Ward has served as financial chairman of the Committee on AGing. The committee sought to raise $7,000 in local contributions by August 1st in order to secure federal matching funds to keep this program going another year. Thanks to the generosity of the friends of this community and the efforts of the committee that goal has been met. To date, $7,100 has been

Joe Ward says, "It is gratifying to know that when a worthy need is presented to our community there is this kind of heart-felt response." After October 1st this program will operate on an entirely volunteer basis. Throughout the years, rheumatoid arthritis has been one of the most painful and crippling diseases affecting man. Inflammatory and chronic, it primarily attacks the joints but can also affect the whole body causing disease in the lungs, muscles, heart, and even the eyes.

In North Carolina over 100,000 persons suffer this chronic disease and more than 25,000 children are victimized by juvenile rheumatoid arth-

Rheumatoid arthritis usually begins with general fatigue, soreness, stiffness, and aching followed by these localized symptoms in one or more particular joints. This inflammation consists of pain, swelling, warmth, and tenderness.

These symptoms may leave or return and, in many cases, there are periods when the pain flares up followed by periods of improvement. It is common for a person with severe rheumatoid arthritis to have long periods lasting weeks, months, or even years when the pain and stiffness are absent. These periods are called remissions.

However, in time, without proper medical attention, join motion can be lost and the bones of the joints may become deformed.

No one knows what causes rheumatoid arthritis but there are drugs and therapies which can greatly assist in containing the disease. Each case of the disease is individual and different from all others. What form of treatment the doctor recommends will depend on how severe the disease is, what joints are affected, the patient's age and occupation, and even his family life.

One of the most important and safest drugs in treating arthritis is aspirin. Since it reduces pain and inflammation it is very important to the arthritis sufferer. There are other more powerful drugs which a physician can call
