the newly formed Toe River Arts Council, will be appearing throughout the Tri-County area this summer. The company of performers is composed of actors, actresses and musicians and technicians from Mitchell, Avery and Yancey counties. The music and lyrics of Godspell are by Stephen Schwartz, and the show was originally conceived and directed by Michael Tebelak. Information concerning performance dates and sites may be obtained by watching area newspapers or by calling Mayland Tech in Spruce Pine.

After two gratis performances at the Yancey County Correction Center on Wednesday and Thursday, July 9 and 10, Godspell will be presented to the public at the First Presbyterian Church is Burnsville. Curtain is at 8:15 p.m. on Sunday, July 13. Admission is by contribution.

What more can be said? Just come.....and enjoy God-

Numerous people celebrate the Fourth of July in various ways. Some watch sports, some shoot fireworks, some eat watermelon, some like barbecue, while others just screech tires on the highway. The Yancey Railroad had the good fortune this year to celebrate the 4th with the nostalgic sound of a 3-chime steam whistle from its newly acquired Locomotive #9. The Yancey Railroad #9 has the appearance to some people of being just another "Old" steam locomotive. Quite the contrary, as the age of steam locomotives go, she is still quite young for she was built by the H.K. Porter Company of Pittsburg, Pa., in 1941. In keeping with the Yancey RR slogan, "Always Customer Oriented", it is hopeful that the Yancey #9 steam locomotive will be placed in service in the future transversing the South Toe River pulling trainloads of happy rail enthusiasts.

Since the Yancey instituted its passenger service on a limited basis earlier this spring for the Yancey County school children, it is their desire to be able to further serve Yancey County with its own railroad tourist facility for friends both local as well as distant. Come to see us.

Yancey Jamboree Audition Slated

The audition, or rehearsal, for the eighth annual Yancey Jamboree, a local program of folk music, singing, and dancing, is scheduled for Saturday, July 19 at East Yancey High School. The purpose of the audition is to give participants an opportunity to rehearse on the stage at East Yancey and to help the participants and directors know each other better. It is emphasized that in order to perform in the Jamboree on July 31 and August 1, all entrants are to be present on

Timber On Flat Top Mtn. BY LARRY D. MORROW thinning of this area will Game Technician

The Burnsville Game Management crew led by Technician Joe McFee and two other members. Don Wilson and Larry Morrow, were aided by three Yancey County men from the emergency employment program, J.B. Fender, David Haney, and Mickey Gouge. These men have thinned fifty acres of timber in the White Creek section of Flat Top Mountain.

A crew of men from the United States Forest Service marked the timber to be left standing. All other timber and laurel and ivy were cut by the Game Management crew.

If you were told that the amount of light reaching the forest floor has a bearing on the number of deer an area can support, you might think this statement is far-fetched. The fact remains that light rigidly controls both the type and quantity of forage available to deer. More light means more forage. The produce more browse. The Oaks will produce more acorns. The deer will have more to eat. Through scientific stand management, the timber grower can look forward to a stand of healthy, vigorous trees, and the wildlife manager can look forward to a healthy deer

By letting a little light in on the forest floor it appears possible to achieve more of

'Story Theatre' Is Fine Family Treat

The second production of the 1975 Parkway Playhouse season is the recent Broadway success Story Theatre and the Playhouse production is as delightful a family treat as you could find. It will play through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are available by calling 682-6151.

Under the direction of James S. Reynolds a troupe of eight actors and two musicians weave an enchanting spell with their improvisatory version of Grimm's Fairy Tales and Aesop's Fables. The result is riotous fun. The ensemble cast includes: Jason Solomon who stands out with a hilarious Jerry Lewis impersonation in one sketch; Gene Stewart, fine as The Little Peasant and as "Dracula" in "The Miller's Daughter"; Pam Giannasio as Henny Penny in the well-known fable; Denise Stockert as The Miller's Daughter; Maria D'Amico as the donkey in "The Bremen Town Musicians"; Lea Batzold as several zany matron types; Ilana Bar-Levav; and John Giase.

Kris Anderson (who was last week's Maria in The Sound of Music) and Brian McPherson accompany the actors with guitar and flute respectively and do excellent work.

Scene Designer James

Parker has created a charming patchwork atmosphere for the tales and fables of Story Theatre and Director Reynolds staged the production with verve and spirit. All in all, Story Theatre is pure entertainment that will pl adults and children alike. The Playhouse has a special offer for Friday night: each child accompanied by a parent will be admitted free (only one free child per parent). Don't miss Story Theatre now through Saturday at The Parkway Playhouse. Future productions include: Little Women (July 16-19), Come Blow Your Horn (July 23-26), Harvey (July 30-Aug.2), and Annie Get Your Gun (August 6-9).

License Bureau Moves Office

The Yancey County branch of the N.C. License Bureau recently moved to a new location. It is now operating from a new office in the renovated "old" courthouse building on the town square, according to Grace Banks, Branch Manager. The new location is not the only change made in 1975; legislation enacted by the 1975 General Assembly which became effective July 1, 1975, has increased Motor Vehicle Registration as follows: Application for Certificate of Title is now $2, Application for duplicate or corrected title $2, Application of repossessor for Cert. of Title $2, Transfer of registration $2, Replacement registration plates are $5, Application for duplicate registration certificate is 50c, Application for recording supplementary lien $2, Application for removing a lien from a Cert. of Title is $2, Restoration Fee for a registration plate when revoked for lapse of insurance is now $15. In addition, Driver Education on every passenger or property carrying vehicle is $2 now, a certified copy of an Accident Report is $2.50 and the Auto Inspection

S.C., woodwork; Connie will extend out one of the streets leading from the center of town. This change has been made in order to give the new grass a chance to have continued growth and not be subjected to possible damage during the Fair. Craftsmen from Yancey, Mitchell; other mountain counties; the piedmont section of North Carolina; and other states are to exhibit, demonstrate, and sell at the Fair on August 1 and 2. Among the craftsmen are: Samuel Smith, Greenville, Mitchell, Asheville, pottery; L.V. Gosnell, Brevard, woodwork; Mrs. Robert Best, Lexington, painted pictures; Joyce McElrath, Swannanoa, Homecrafts; Donald Smith, Merritt Island, Florida, metal sculpture and silver craft; Gwen McKinney, Burnsville, handcrafted dough sculpture; Toe River Craftsmen, Burnsville, variety of bandcrafts; Bertha Black, Burnsville, quilts; Sena Hughes, Relief, needlework; Pearl Presnell, Burnsville, homecrafts; and Wanda Tipton and Juanita Gouge, Burnsville and Relief, needlework.

As usual, there will be the giant chicken barbecue with around 1500 chicken plates being sold to fairgoers on Saturday of the Fair.
